It's Victory Night For 'Jimmy Who?'

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tonight, after a 17-month campaign in which he came from virtually nowhere, Jimmy Carter will receive the Democratic presidential nomination.

But considerable speculation still exists about Carter's choice for his running mate — a choice Carter says he will make known in a public announcement Thursday morning.

Although three other names will be placed in nomination for president tonight at the Democratic national convention in New York City, Carter's triumph is almost an accomplished fact.

The Associated Press' poll of convention delegates showed Carter with 1,794 votes on the verge of the big roll call. Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona had 316.5, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. 281 and antiabortionist Ellen McCormack of suburban Long Island only a smattering of support.

The American Broadcasting company (ABC) has declared that Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota will be Carter's choice for the vice-presidential nomination, but speculation continues that it might be one of two other senators.

They are Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the man who accepted the party's vice presidential nomination in 1968 and rejected it in 1972, and John Glenn of Ohio, the first American astronaut to orbit the earth.

Three other possibilities still being discussed are Senators Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Frank Church of Idaho.

Yesterday the convention put its stamp of approval on Carter's platform with only one change in the document that was drafted in May.

The change proposes legislation to ease restrictions of the Hatch Act and to allow federal workers to engage in some political activity. Under the Hatch Act, all federal employes are prohibited from engaging in politics.

Otherwise, the platform was approved as proposed without opposition on the floor. Delegates seeking discussion of some sections, such as the platform's neutral stance on abortion, were unable to win enough votes to allow debate.

Perhaps the best news Carter received Tuesday came from United Steel Workers President I.W. Abel, who said the AFL-CIO Executive Council may endorse Carter next Monday.

The AFL-CIO sat out the 1972 campaign without endorsing any candidate but could be a potent force if it marshals its huge political machine behind Carter this year.

Berrien Jurors Indict Ex-Builder

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

The president of a former Elkhart, Ind., construction company has been arrested on an indictment by the Berrien county citizens' grand jury alleging he kept $50,000 paid to him by a New Troy firm.

Berrien Prosecutor John Smietanka said Cecil E. Thompson, 39, of Palm Harbor, Fla., was arrested Friday in Tampa by the FBI on an unlawful flight to avoid prosecution warrant. Thompson is identified as president of the former McCollough Construction company.

The prosecutor said Thompson was held on a warrant from the grand jury indictment which charges him with a violation of the Michigan building contract fund act relating to construction in Berrien county. Smietanka said it is not known if Thompson will fight extradition to Michigan.

The maximum penalty for a conviction on the building contract fund charge is three years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The indictment against Thompson was returned in mid-June, according to Smietanka. The indictment alleges that Thompson was paid $50,000 in December, 1974, by the Stanley-Knight Corp. of New Troy for an addition to the firm's plant.

The indictment charges that the money was supposed to be used by Thompson to pay off subcontractors on the addition, but that he converted the $50,000 to his own use with the intent to defraud, Smietanka said.

Smietanka said McCollough was founded in April, 1963, and Thompson became president in June, 1974. He noted McCollough went into bankruptcy in the fall of 1974, and there are currently two civil suits pending in Berrien Circuit court against McCollough. The suits were filed by the subcontractors who allegedly were not paid for work on the Stanley-Knight addition and seek about $28,000.

Smietanka credited Assistant Prosecutor John Bruha and Special Investigator Randy Arnt with the investigation leading up to Thompson's indictment.

Thompson is the 13th person indicted by the grand jury. One man has pleaded no contest in Berrien Circuit court, charges against three have been dismissed, and eight people have been bound over to circuit court on various charges.

Smietanka declined to say if any more indictments will be returned by the grand jury. He noted the grand jury comes up for renewal or termination of funding at the end of August.

Audit Shows 20% Of ADC Families Get Overpayments

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — More than 20 per cent of Michigan's recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children get more money than they are entitled to, according to a state audit.

Despite a campaign to reduce error rates — including ineligible recipients and underpayments — overpayments to ADC recipients remain stubbornly high.

In a sample of 295 active cases conducted by state Auditor General Albert Lee, 65 cases or 22 per cent "provided grants incorrectly." The average mistake was $74.73 a month in overpayment.

The report recommended tighter and more elaborate procedures for catching welfare cheats.

Although the audit covered the time period of July 1, 1970, to Feb. 28, 1975, a state social services official indicated things haven't improved very much since then.

According to Jerrold Brockmyre, director of assistance payments, the overpayment rate for July-through-December of last year was 20.8 per cent. "Their figures didn't deviate much from our quality control figures," he conceded.

But, Brockmyre said, the overpayment rate for January-through-June of 1975 was 25.4 per cent — so the most recent data showed "significant reductions."

For the second half of 1975, Brockmyre said, payments to ineligible recipients made up some 6.7 per cent, while 7.2 per cent were underpaid. He said the department is still preparing data for the six months ending June 30 of this year.

Social Services Director John Dempsey said preliminary data for that time period shows "further progress, but still an intolerable level of mistakes." He said the greatest advance is in cutting down payments to ineligible recipients, where most of the money is lost.

The state was under pressure from the federal government to reduce its error rates to certain levels or lose federal funds. But a court case has delayed any penalty, Brockmyre said.

The audit report projected the

One Of 2 Accused Nurses Is Pregnant

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The trial of two Filippino nurses accused of killing and poisoning patients at the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration hospital may be delayed until after one of the defendants gives birth to a child, her attorney said Tuesday.

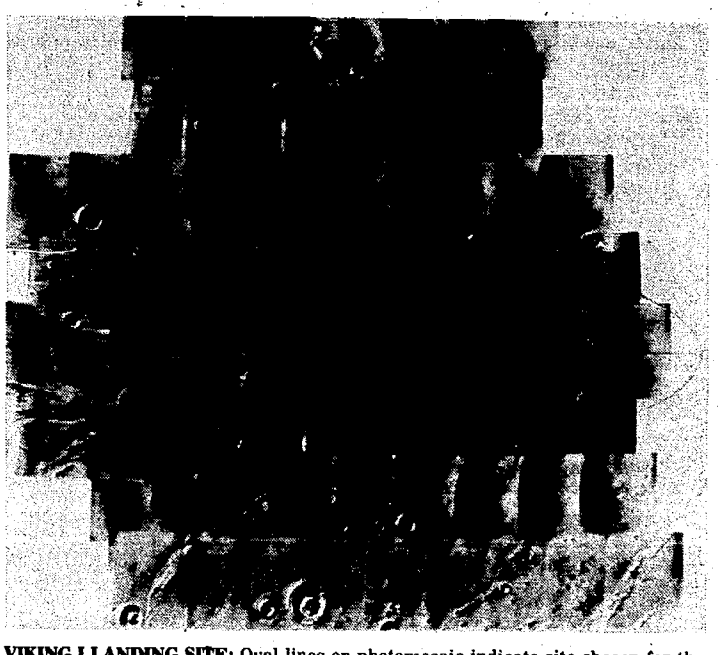

Defense attorney Laurence Burgess said U.S. District Court Judge Philip Pratt might delay the trial, possibly until next January, since Leonara Perez is about five months pregnant.

Mrs. Perez, 32, of Evanston, Ill., and Filipina Narciso, 30, of Ypsilanti, have been charged with murdering five patients last summer, poisoning 10 others and with conspiracy to poison and murder patients at the hospital.

No date has been set for the trial. The nurses are free on $75,000 bond, but are limited to travel in Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

Former Niles Policeman Bound Over

BY NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Former Niles City Patrolman Thomas G. Dipert "took an armful of sleeping bags" from a Niles township sporting goods store company that was closed one night in 1973, a policeman on leave from the force testified yesterday.

Myron Olson testifying against Dipert during a preliminary examination in Berrien Fifth District court also admitted that on the same night he was with Dipert and he (Olson) took an imported 12-gauge shotgun from the company.

After yesterday's hearing Visiting District Judge John Fitzgerald, from Kalamazoo, bound Dipert over to Circuit court on a charge of larceny in a building. The charge, brought in an indictment by the Berrien citizens' grand jury, alleges that Dipert stole the sleeping bags from the John R. Lutes Co., Inc., 1400B Chicago road, Niles township, in September of 1973. Olson, who has testifyed under immunity against three other Niles policemen in connection with grand jury indictments, told the court that he and Dipert were working together on the midnight shift, from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., in 1973. He testified that they went to the Lutes company, which is a representative for manufacturers of sporting equipment, "to rattle doors" and make sure the building was secure. They found an open door and went into a supply room, Olson testified. "Tom (Dipert) said that he wanted a telescopic rifle scope," Olson testified, but the two uniformed policemen were called away from the business to answer a complaint.

They returned an hour later. "I took a shotgun and Tom took three sleeping bags and we left," said Olson. The officers drove back to the police station, put the articles in their cars and returned to duty. About a week later, Dipert "told me that he burned the sleeping bags," Olson said. "I'm not certain why he did it," he testified. Defense Exhibit 1, a Spanish Laurona double barreled shotgun, was identified by Olson as the gun he'd stolen that night. He testified that he modified the gun and filed off the serial number. In its place he stamped a new serial number: 71840. Olson said the number stands for his date of birth, July 18, 1940.

After taking the shotgun, Olson hunted with it several times and, earlier this year, handed it over to grand jury investigators, according to testimony. Olson has been granted immunity by the grand jury, Asst. Prosecutor Wilbur Schillinger said.

Schillinger's only other witness was Mrs. Mary Lutes, office manager of the company. She told the court that sometime in the fall of 1973 a 12-gauge Laurona shotgun "mysteriously disappeared" from the company. She said nothing on the stand about the three sleeping bags, and neither Schillinger nor Defense Atty. Jerry O'Connor questioned her about the bags. A second charge against Dipert, alleging that he committed larceny from a motor vehicle by stealing a hunting knife from a van at the Lutes company, was dismissed by the prosecution. Schillinger said only that the dismissal was done in fairness to the defendant.

Dipert, 29, of 825 East Park street, Niles, resigned from the force in 1975. He was continued free on bond.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

An Overlooked Bicentennial Gem

While fumbling through some reference works the other day we came upon an historic coincidence which if we ever were aware of it had long forgotten.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, personal friends and political opposites, died within hours of one another 150 years ago on the Fourth of July.

The two men from Massachusetts and Virginia respectively began their adult careers in complete harness, separated once their political careers started to peak, and resumed their friendship after retirement from the ntaion's capital.

Though more than one author contributed to the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson is incontestably acclaimed as its spiritual father.

Adams is some times referred to as the Atals of Independence. It was he, who by agreement between the document's sponsors, assumed the difficult task of getting the Continental Congress to adopt it as America's first official statement of principles to the world outside.

Jefferson wrote of Adams in 1813, "He was the pillar of its support on the floor of the Congress, its ablest advocate and defender against the multifarious assaults it encountered."

That harmony was severely strained just 21 years after the Declaration's adoption.

Adams who was vice president under Washington became a leader in the Federalist party. Jefferson was the spokesman for the Democratic-Republican party.

While some history books claim the difference between the two groups was that of a strong central government as opposed to a states rights position, the distinction was more economic than political.

The Federalists related to the emerging New England commercial and industrial interests.

The Democratic-Republicans were rural, agrarian oriented.

In 1796 Adams and Jefferson ran for the Presidency.

Adams won by a close margin in the electoral college. Jefferson automatically took over the Vice Presidency by reason of placing second in the polling.

The next four years were difficult for both men.

Adams sought to continue the former close association with Jefferson by handing direction of the Federalist party to Alexander Hamilton.

Adams lost from both sides.

Hamilton and his friends openly fought with their President.

The Napoleonic Wars were under way when the two men assumed office.

Adams chose to confront France, a move which infuriated the Democratic-Republicans who denounced the President for turning against an ally without whose military help the colonists could not have won the Revolutionary War.

To reinforce his stand of doubtful neutrality, Adams persuaded Congress to pass the detested Alien and Seditions Acts of 1798. Their very plain purpose was to muzzle critics of the Administration.

Beset from within and from the outside, it is no wonder Adams became the country's first one-term President.

Jefferson who succeeded Adams had smoother time of it.

He was an adroit politician, having as uncanny gift of persuading the most virulent opponent to adopting his line of thinking.

The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 set in motion the nation's yearning to march westward and made Jefferson unassailable for re-election.

Once gone from the White House, Jefferson resumed the oldtime tie with Adams.

Each remained active in public affairs and they exchanged a voluminous correspondence between themselves.

Coming toward the end on July 4, 1826, Adams breathed, "Thomas Jefferson still survives."

The Virginian had died a few hours earlier.

Thinking back possibly to that day in Philadelphia 50 years before, Adams final words were," Is it the Fourth?"

History records few parallels of that unique relationship.

From Middle Of June, Congress Worked Hard

Something put a burr in Congress' saddle beginning about the middle of June, resulting in one of the most productive sessions in a comparable time in history. From June 14 to July 2, when Congress recessed for the Independence Day holiday, both Senate and House held record sessions.

The Senate met for 159 hours during that period, and the House was in session 123 hours. Members of the Senate averaged nearly 10 hours a day during the period and House members averaged 9. Nor was the time wasted.

Much of the time was concentrated on 13 major appropriations bills, each of which traditionally drags through the legislative process at a snail's pace. Not so this year. Eleven of the 13 bills, totaling $260 billion in appropriations, were approved by the House during the pre-holiday session.

Observers of the recent legislative pace not only are amazed at the concentration of work completed, but predict that for the first time in many years next fiscal year's appropriations will be law before the new year begins Oct. 1.

A new budget law passed as part of a congressional reform is credited with much of the accelerated pace. That law specifies that the budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 must be on the President's desk by Sept. 13.

Scandals which have erupted around a few members of Congress also may have contributed to the sustained attention to the business at hand. Hard work is a good salve for a collective conscience.

MANY LOOKING FOR BABY TO ADOPT

Editor,

It made me sad to read the article of July about Mrs. Torrence going to have an abortion.

She was imprisoned for killing a human being but apparently after being put into prison, it is alright to kill another human being. The only difference between the two victims is that one is born and more developed than the other. Both of the victims are complete persons.

I am sure that if she would have given the baby up for adoption a childless couple would have been made very happy. Potential parents are waiting years to adopt infant children that may never arrive.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — President Ford will utilize virtually the entire Michigan delegation in his effort to win the Republican nomination at the national convention, according to the state party leader.

While only Sen. Robert Griffin is officially a Ford representative at the August meeting in Kansas City, the President is expected to rely on old friends and high-ranking Republicans in the state delegation to help out.

Party Chairman William McLaughlin said Tuesday that, more than any other state, Michigan will provide staff power to help the President woo stray delegates in his nipand-tuck battle with Ronald Reagan.

Griffin has been named floor manager, which means he will be the chief organizer of Ford's efforts toward the nomination and potential secondary battles over rules and the platform.

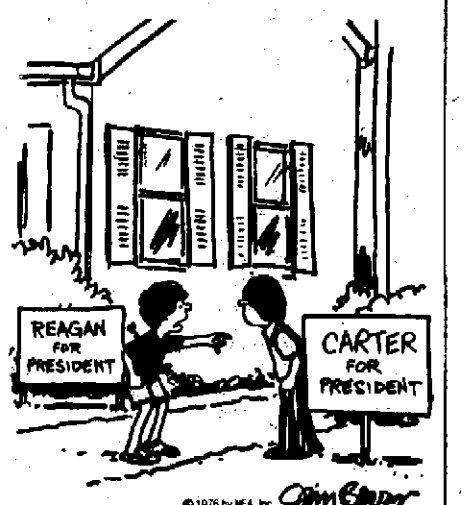

But both Griffin and the President, McLaughlin said, will look to longtime allies and personal acquaintances from Michigan to lobby for Ford in other states and on the various committees.

McLaughlin said he himself expects to be at Griffin's call on numerous occasions, in addition to his regular chores as state party and GOP Midwest chairman.

Gov. William Milliken and Ford state chairman Peter Fletcher are also expected to be heavily utilized in the showdown fight.

In addition, Michigan will provide Ford with strong representation on the four convention committees. Ford's Michigan forces parlayed their 55-29 edge into all eight state posts on committees on credentials, resolutions, rules and permanent organization.

Consumerist Nears His Nadir

WASHINGTON — All heroes become bores in the end, but Ralph Nader?

Ten years ago when he published his classic work on the car as citrus, "Unsafe at Any Speed", he was a worried-looking nobody with a sense that the world was mad — and he was wonderful. Since then he has published 40 more books, organized into a dozen corporations, hasn't said a positive word about anything on the continent — and appears increasingly to be wearing out his welcome.

Assuredly, Big N always had critics. Corporation barons, government flunkies — those kinds of people. Now, however, his worth is decreasing in the public sector. College kids don't send him money so readily as before; the press is not so easily manipulated to praise his view; and, most importantly, there are even one or two consumers who are beginning to wonder about the wisdom of a man who, in the name of progress, would give the government of Wayne Hays, William Simon and Hubert Humphrey greater control over private industry.

This erosion of public confidence in Nader did not set in suddenly. It started, perhaps, when the man of the people lobbied successfully for such things as automobile seatbelt buzzers. In the old days they would have guillotined a man for less. Nader was spared but cautioned: "Ralph, you can't help humanity by driving it crazy." Nader responded by lobbying for buzzers on the ignition switch as well.

And this is what he has become, to a degree: arrogant. Once when he presented a $34.12 ticket to Allegheny Airlines for a flight, he was apologetically refused a seat. The airline said it had overbooked the flight, which was a hedge against those ticketholders who traditionally do not show at departure time. The airline said, correctly, that if the overbooking procedure was not followed the fare costs would eventually go up. To hell with higher prices, said Nader, who earns $250,000 a year himself, and besides has most of his fares paid by others. And he has sued. This is consumer protection?

There are those who say Ralph Nader has become not so much arrogant as touchy. And perhaps this is kinder as well as more accurate.

Indeed, for a man who can dish it out, Nader is uncommonly delicate when it comes to affronts against him, real or imagined. He brooks no criticism from the unwashed. Currently he is suing a writer named Ralph de Toledano for $1,005,000 worth of libel. De Toledano's offense? He dared to write that Nader used "falsified and distorted evidence to make his case against the automobile." Every Nader foe east of Detroit has said the same thing, but Big N is making certain De Toledano doesn't say it again, at least for awhile.

And yet Nader believes in nothing so much as opinions, his own: nuclear power must be stopped; safe automobiles must be, manufactured, however financially impractical; the nation needs yet another bureaucracy acting for consumers.

Lately Big N has even been hinting of economic revolution; and though he does quite well himself in the present system — in 1974 he raised $1.4 million from college students who checked off portions of their school fees to him — he nonetheless is pushing for government of the John Kenneth Galbraith kind of socialism.

For many, Big N's ideas still have merit, even excitement. But what is worrisome is that they now smack, as does he, of zealotry. Big N was born without a neutral gear, he would either be the man who saves us with foresight or destroys us through blindness. As time passes that choice seems less and less appropriate. Undoubtedly, Ralph Nader is still a wonder. He is offensive, though when he tries to walk on water.

Some Gems From Pit Of Reality

WASHINGTON — A framed quotation hanging in the office of Sen. Hubert Humphrey reads: "The saint may dream or the philosopher construct his ideal world, but the man of action who wields power must live in the pit of reality, doing the very best he can, and ever reconciled to the limited and the partial."

With that in mind, some recent glimpses from the pit of reality:

ITEM: The first calm, and therefore dull, Democratic presidential convention since 1964 opened in Madison Square Garden Monday evening, and while it may be great for the party politically it isn't doing much for the delegates. One delegate — who happens also to be a U.S. Senator — was asked what he's going to do to while away the time in New York. "Oh, I thought I'd get in a lot of window-shopping," he replied.

ITEM: The Republicans, by contrast, have more tension than they can handle. But you wouldn't know it by President Ford's behavior. In the middle of his struggle with Ronald Reagan, he spent 45 minutes with Miss U.S.A., an 18-year-old beauty from Minnesota. That's more time than most of his advisers get with him.

ITEM: That Senator Bob Dole really is a stitch. Just what the Republican party needs in its time of trial. Arriving late for a committee meeting recently, the Kansas Senator apologized, "Sorry, I was down at the White House helping Jerry pack." Ha. Ha.

ITEM: Ethel Kennedy, generally thought of hereabouts as a very nice lady, has her vindictive streak. She gleefully told friends recently she was delighted that House Speaker Carl Albert will retire at the end of this congressional term. She added she had never forgiven him for gavelling down her husband, the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, during the 1964 convention.

Albert, acting in his role as convention chairman, called a halt to an emotional demonstration while Kennedy was at the rostrum (the outburst was prompted by a memorial film about his brother, the President, who had been assassinated only the year before). But Albert let it go on for 10 minutes before intervening, and at the time President Lyndon Johnson was irritated with Albert for acting so slowly.

ITEM: Ronald Reagan on Jimmy Carter: "He's tall in the straddle."

ITEM: There's a peanut war on Capitol Hill. Both Sens. Herman Talmadge of Georgia and Harry Byrd of Virginia give out free little packets of peanuts to constituents who visit their offices.

Neither Senator's staff, however, appreciates suggestions from grateful recipients that the peanuts remind them of Jimmy Carter. "Don't mention that word 'Carter.' These are Talmadge peanuts," a staffer in the Georgian's office exclaimed. "Humph! These are better than Georgia peanuts," a Byrd staffer huffed. "These come from Virginia."

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. – Thomas Jefferson.

An Overlooked Bicentennial Gem

While fumbling through some reference works the other day we came upon an historic coincidence which if we ever were aware of it had long forgotten.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, personal friends and political opposites, died within hours of one another 150 years ago on the Fourth of July.

The two men from Massachusetts and Virginia respectively began their adult careers in complete harness, separated once their political careers started to peak, and resumed their friendship after retirement from the ntaion's capital.

Though more than one author contributed to the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson is incontestably acclaimed as its spiritual father.

Adams is some times referred to as the Atals of Independence. It was he, who by agreement between the document's sponsors, assumed the difficult task of getting the Continental Congress to adopt it as America's first official statement of principles to the world outside.

Jefferson wrote of Adams in 1813, "He was the pillar of its support on the floor of the Congress, its ablest advocate and defender against the multifarious assaults it encountered."

That harmony was severely strained just 21 years after the Declaration's adoption.

Adams who was vice president under Washington became a leader in the Federalist party. Jefferson was the spokesman for the Democratic-Republican party.

While some history books claim the difference between the two groups was that of a strong central government as opposed to a states rights position, the distinction was more economic than political.

The Federalists related to the emerging New England commercial and industrial interests.

The Democratic-Republicans were rural, agrarian oriented.

In 1796 Adams and Jefferson ran for the Presidency.

Adams won by a close margin in the electoral college. Jefferson automatically took over the Vice Presidency by reason of placing second in the polling.

The next four years were difficult for both men.

Adams sought to continue the former close association with Jefferson by handing direction of the Federalist party to Alexander Hamilton.

Adams lost from both sides.

Hamilton and his friends openly fought with their President.

The Napoleonic Wars were under way when the two men assumed office.

Adams chose to confront France, a move which infuriated the Democratic-Republicans who denounced the President for turning against an ally without whose military help the colonists could not have won the Revolutionary War.

To reinforce his stand of doubtful neutrality, Adams persuaded Congress to pass the detested Alien and Seditions Acts of 1798. Their very plain purpose was to muzzle critics of the Administration.

Beset from within and from the outside, it is no wonder Adams became the country's first one-term President.

Jefferson who succeeded Adams had smoother time of it.

He was an adroit politician, having as uncanny gift of persuading the most virulent opponent to adopting his line of thinking.

The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 set in motion the nation's yearning to march westward and made Jefferson unassailable for re-election.

Once gone from the White House, Jefferson resumed the oldtime tie with Adams.

Each remained active in public affairs and they exchanged a voluminous correspondence between themselves.

Coming toward the end on July 4, 1826, Adams breathed, "Thomas Jefferson still survives."

The Virginian had died a few hours earlier.

Thinking back possibly to that day in Philadelphia 50 years before, Adams final words were," Is it the Fourth?"

History records few parallels of that unique relationship.

From Middle Of June, Congress Worked Hard

Something put a burr in Congress' saddle beginning about the middle of June, resulting in one of the most productive sessions in a comparable time in history. From June 14 to July 2, when Congress recessed for the Independence Day holiday, both Senate and House held record sessions.

The Senate met for 159 hours during that period, and the House was in session 123 hours. Members of the Senate averaged nearly 10 hours a day during the period and House members averaged 9. Nor was the time wasted.

Much of the time was concentrated on 13 major appropriations bills, each of which traditionally drags through the legislative process at a snail's pace. Not so this year. Eleven of the 13 bills, totaling $260 billion in appropriations, were approved by the House during the pre-holiday session.

Observers of the recent legislative pace not only are amazed at the concentration of work completed, but predict that for the first time in many years next fiscal year's appropriations will be law before the new year begins Oct. 1.

A new budget law passed as part of a congressional reform is credited with much of the accelerated pace. That law specifies that the budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 must be on the President's desk by Sept. 13.

Scandals which have erupted around a few members of Congress also may have contributed to the sustained attention to the business at hand. Hard work is a good salve for a collective conscience.

New Lincoln Sewage System Is Launched!

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

The Lincoln township board last night took the first step toward construction of a sanitary sewage collection system in a 225-acre residential area east of Stevensville.

The board voted to instruct its engineering firm, Barger Engineering, St. Joseph, to prepare preliminary plans and cost estimates for installing the system.

The action came after Mrs. Bernice Tretheway, township clerk, announced that she had received petitions signed by a majority of residents in the area asking that a special assessment district be created to pay for the project.

Mrs. Tretheway said the petitions had been signed by owners of 69 per cent of the land in the area which has been designated sewer district No. 9 in previous engineering studies.

The district is located in an area between Roosevelt road and the east side of Stevensville and between Alpine Ridge and Pawnee Path roads on the north and Joni lane on the south.

When the engineering firm has completed its preliminary plans and cost estimates, a public hearing will be called for residents of the area, Mrs. Tretheway said. Following the hearing, the board will then decide whether to create the special assessment district and proceed with the project.

Mrs. Tretheway said current and unofficial estimates have set the total project cost at $1.2 million. Each property owner would have to be assessed about $2,700 to pay that cost, she said.

If built, the sewer system would drain into the Hickory creek interceptor which runs into the Twin Cities sewage treatment facility. Homes in the district are now served by septic tanks.

Petitions were also accepted last night from 250 residents of another residential area now without sewers. Those petitions, representing a 306-lot area designated as sewer district No. 6, asked the board to investigate the possibility of installing a collection system.

That area covers residential streets on both sides of Cleveland avenue between Marquette Woods road to the north and Santa Maria and Barbara Ann drives on the south.

The board voted to have its engineering firm provide an unofficial estimate of the cost of such a project. A public hearing will then be scheduled for those residents.

Mrs. Tretheway said that both areas combined contain half the potential sewage customers in the township.

Mrs. Tretheway and Supervisor Ernest Hauch told board members they were checking into the possibility of obtaining a federal grant to help pay some of the construction costs for installing sewers in all areas now served with township water. That includes the districts now seeking sewers.

The two said they had attended a recent meeting with the Environmental Protection Agency at which they learned federal money is available until November, 1977, for sewage collection projects.

They said Lincoln township might be eligible. Hauch said the grant, if approved, might cover up to 50 per cent of the construction cost.

In other areas, Mrs. Tretheway announced that there are 6,696 registered voters in the township's seven precincts eligible to vote in the Aug. 3 primary. She said 40 election workers have been hired.

Les White, township police administrator, told the board that a total of $4,309 had been spent to date for hired guards to patrol the entrances to the Grand Mere area.

The guards, who began May 28, have worked 1,003 hours and have turned away a total of 1,388 off-the-road vehicles from the private property. Owners had complained of being constantly disturbed by jeeps, dune buggies and motorcycles before the guards were hired, he said.

The board voted tentative plat approval for a 26-lot subdivision on 13 acres which is to be known as Brunkel Manor. The subdivision is proposed for a site north of Marquette Woods road and west of Washington avenue adjacent to the Oak Terrace subdivision.

The board voted to spend an additional $2,520 for brick interior walls in the meeting room of the new township hall under construction.

The board accepted a $500 donation from the Grand Mere association to help pay for the increased patrols in the area.

The board voted to temporarily hire Trustee Fred Albrecht Jr. to inspect the township for cross-connections which could result in sewage backing up into the fresh water system. No pay was set.

Hauch said Albrecht was chosen because he is the Stevensville building inspector and is familiar with the areas to be inspected.

BH Educator Accepts Job In Grand Rapids

Robert W. Payne, a top Benton Harbor school administrator since 1962, is resigning to become assistant superintendent for personnel at Forest Hills school district, east of Grand Rapids. Payne, 58, currently is deputy superintendent for administrative services and was assistant superintendent for personnel during most of his time in Benton Harbor.

He also has held the highest administrative post in the district. Boards of education appointed him acting superintendent four times to fill temporary vacancies.

His resignation will be presented Monday to the board of education. He had a year to go on his contract here.

Payne is scheduled to start Aug. 9 at Forest Hills at a salary of $25,000. He is the second Benton Harbor school administrator going to Forest Hills, a district of 5,000 students. Glenn Nienhuis, director for business and finance, announced last month he had taken a job as business manager at Forest Hills.

Payne's wife, Mary Lou, is a registered nurse and has been a teacher in health occupations classes in the Benton Harbor district. They live at 1005 Ogden avenue.

The Paynes have a daughter, Mrs. Cynthia Ester, a teacher at Walled Lake, Mich., and a son, Bill, working on a master's degree at Bowling Green university.

Payne came to Benton Harbor from Lancaster, Ohio, where he was assistant superintendent for personnel.

Candidate Stockman Raps Congressional Self-Indulgence

David Stockman of St. Joseph, Republican candidate for nomination for Fourth District congressman, Tuesday sharply criticized excessive "Congressional self-indulgence" on high salaries, fringe benefits and allowances.

Speaking at a meeting of the Benton Harbor Exchange club at Benton Harbor Holiday Inn, Stockman noted that the "care and feeding" of the average congressman now costs the taxpayers more than one million dollars per term. He charged they live like kings and use taxpayer funds to insure a lifetime tenure in office.

Stockman said that more than half of this cost is accounted for by the "personal palace guards" of 18 staff assistants congressmen have authorized for themselves.

"I certainly recognize," Stockman continued, "that members of Congress need the best expertise available to help cope with the large volume of legislation confronting them. But I know from first-hand observation that the staffing system has been flagrantly abused. More often than not, staff assistants are assigned to re-election oriented projects, public relations gimmickry, or to the concoction of glittering new government programs to publicize back home rather than to legitimate official business."

Stockman also mentioned unlimited free mailings, subsidization of Congressional restaurants, a multitude of special accounts for office supplies, and widespread abuse of taxpayer-financed foreign travel as other costly misappropriations.

Stockman said that if he is elected he will make every effort "to insure that we abolish this outrageous insult to the taxpayer."

Judge Rules BH Firm Owes Suppliers $7,997

A default judgment entered Monday in Berrien Fifth District court states that Hayes & Sons Construction Co., Benton Harbor, owes $7,997 to two companies that supplied materials used to remodel the auditorium at Benton Harbor high school.

Plaintiffs in the suits were Michigan Woodwork and Specialities Co., of Battle Creek, which filed suit seeking $2,074; and Abbott K. Schlain C., of Lathrup Village, which sought $5,794.

District Judge Hugh Black made the default judgment because Samuel L. Hayes, head of the company, failed to answer the plaintiffs' complaints. "It was alleged in the complaints (that the money was owed) and it has not been denied," Black explained.

To the sums sought by the two firms, Black added interest, he said.

The suits involved work done and materials delivered in 1975. The $385,000 project to remodel the auditorium was completed last year.

Also named as a defendant, along with Hayes, in the two suits was the Balboa Insurance Co., of Newport Beach, Calif. According to the suits, the insurance company, through a bond, insured payment of all of the Benton Harbor company's debts.

The insurance company answered the complaints, according to the court records. It has been given more time in its cases because the attorney for the plaintiffs wants more information from the insurance company.

Meanwhile, the insurance company has filed suit against Hayes & Sons. In that case, the insurance company wants Hayes to be liable for any judgments made against the insurance company, the court record states.

Benton Harbor Contractor Sued For Loan Repayment

A Benton Harbor credit union has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court against a Benton Harbor contractor, claiming $11,906 in principal and interest is owed on a 1974 loan.

The plaintiff, Peoples Community Federal Credit Union, claims it made an agreement with Farmers & Merchants bank to guarantee loans made to members of the Contractors Assistance Corp. The suit claims that in July, 1974, F & M loaned $10,000 to Ellis Hull, owner of H & H Construction Co., who failed to pay the balance due. Hull is the defendant in the suit.

The suit contends F & M collected the $10,000 balance plus $277 in interest from the credit union, and claims Hull has failed to repay the credit union. The suit says there is presently due the $10,000 principal, $277 in interest paid to F & M, and $1,706 in interest accrued from October, 1974, to June, 1976.

The credit union was chartered in 1969 with former Benton Harbor Mayor Charles F. Joseph as founder and president.

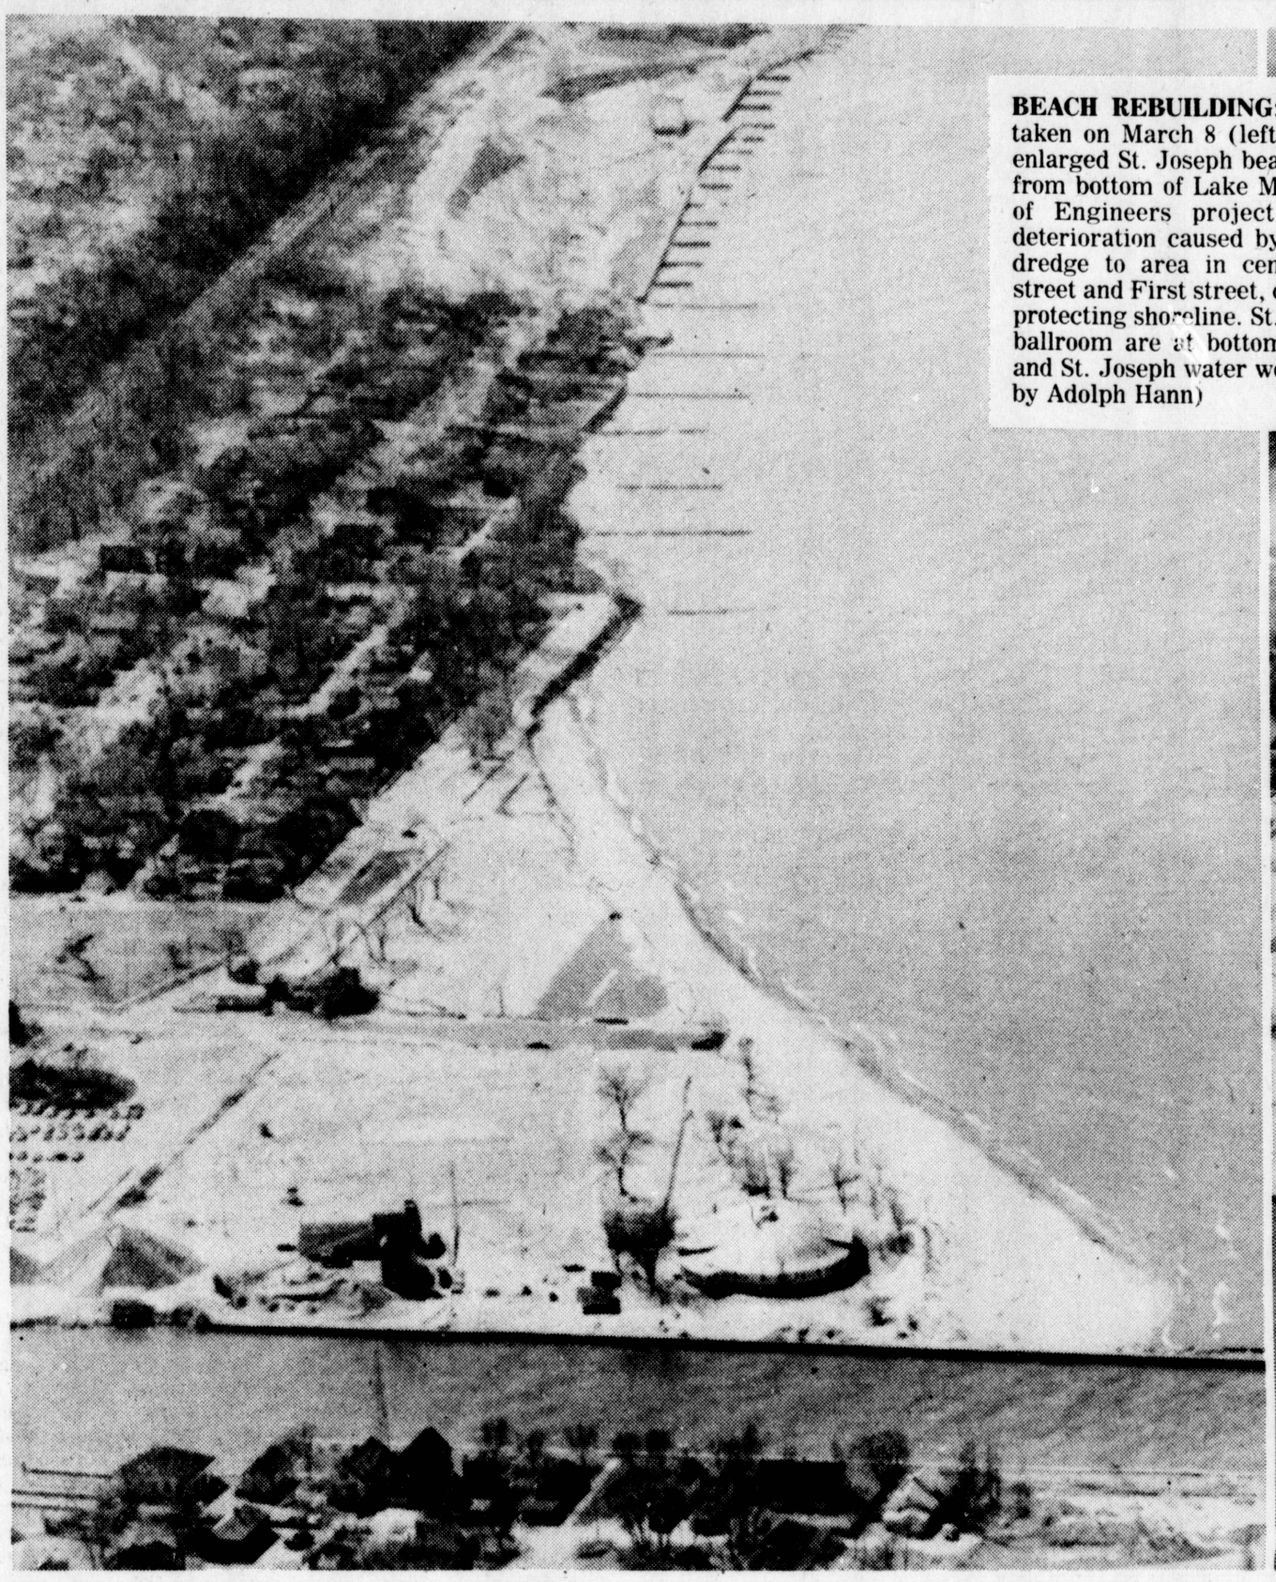

Operations of the credit union have been subsidized with various federal funds, including $6,500 last year channelled through Berrien County Action, Inc., and $42,000 this year from a Community Development "urgent needs" grant awarded to the City of Benton Harbor.

New Lincoln Sewage System Is Launched!

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

The Lincoln township board last night took the first step toward construction of a sanitary sewage collection system in a 225-acre residential area east of Stevensville.

The board voted to instruct its engineering firm, Barger Engineering, St. Joseph, to prepare preliminary plans and cost estimates for installing the system.

The action came after Mrs. Bernice Tretheway, township clerk, announced that she had received petitions signed by a majority of residents in the area asking that a special assessment district be created to pay for the project.

Mrs. Tretheway said the petitions had been signed by owners of 69 per cent of the land in the area which has been designated sewer district No. 9 in previous engineering studies.

The district is located in an area between Roosevelt road and the east side of Stevensville and between Alpine Ridge and Pawnee Path roads on the north and Joni lane on the south.

When the engineering firm has completed its preliminary plans and cost estimates, a public hearing will be called for residents of the area, Mrs. Tretheway said. Following the hearing, the board will then decide whether to create the special assessment district and proceed with the project.

Mrs. Tretheway said current and unofficial estimates have set the total project cost at $1.2 million. Each property owner would have to be assessed about $2,700 to pay that cost, she said.

If built, the sewer system would drain into the Hickory creek interceptor which runs into the Twin Cities sewage treatment facility. Homes in the district are now served by septic tanks.

Petitions were also accepted last night from 250 residents of another residential area now without sewers. Those petitions, representing a 306-lot area designated as sewer district No. 6, asked the board to investigate the possibility of installing a collection system.

That area covers residential streets on both sides of Cleveland avenue between Marquette Woods road to the north and Santa Maria and Barbara Ann drives on the south.

The board voted to have its engineering firm provide an unofficial estimate of the cost of such a project. A public hearing will then be scheduled for those residents.

Mrs. Tretheway said that both areas combined contain half the potential sewage customers in the township.

Mrs. Tretheway and Supervisor Ernest Hauch told board members they were checking into the possibility of obtaining a federal grant to help pay some of the construction costs for installing sewers in all areas now served with township water. That includes the districts now seeking sewers.

The two said they had attended a recent meeting with the Environmental Protection Agency at which they learned federal money is available until November, 1977, for sewage collection projects.

They said Lincoln township might be eligible. Hauch said the grant, if approved, might cover up to 50 per cent of the construction cost.

In other areas, Mrs. Tretheway announced that there are 6,696 registered voters in the township's seven precincts eligible to vote in the Aug. 3 primary. She said 40 election workers have been hired.

Les White, township police administrator, told the board that a total of $4,309 had been spent to date for hired guards to patrol the entrances to the Grand Mere area.

The Wine Cellar

by Kay & Alan Ritter

The sweet white wines of Bergerac have a luscious, delicate flavour, similar to the Sauternes of Bordeaux. The best wines come from Monbazillac, whose vineyards are crowned by a picturesque hill, just a few miles from the town of Bergerac on the right bank of the Dordogne river. As Sauternes, the grapes are not only harvested after they have the "noble rot", but the golden wines have an alcohol strength of 13-14%, and are ready for drinking only after six years in the bottle.

Whether your personal wine tastes lean toward sweet or dry rely on our fantastic inventory at RITTER'S LIQUOR LOCKER, 3872 Red Arrow Hwy., 428-4021 to provide you with just the perfect vintage. We also carry all the popular whiskeys, brandies, cordials and beer as well as pre-mixed cocktails. Ample convenient free parking. Hours: Mon.-Sat. 10 am - 11 pm, Sun. noon - 9 pm.

WINE TIP:

Dry white wines of Mentravel are light in color and soft, and are great dessert wines, or with chicken and fish.

The sweet white wines of Bergerac have a luscious, delicate flavour, similar to the Sauternes of Bordeaux. The best wines come from Monbazillac, whose vineyards are crowned by a picturesque hill, just a few miles from the town of Bergerac on the right bank of the Dordogne river, As Sauternes, the grapes are not only harvested after they have the "noble rot", but the golden wines have an alcohol strength of 13-14%, and are ready for drinking only after six years in the bottle.

Whether your personal wine tastes lean toward sweet or dry rely on our fantastic inventory at RITTER'S LIQUOR LOCKER, 3872 Red Arrow Hwy., 429-4921 to provide you with just the perfect vintage. We also carry all the popular whiskeys, brandies, cordials and beer as well as pre-mixed cocktails. Ample convenient free parking. Hours: Mon.-Sat. 10 am - 11 pm, Sun. noon - 9 pm.

WINE TIP:

Dry white wines of Mentravel are light in color and soft, and are great dessert wines, or with chicken and fish.

Summer Salad Sensations For 'To Hot To Cook' Days

SMOTHERED CUCUMBER STUFFED TOMATO SALAD

Summer celebration time is salad time. For this year's birthday, anniversary or special party get-togethers, serve colorful Celebration Salad.

This attractive main dish combines elbow macaroni and ham with a tasty horseradish dressing. Serve it on marinated asparagus spears surrounded with cherry tomatoes.

CELEBRATION SALAD
Cooked asparagus spears
Bottled Italian dressing
Eight ounces (two cups) elbow macaroni
Three-fourths cup mayonnaise
Two tablespoons ketchup
One-half teaspoon prepared horseradish
One-fourth teaspoon dry mustard
Two tablespoons sliced scallions
Two cups slivered cooked ham
One cup sliced celery

Marinate asparagus in Italian dressing over night, or at least three to four hours. Cook macaroni as directed; drain in colander. Rinse with cold water; drain again.

In bowl, blend mayonnaise, ketchup, horseradish, mustard and scallions; toss in macaroni, ham and celery. To serve, arrange asparagus spears on platter; top with macaroni salad. Garnish with watercress and cherry tomatoes. Makes six servings.

Here's another one-dish meal that requires only a refreshing beverage and a bowl of fresh fruit to make it an occasion.

Apple Packages

The first standard apple shipping container was the barrel. Its capacity was approximately three bushels.

It was replaced by the bushel basket which was easier to manage. The bushel basket was replaced by a wooden box of the same volume content.

Today's shipping container is the corrugated paper box which stacks conveniently for storage and shipping and serves as a master carton for consumer packages such as poly-bag and shrink-film over wrap as well.

BERRIEN SPRINGS — The Berrien County Bicentennial Pageant, Inc., will sponsor a "Recipe of Two Centuries" Tasting Spree Friday, July 16, at 5 p.m. at the Berrien County Youth Fair Memorial building, Berrien Springs.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12-years-old. They may be reserved by contacting the Bicentennial Headquarters, 777 Riverview drive, Benton Harbor. A limited number of tickets will be available at the door.

Adults attending will receive a commemorative plate, designed especially for the tasting spree, and a "Recipe of Two Centuries" booklet, according to Miss Doris Frobel, chairman.

Food will prepared by Berrien county residents that have entered recipes which have been in the family for years, as well as family favorites.

Contestants will assist with the serving.

Some of the recipes included are English Pasties submitted by Mrs. Martin (Bernice) Tretheway of Stevensville; Spinach Delight by Mrs. Dennis (Mary) McClish of Berrien Springs, and Swedish Meatballs by Mrs. Edwin (Verna) Bartz of St. Joseph.

According to Mrs. Tretheway, Pasties originated from the English settlers coming here from the district of Cornwall to settle in the upper peninsula of Michigan and workas miners.

It was popular for the miners to carry the meat pie or pasty, as it was a complete meal and often remained warm until lunch time.

ENGLISH PASTIES
Makes 4 or 5

Crust:
Three cups flour
One tablespoon salt
One cup lard
One cup cold water

Mix as for pie crust. Two packages of a prepared, flaky-type pie crust mix may be substituted.

Filling:
One pound flank steak, or other beef
One-fourth to one-half pound lean pork
Four to five medium potatoes
One small turnip (about one cup when cut-up)
One medium onion.

Cut meat into very small pieces. Chop potato, turnip and onion quite small. Add to meat and mix thoroughly adding about one teaspoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon pepper or according to taste.

Dough may be divided into four portions. Roll out a portion on a floured board or pastry cloth to the size of a nine-inch plate.

On half of the dough, place a large cup of filling on the center in a mound. Fold the uncovered portion over the filled portion and crimp edges with fingers to seal. (If a small break occurs, it may be patched with a small piece of moistened dough.) Shape pasty with hands so the crimped edge is tucked around the side. This prevents the juices from escaping. The pasty is in the shape of a half moon, but in a mound, not flat.

Top should be fork-marked to allow steam to escape. Preheat oven to 450 degrees and bake 15 minutes, then turn oven down to 350 degrees and bake 45 minutes until well done and brown. These remain hot for a long time.

SPINACH DELIGHT
Two pkgs. (10-oz. each) frozen chopped spinach
One cup sour cream
One pkg. onion soup mix

Cook spinach according to package directions, omitting salt. Drain well. Mix in sour cream and then mix in onion soup mix. Put in buttered casserole dish.

Topping:
Six to eight crushed soda crackers
Three tablespoons butter
Paprika

Melt butter over medium heat. Add crackers and paprika. Stir until crushed crackers are coated well with paprika. Then sprinkle cracker crumbs on spinach mixture. Bake entire casserole 25 to 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Makes six servings.

SWEDISH MEATBALLS
Three and three-fourths pounds hamburger
One cup onion (or as desired)
Five teaspoons salt
Five-eighths teaspoon nutmeg
Two and one-half teaspoons allspice
Five teaspoons sugar
Five eggs (beaten)
One and one-fourth cup milk
Five slices white bread (broken into small bites)
Five cans beef consomme

Combine hamburger, onions, spices, salt and sugar. Add bread, eggs and milk. Mix well and shape into small balls.

Brown in frying pan with oil. Place meatballs in a Dutch oven or heavy kettle and cover with consomme. Bake at a medium temperature for 45 minutes to one hour.

Serve Kabobs For Breakfast

Thread ham cubes and canned pineapple chunks on small wooden or metal skewers.

Brush lightly with honey. Broil until edges begin to brown. Serve with omelet, scrambled eggs or French toast.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Welfare Mother 'Hates It'

Dear Ann: Are you courageous enough to print this? These days everyone is yelling that "welfare cheats" are parasites and responsible for high taxes. Well, I'd like to tell you what it's like for someone who has been on welfare for several years.

My husband was badly wounded during the Korean war, lost his leg and shattered his nervous system. He became an alcoholic. We have a 23-year-old daughter, brain-damaged. I must care for her as if she were an infant. I also have an 8-year-old granddaughter living with me. She has cerebral palsy and a host of other problems — speech defect, bad eyes, poor hearing — been ill all of her life. This child's mother was deserted shortly after she gave birth.

I am in poor health, yet I drive my granddaughter to a special school — a total of 52 miles a day. I also manage to raise my own vegetables, can and freeze them to supplement our diet.

How do I like being on welfare? I hate it. I'd give anything if I could earn my way, but I can't. The medical bills are staggering. When I take out my food stamps in the market I get accusatory looks, as if I am stealing bread from the mouths of "taxpayers."

Of course there are lazy bums who won't work, and A.D.C. mothers who are milking the government, but there are also thousands of people like myself who desperately need help. No one speaks for us. Will you? — Thank God I'm In America

Dear Friend: Yes, I will speak for you — by letting you speak for yourself. Here's your letter, and bless you for writing it.

Wedding Woes

Dear Ann Landers: The wedding is over but I'm a wreck. Had we foreseen the trouble, we would have given our daughter a ladder. This letter is "therapy." If I put my gripes in writing I might feel better.

The limit was agreed on — 300 people — 150 from each side. We ended up with 225 from our side alone.

As soon as the invitations were in the mail we began to get calls from friends and relatives telling us, "You forgot So-and-So. They are hurt. Invite them right away."

The responses began to trickle in. When we invited "Mr. and Mrs." some replied, "We're bringing our daughter and son-in-law." Or, "Of course you know we can't leave Mother home . . ."

Four days before the wedding we had NOT heard from half the people. I got on the phone. (Ann Landers says you're supposed to call the clods if they don't R.S.V.P.)

I was told, "Of course we'll be there. We figured you'd know."

ANN LANDERS

(One card came back, "Sorry we can't make it." No signature.)

At the reception our daughter was in tears. There were 81 children (all uninvited) under 16 years of age. The kids took over the dance floor, pestered the band and played in the restrooms. It was a disaster.

Please, Ann, tell your readers kids don't belong at weddings. If parents can't afford a sitter they should all stay home. — Glad I Said It

Dear Glad: So am I. I hope somebody out there listens.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Erma Bombeck

Eight Hours A Day

Next to the oarsman on a slave ship whose captain wanted to water ski, the most maligned person on the face of this earth is the teenager who has just landed his first full-time job.

No one suffers more and is appreciated less.

Many of these "slaves" have heard stories of men who got up each morning, were fully clothed by 7:00 and on the job by 8:30, but they discarded these as venomous rumors — the kind circulated in Berlin in the 1940s.

My son considers himself a "human sacrifice" on the altar of the Church of the Establishment. He was 15 before we could use the word "employment" in front of him. The word broke his face out and he preferred we spell it. The way he explained it to us on the eve of his marriage to a paycheck. "This is an exercise in group persecution, isn't it? All of you have run the course have to prove that I can hack the 9-5 number, is that it? Okay, you win. If I have to prove that I'm mature, I'll get the dumb full-time J-O-B . . . jjjj . . . jjjoo . . . jooob!"

Maybe a lot of you know my son — or at least have heard of him.

He's the only employed person who has to work all day and then come home and feed himself.

He's the only dedicated teenager in North America to work when the "gang" went tubing down the river one Wednesday afternoon.

He's the first person to ever have half of his paycheck withheld for some service which he has never requested (federal income tax, hospitalizaton, Social Security, etc.). As he stated, "Someone is going to hear about this!"

He stands alone as the only worker who is dominated by a and now before I come of age, I senile boss (age 35) who engages in office brutality by insisting he arrive on time in the mornings, and after lunch.

He's the only full-time worker in the country who has not gained the respect of family and friends for his contribution to labor.

Last Saturday, I tapped him on the shoulder. "Hey, George Meany, out of the sack. It's the crack of noon."

My son rolled over. "I do not believe this is happening to a working person," he said. "All week long, I work five days a week, eight hours a day, and what do I get

"You get all your meals served like a sultan, your bedroom cleaned, your clothes washed and ironed and a full-time old family retainer — me!"

Something tells me I'll have the first kid to retire three years before he has anything to retire from.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Take a look at the North hand only. You are not vulnerable and pass in second seat. Third hand, whose side is vulnerable, opens one heart. Your partner bids two diamonds, dealer three hearts. What should you do?

You are sure that the hand belongs to your opponents. They have a major suit — you have a minor. What do you think they can make?

Four hearts surely, maybe five — possibly six. If you pass or bid just four diamonds they will go about their business cheerily.

Suppose you jump right to five diamonds. This bid is what is called a premature save. You are forcing your opponents to go about blindly in a fog. They can't use Blackwood. They can't make any slam try without actually bidding the slam.

When we watched this hand in a recent rubber-bridge game North made his bid. East studied a long while. He hated to give up game, rubber and 100 honors, but finally made the right decision and doubled.

This way he did get 100 points for setting South. Better than going down one at five hearts, but a far worse result than playing and making four hearts.

Ask the Jacobys

We continue to get questions about the use of the five-club response to a Blackwood four notrump to show either no aces or four.

This variation in Blackwood is standard expert practice and is used by Easley Blackwood himself. The idea is that the Blackwood bidder who has at least one ace will know what the bid means. If he has no aces he should be able to tell that his partner is showing all four.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Dr. Lester Coleman

Can a doctor tell in advance how a nose will come out after plastic surgery? I'm giving this a great deal of thought, but I want to be sure that I don't come out of this with the kind of nose that is so easily recognized as a "nose bob."—Miss T.C., Pa.

Dear Miss C.:

It is almost impossible to draw an exact picture of the nose that will result following cosmetic surgery.

Any attempt to do so may be pre-operatively encouraging, but later could be very disappointing.

In a general way, the outcome of such surgery can be projected. This, of course, depends on the nature of the distortion of the nose and the particular healing capacity of the patient.

Plastic repair of a "hooked" nose seems to be a simple procedure. It is not. When the bump, or the hook, is eliminated many delicate processes are involved in the repair of the flatness that is left. When this is done, the bulbous cartilage of the tip of the nose must then be altered.

These are but a few of the problems that arise and must be corrected by the surgeon. It is obvious, therefore, that an exact post-operative portrait of the nose is enormously difficult to portray.

There was a time, many years ago, when a surgically repaired nose was obvious. Since then, excellent refinements in surgery by highly trained plastic surgeons have helped to eliminate the badge of "nose bob."

It is most important that people contemplating such surgery know the limits of surgical accomplishment. Only in this way can the post-operative emotional disappointment be avoided.

Is a cigarette cough mostly due to the tars in the tobacco? Or is it the smoke itself? — Mr. L.H., La.

Dear Mr. H.:

The tars, the nicotine, and other ingredients in tobacco are toxic substances that irritate the delicate lining of the entire bronchial tree of the lungs.

The smoke, too, is an irritation. We constantly read about the effects of smoke inhalation during a fire. Tobacco smoke may be less concentrated and less noxious, but it is a distinct irritant.

A great many chronic coughers pass this off lightly as a "cigarette cough." Far too many instances of underlying chronic disease of the lung are revealed when the cigarette cougher finally decides to be examined by a doctor.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Welfare Mother 'Hates It'

Dear Ann: Are you courageous enough to print this? These days everyone is yelling that "welfare cheats" are parasites and responsible for high taxes. Well, I'd like to tell you what it's like for someone who has been on welfare for several years.

My husband was badly wounded during the Korean war, lost his leg and shattered his nervous system. He became an alcoholic. We have a 23-year-old daughter, brain-damaged. I must care for her as if she were an infant. I also have an 8-year-old granddaughter living with me. She has cerebral palsy and a host of other problems — speech defect, bad eyes, poor hearing — been ill all of her life. This child's mother was deserted shortly after she gave birth.

I am in poor health, yet I drive my granddaughter to a special school — a total of 52 miles a day. I also manage to raise my own vegetables, can and freeze them to supplement our diet.

How do I like being on welfare? I hate it. I'd give anything if I could earn my way, but I can't. The medical bills are staggering. When I take out my food stamps in the market I get accusatory looks, as if I am stealing bread from the mouths of "taxpayers."

Of course there are lazy bums who won't work, and A.D.C. mothers who are milking the government, but there are also thousands of people like myself who desperately need help. No one speaks for us. Will you? — Thank God I'm In America

Dear Friend: Yes, I will speak for you — by letting you speak for yourself. Here's your letter, and bless you for writing it.

Wedding Woes

Dear Ann Landers: The wedding is over but I'm a wreck. Had we foreseen the trouble, we would have given our daughter a ladder. This letter is "therapy." If I put my gripes in writing I might feel better.

The limit was agreed on — 300 people — 150 from each side. We ended up with 225 from our side alone.

As soon as the invitations were in the mail we began to get calls from friends and relatives telling us, "You forgot So-and-So. They are hurt. Invite them right away."

The responses began to trickle in. When we invited "Mr. and Mrs." some replied, "We're bringing our daughter and son-in-law." Or, "Of course you know we can't leave Mother home . . ."

Four days before the wedding we had NOT heard from half the people. I got on the phone. (Ann Landers says you're supposed to call the clods if they don't R.S.V.P.)

I was told, "Of course we'll be there. We figured you'd know."

ANN LANDERS

(One card came back, "Sorry we can't make it." No signature.)

At the reception our daughter was in tears. There were 61 children (all uninvited) under 16 years of age. The kids took over the dance floor, pestered the band and played in the restrooms. It was a disaster.

Please, Ann, tell your readers kids don't belong at weddings. If parents can't afford a sitter they should all stay home. — Glad I Said It

Dear Glad: So am I. I hope somebody out there listens.

Eight Hours A Day

Next to the oarsman on a slave ship whose captain wanted to water ski, the most maligned person on the face of this earth is the teenager who has just landed his first full-time job.

No one suffers more and is appreciated less.

Many of these "slaves" have heard stories of men who got up each morning, were fully clothed by 7:00 and on the job by 8:30, but they discarded these as venomous rumors — the kind circulated in Berlin in the 1940s.

My son considers himself a "human sacrifice" on the altar of the Church of the Establishment. He was 15 before we could use the word "employment" in front of him. The word broke his face out and he preferred we spell it. The way he explained it to us on the eve of his marriage to a paycheck, "This is an exercise in group persecution, isn't it? All of you have run the course have to prove that I can hack the 9-5 number, is that it? Okay, you win. If I have to prove that I'm mature, I'll get the dumb full-time J-O-B . . . jjjj . . . jjooo . . . jooob!"

Maybe a lot of you know my son -- or at least have heard of him.

He's the only employed person who has to work all day and then come home and feed himself.

He's the only dedicated teenager in North America to work when the "gang" went tubing down the river one Wednesday afternoon.

He's the first person to ever have half of his paycheck withheld for some service which he has never requested (federal income tax, hospitalizaton, Social Security, etc.). As he stated, "Someone is going to hear about this!"

He stands alone as the only worker who is dominated by a senile boss (age 35) who engages in office brutality by insisting he arrive on time in the mornings, and after lunch.

He's the only full-time worker in the country who has not gained the respect of family and friends for his contribution to labor.

Last Saturday, I tapped him on the shoulder. "Hey, George Meany, out of the sack. It's the crack of noon."

My son rolled over. "I do not believe this is happening to a working person," he said. "All week long, I work five days a week, eight hours a day, and what do I get

"You get all your meals served like a sultan, your bedroom cleaned, your clothes washed and ironed and a full-time old family retainer — me!"

Something tells me I'll have the first kid to retire three years before he has anything to retire from.

Take a look at the North hand only. You are not vulnerable and pass in second seat. Third hand, whose side is vulnerable, opens one heart. Your partner bids two diamonds, dealer three hearts. What should you do?

You are sure that the hand belongs to your opponents. They have a major suit — you have a minor. What do you think they can make?

Four hearts surely, maybe five — possibly six. If you pass or bid just four diamonds they will go about their business cheerily.

Carter Is Unwelcome Present

Ford An Underdog On Birthday

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — He began his 64th year today as an underdog, slicing a birthday cake that urged him to "Give 'em Hell, Jerry."

The birthday boy is Gerald Ford. The unnamed "'em" mentioned on the cake, could be Ronald Reagan or Jimmy Carter or both. Carter becomes the Democratic presidential nominee tonight and polls show he leads Fordhl in surveys gauging their relative popularity with voters.

President Ford was to take his semi-annual physical today, with electrocardiogram and standard lab tests by his personal physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash and that crimped an early birthday celebration.

Ford was the pre-game star at Tuesday night's baseball All-Star game and the celebration of his birthday began on the flight home from Philadelphia. Ford's staff brought out a birthday cake with five candles and the legend suggesting the presidential campaign of Harry Truman, an incumbent underdog who won.

Ford, confronted with the birthday cake, was reminded that he should not be eating prior to a physical exam. Turning to Lukash, Ford asked, "Couldn't it be postponed for 24 hours?" Lukash firmly shook his head in the negative.

So Ford cut the cake and passed pieces out to people on the plane. He did not eat a slice himself.

Meanwhile, the Federal Election Commission released figures Tuesday that showed Reagan is raising more money and spending more money than Ford in the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Reagan's forces for the six months ending June 30 collected almost $13.2 million in contributions and federal matching funds, the reports show. The campaign spent about $13.1 million.

Ford's campaign for the same period has attracted slightly more than $11 million and spent $10.9 million.

Biologists Hunting Cause Of Fish Kill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Biologists expect an answer within a week in their efforts to learn why thousands of fish died when the Muskegon River was treated chemically to kill the eel-like lamprey.

But for now, the massive fish-kill remains a mystery although restocking of the stream is about to begin.

"I think we're going to come up with something," John Scott of the Department of Natural Resources' fisheries division said when asked Tuesday about chances of solving the mystery.

Scott said a fullscale review of the entire chemical treatment is under way. Tests are being made to learn if something in the water reacted with the chemical to cause the killing.

He would not estimate how many fish died but conceded some deaths "primarily among suckers," are normal during such treatments.

Still, Scott contended the treatment administered last month by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is "one of the best controlled chemical treatments I've ever seen."

Bill Gaylord, head of the service's Ludington office, conceded there is "little doubt" the treatment somehow caused the massive fish kill.

He said the number of dead fish was unusual as was the fact more died downstream where the chemical concentrations were lowest.

Carter Is Unwelcome Present

Ford An Underdog On Birthday

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — He began his 64th year today as an underdog, slicing a birthday cake that urged him to "Give 'em Hell, Jerry."

The birthday boy is Gerald Ford. The unnamed "'em" mentioned on the cake, could be Ronald Reagan or Jimmy Carter or both. Carter becomes the Democratic presidential nominee tonight and polls show he leads Fordhl in survaeys gauging their relative popularity with voters.

President Ford was to take his semi-annual physical today, with electrocardiogram and standard lab tests by his personal physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash and that crimped an early birthday celebration.

Ford was the pre-game star at Tuesday night's baseball All-Star game and the celebration of his birthday began on the flight home from Philadelphia. Ford's staff brought out a birthday cake with five candles and the legend suggesting the presidential campaign of Harry Truman, an incumbent underdog who won.

Ford, confronted with the birthday cake, was reminded that he should not be eating prior to a physical exam. Turning to Lukash, Ford asked, "Couldn't it be postponed for 24 hours?" Lukash firmly shook his head in the negative.

So Ford cut the cake and passed pieces out to people on the plane. He did not eat a slice himself.

Meanwhile, the Federal Election Commission released figures Tuesday that showed Reagan is raising more money and spending more money than Ford in the race for the GOP presidential nomination.

Reagan's forces for the six months ending June 30 collected almost $13.2 million in contributions and federal matching funds, the reports show. The campaign spent about $13.1 million.

New Budget Cuts Trooper Training

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The director of the Michigan State Police says the department doesn't have enough money to conduct any trooper training schools next fiscal year.

"The legislature did not make any allowances for filling vacancies or projected vacancies," Col. George Halverson said Tuesday.

Halverson said under the $62.9 million department budget bill now on the governor's desk, the department will leave unfilled 100 current vacancies in sworn personnel positions and will not be able to fill another 60 it is expected to have in the coming fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

He said the department now has 1,961 sworn personnel.

The bill as it passed the legislature is $4 million more than the department got for the current fiscal year, but is half a million below what Gov. William Milliken recommended. In addition, the department must absorb recently approved $1,000 salary boosts for troopers.

Halverson said he feels the funding was low because legislators were concerned about the effectiveness of several of the department's narcotics programs. "I do not feel that was warranted," he added.

Next year's budget means "Our services will be reduced. The number of officers available for patrol will be fewer," he added.

He said the department is polishing a new procedure aimed at reducing the amount of time officers spend writing reports so that they can be available for more patrol time. Also, he said, the department has been authorized to add several clerks, which will "relieve us from some of the typing chores now done by troopers and detectives."

The department has notified the state Civil Service department that the 90th Trooper Training School scheduled for next January, and any subsequent schools, won't be conducted during the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, and the civil service department has cancelled any future testing for the 90th Trooper Training School.

The number of training schools varies each year, but Capt. Gerald Hough, commanding officer of the department's executive division, said that for the past several years about two schools have been run annually. The schools are held several miles west of Lansing near the state secondary complex.

The 90th Trooper Training School, originally scheduled for last September, has hit several snags. The department was hit with two suits — one from a Lansing man who filed a reverse discrimination suit charging he was passed over by the State Police and Civil Service department as the State Police academy attempted to recruit more minorities.

The other was a suit by the federal government which claimed the department discriminated against minorities.

Michigan's Oldest Delegate To Pass Next Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Weideman, Michigan's oldest delegate to the Democratic National Convention, says she won't come back for another one.

"This is not unity. It's conformity," she said Tuesday from the floor of the convention, the first one she's attended.

"You can have unity with friendly disagreement. But I don't like to see them trying to keep people in line," said Mrs. Weideman, 72, a retired school teacher from Dearborn.

She celebrated her birthday Monday, the opening day of the convention, with dinner in one of New York's French restaurants. "Then I was bored all evening until Barbara Jordan spoke," she said.

Tuesday's session was boring too, she said, except for Hubert Humphrey's speech to the convention.

But basically, she said, "They all say the same thing — jobs, old people, young people ..."

Mrs. Weideman, a die-hard supporter of Morris Udall, said she'd come back in four years only if "there's an issue or an exciting candidate."

Jimmy Carter, she says, "is not exciting to me."

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI is scheduled to leave the Vatican on Thursday for a two-month stay at the papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo.

Troopers Help Crack Alleged Cocaine Ring

DETROIT (AP) — Federal narcotics agents assisted by Michigan State Police undercover men have penetrated a cocaine smuggling ring that agents say has brought several million dollars worth of the drug into the eastern and midwestern United States.

Six arrests Sunday, including that of a Columbian man described as a major cocaine smuggler, climaxed a fivemonth investigation that stretched from Michigan to the British West Indies, officers said.

Seized in the arrests on the West Indies island of Antigua were 25 pounds of 80 to 90 per cent pure cocaine. Federal agents estimated the drugs would be worth $7.5 million after being cut for street sale.

The shipment, officers said Tuesday, was destined for the East Coast of the U.S., with 10 pounds to be sent on to Michigan.

Among the four men and two women arrested, all Columbian nationals, was a man described by officers as a major cocaine "broker."

Lt. Clifford Murray of the Michigan State Police narcotics division said the man, Juan Toro Perez, would buy the drug from Columbian production points, arrange for its shipment, and be responsible for its delivery to this country, where other drug rings took over sales.

Teaming up for the investigation were federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents based in Miami, agents from the Detroit office of the FBI, Michigan State Police and Antiguan authorities.

Lt. Murray said state police plainclothes officers penetrated a Michigan drug ring and were hired by the criminals as couriers to pick up the cocaine in Antigua.

DEA official Ted Swift of Miami said Antigua is not a usual site for cocaine smuggling, but was being used as a transfer point.

The six were charged with conspiracy to smuggle drugs into the U.S., and will be indicted by a federal grand jury in Miami, Lt. Murray said.

No Michigan arrests have yet been made, Murray said, but more arrests are expected.

"It's a big operation," DEA's Swift said.

DETROIT (AP) — Federal narcotics agents assisted by Michigan State Police undercover men have penetrated a cocaine smuggling ring that agents say has brought several million dollars worth of the drug into the eastern and midwestern United States.

Six arrests Sunday, including that of a Columbian man described as a major cocaine smuggler, climaxed a fivemonth investigation that stretched from Michigan to the British West Indies, officers said.

Seized in the arrests on the West Indies island of Antigua were 25 pounds of 80 to 90 per cent pure cocaine. Federal agents estimated the drugs would be worth $7.5 million after being cut for street sale.

The shipment, officers said Tuesday, was destined for the East Coast of the U.S., with 10 pounds to be sent on to Michigan.

Among the four men and two women arrested, all Columbian nationals, was a man described by officers as a major cocaine "broker."

Lt. Clifford Murray of the Michigan State Police narcotics division said the man, Juan Toro Perez, would buy the drug from Columbian production points, arrange for its shipment, and be responsible for its delivery to this country, where other drug rings took over sales.

Teaming up for the investigation were federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents based in Miami, agents from the Detroit office of the FBI, Michigan State Police and Antiguan authorities.

Lt. Murray said state police plainclothes officers penetrated a Michigan drug ring and were hired by the criminals as couriers to pick up the cocaine in Antigua.

DEA official Ted Swift of Miami said Antigua is not a usual site for cocaine smuggling, but was being used as a transfer point.

The six were charged with conspiracy to smuggle drugs into the U.S., and will be indicted by a federal grand jury in Miami, Lt. Murray said.

No Michigan arrests have yet been made, Murray said, but more arrests are expected.

"It's a big operation," DEA's Swift said.

If Wurst Is $2 A Quarter-Pound . . .

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the Democrats are debating in New York, the real weighty issues are being discussed this week in Washington.

For instance, how much pig should be in a can of pork and beans? And how much turkey in a frozen dinner? And how many servings does a jar of instant coffee make?

It's the 61st annual Weights and Measures Conference, a gathering of some 500 state and local metrologists from around the country, whose main concern is to make sure consumers aren't ripped off when the country switches to the metric system.

In good convention style, the officials sometimes obfuscate the issues with complicated committee reports that refer to such items as Section S.1.6.5. of Handbook 44.

But what they're really saying is, for instance, that hungry consumers prowling the corner delicatessen should not be faced with little signs that say liverwurst is $2 per quarter-pound. A hurried shopper might find he's paying $8 for a pound of liverwurst because he thought he was being given a price per full pound.

"The primary function of the meeting is to adopt model laws that have been agreed on by those weights and measures officials," said Fred McGehan, spokesman for the group. McGehan said that after the four-day conference, the officials return to their states' weights and measures departments and recommend that such legislation be passed.

If the measurement officials have their way, shoppers will no longer have to guess what they're eating when they buy mystery meat cuts like "patio chops," "breakfast steak" and "paradise roast."

They're recommending that meat cuts have standard identities, such as roast, shoulder, bone-in and boneless.

In considering another model law, the officials are discussing whether the percentage of meat should be listed in frozen dinners.

Another recommendation would require companies to list the number of servings in such products as a jar of instant coffee. Other problems being discussed are softwood lumber. After all, a 2-by-4 is really 1½ inches by 3½ inches. The officials also are pondering uniform labeling of antifreeze and the method of sale for sod and turf.

A Cozy Home On The Moon?

LIVONIA, Mich. (AP) — A plastic-lined cave scooped out of melted lava could make a cozy home for turn-of-the-century pioneers living on the moon.

Not that real-estate agents should rush right out and start signing up moon lots. But Dr. Philip Austin and his colleagues at an innocuous-looking laboratory in Livonia are convinced the average person will be able to live on the moon by the year 2000.

Austin is the president of Space Colonization Industries, Inc. (SCI), whose lab is researching ways to apply spaceage technology to a wide range of industrial problems.

Contrary to popular science-fiction, Austin says, moon residents probably won't eat food squeezed from tubes.

But they probably will breathe oxygen squeezed from lunar rocks.

Austin firmly believes that by the year 2000 travel to the moon will be commonplace. He pegs a roundtrip ticket at $20,000.

He adds plans are being laid for a "Disney World-type" simulated lunar environment to be constructed somewhere in the Detroit area in the future so "everyone will be able to experience the panorama and sensation of space travel."

That facsimile will also give scientists like Austin a chance to check out some of their theories about lunar living before anyone actually moves to the moon.

Reagan Hunting In Ford Territory

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for two of President Ford's strongest states today in his hunt for delegates to the Republican National Convention.

The former California governor hoped to trim Ford's lopsided majorities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania with a series of speeches and private meetings with uncommitted delegates and delegates who might switch from Ford to Reagan.

An Associated Press delegate count shows Ford ahead of Reagan by 33 delegates nationwide, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination for president next month in Kansas City.

Reagan, in a statement issued Tuesday by his campaign headquarters in Washington, said that once the convention begins he will not challenge the credentials of any delegate. He urged Ford to pledge the same in the name of party unity.

"The manner in which we conduct our national convention must give the American people confidence that the Republican party can govern honestly, decently and effectively over the next four years," the statement said.

In a separate development, reports on file with the Federal Elections Commission showed that Reagan's campaign has taken in more money and spent more than the President's.

Reagan's forces, for the six months ending June 30, collected almost $13.2 million, mostly in contributions and federal matching funds, the reports showed. The campaign spent about $13.1 million for the six-month period.

Ford's campaign for the same period attracted slightly more than $11 million, again mostly in contributions and federal matching funds. The President's committee has spent $10.9 million.

New Jersey stands 67 to 0 for Ford in the AP delegate count, and Pennsylvania is 72 to 5, with 25 uncommitted and one for Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

In both states, the delegates are legally uncommitted.

Even a modest switch in those two states could wipe out the President's lead, because the combined GOP delegate total of the other 48 states is 994-893 in Reagan's favor.

Later this week, Ford plans to visit the Connecticut state convention, where he is favored to take most or all of 35 delegates, and Reagan plans to visit Utah, where he is favored to win the last 20 delegates to be selected nationwide.

By the end of the week, Ford could close to within 70 delegates of the nomination, with Reagan close behind.

The claims of the Ford and Reagan campaigns add up to more than the total number of delegates in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a common occurrence.

Syrians Storm Lebanese Town

By FARDUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian forces stormed the town of Baalbek to consolidate their control of eastern Lebanon and fighting raged in the streets, the Palestinian command reported.

A communique said Syrian troops and tanks moved into the outer streets of the Moslem town 24 miles northeast of Beirut on Tuesday after heavy shelling that caused many casualties.

Baalbek straddles the Bekaa valley's main north-south road, which the Syrians need to guarantee direct communications between their forces in northern and southern Lebanon.

It was not reported whether the fighting had reached Baalbek's Roman ruins. They are among the most notable in the Middle East and before the civil war were one of Lebanon's tourist attractions.

A Libyan officer with the Arab League peace force reported that Syrian forces were withdrawing from positions around Sidon, the Moslem port 25 miles south of Beirut, in fulfillment of an agreement with Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud. Palestinian sources said they could not confirm the report.

Jalloud, who has been acting as a mediator for nearly two months, informed Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat on Monday that the Syrians also agreed to pull back from artillery positions threatening Tripoli, the Moslems' biggest city in northern Lebanon, and from Sofar, 20 miles east of Beirut, which controls a mountain pass on the Beirut-Damascus highway. But there was no report of any withdrawal at these points.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan headed for two of President Ford's strongest states today in his hunt for delegates to the Republican National Convention.

The former California governor hoped to trim Ford's lopsided majorities in New Jersey and Pennsylvania with a series of speeches and private meetings with uncommitted delegates and delegates who might switch from Ford to Reagan.

An Associated Press delegate count shows Ford ahead of Reagan by 33 delegates nationwide, 1,032 to 999, with 1,130 needed for the Republican nomination for president next month in Kansas City.

Reagan, in a statement issued Tuesday by his campaign headquarters in Washington, said that once the convention begins he will not challenge the credentials of any delegate. He urged Ford to pledge the same in the name of party unity.

"The manner in which we conduct our national convention must give the American people confidence that the Republican party can govern honestly, decently and effectively over the next four years," the statement said.

In a separate development, reports on file with the Federal Elections Commission showed that Reagan's campaign has taken in more money and spent more than the President's.

Reagan's forces, for the six months ending June 30, collected almost $13.2 million, mostly in contributions and federal matching funds, the reports showed. The campaign spent about $13.1 million for the six-month period.

Ford's campaign for the same period attracted slightly more than $11 million, again mostly in contributions and federal matching funds. The President's committee has spent $10.9 million.

New Jersey stands 67 to 0 for Ford in the AP delegate count, and Pennsylvania is 72 to 5, with 25 uncommitted and one for Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee.

In both states, the delegates are legally uncommitted.

Even a modest switch in those two states could wipe out the President's lead, because the combined GOP delegate total of the other 48 states is 994-893 in Reagan's favor.

Later this week, Ford plans to visit the Connecticut state convention, where he is favored to take most or all of 35 delegates, and Reagan plans to visit Utah, where he is favored to win the last 20 delegates to be selected nationwide.

By the end of the week, Ford could close to within 70 delegates of the nomination, with Reagan close behind.

The claims of the Ford and Reagan campaigns add up to more than the total number of delegates in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, a common occurrence.

Syrians Storm Lebanese Town

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian forces stormed the town of Baalbek to consolidate their control of eastern Lebanon and fighting raged in the streets, the Palestinian command reported.

A communique said Syrian troops and tanks moved into the outer streets of the Moslem town 24 miles northeast of Beirut on Tuesday after heavy shelling that caused many casualties.

Baalbek straddles the Bekaa valley's main north-south road, which the Syrians need to guarantee direct communications between their forces in northern and southern Lebanon.

It was not reported whether the fighting had reached Baalbek's Roman ruins. They are among the most notable in the Middle East and before the civil war were one of Lebanon's tourist attractions.

A Libyan officer with the Arab League peace force reported that Syrian forces were withdrawing from positions around Sidon, the Moslem port 25 miles south of Beirut, in fulfillment of an agreement with Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud. Palestinian sources said they could not confirm the report.

Jalloud, who has been acting as a mediator for nearly two months, informed Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat on Monday that the Syrians also agreed to pull back from artillery positions threatening Tripoli, the Moslems' biggest city in northern Lebanon, and from Sofar, 20 miles east of Beirut, which controls a mountain pass on the Beirut-Damascus highway. But there was no report of any withdrawal at these points.

California Penalizes Big Power Users

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California has adopted a new price structure for household energy that penalizes heavy users and gives a break to the poor on their utility bills.

The "lifeline" formula approved 5 to 0 Tuesday by the state Public Utilities Commission cuts the cost for the minimum amount of electricity and natural gas needed to cook meals, heat and light a home, heat water and refrigerate food.

Above the minimum amounts of gas and electricity, which apply to all utility customers, the price climbs and the unit price goes up the more energy is used. Rates for lifeline amounts of energy will be frozen while rates for greater amounts will be allowed to rise until they are 25 per cent higher.

"It's a complete shift in philosophy, giving lower rates to people who use only a small amount of energy instead of granting substantial discounts to big users," PUC spokesman Eugene Raleigh explained.

Two commission members said they voted for the new rate structure only because it was mandated by the 1975 California legislature.

"There is no such thing as a free lunch," said one, Vernon Sturgeon. He said a result will be that consumers will be paying more for products because of higher utility bills businesses and industries will have to pay.

"It's a cruel hoax," said the other, William Symons Jr.

The new rate formula provides for variation depending on climate and whether a home is all-electric. The PUC said up to 60 different rate arrangements are possible.

The system will be applied as the commission acts in the coming months on a series of rate increase applications from various utility companies, Raleigh said. He estimated the new formula will show up in consumer bills around November.

The new system will replace interim lifeline rates that went into effect eight months ago pending development of the new formula.

Lifeline amounts are plotted to fall short of energy used for air conditioning, domestic well pumping, washers and driers, television sets and small electric appliances.

Teams Start Probing For Bodies Of Miners

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — Maybe now, Kathy Hackworth will be able to go to bed at night without feeling a cold shiver.

Three mine rescue teams were prepared to begin today efforts to retrieve the body of her late husband, Johnny, and the 10 other men buried in a Scotia Coal Co. shaft beneath Big Black Mountain.

The bodies have been there since last March 11 and, for the widows and relatives, the waiting has been hell.

"Lord, yes, it will be easier once they get him out," said Mrs. Hackworth, who lives at nearby Cumberland, Va. "It's pretty tough when you crawl into bed at night and you know he's lying at the bottom of that mine, You're safe and he's down there."

Hartford Sewage Plant Cost Goes Up

HARTFORD — The cost to Hartford city residents for building a proposed replacement sewage treatment plant will be higher now because the townships of Bangor and Hartford are dropping out of the project, Hartford city councilmen were told last night.

Thomas Deneau, project engineer, said that the original plans for the proposed plant estimated the city's share at $206,000.

Now that both townships have indicated they will not participate, the cost to the city for building a new plant has risen to an estimated $331,000, Deneau said.

The cost to Hartford sewer customers will increase by an average of $2.66 per month if the plant is built, Deneau said.

The total cost of the proposed plant and an interceptor to the existing city sewage network was estimated at about $1.7 million. The remainder of the cost would be paid for from state and federal grants.

Initially, the cost of the project had been pegged at $5.6 million to cover the three municipalities.

Deneau, of the St. Joseph engineering firm of Wightman and Associates, said the proposed project originally called for building sewage collection systems in areas of both townships. Those systems would drain into the new Hartford plant for treatment.

However, last night the Bangor township board passed a resolution stating the township will not participate in the project unless ordered to do so by the state water resources commission or unless requested to do so by residents.

The area around Van Auken lake in Bangor township was to be linked to the Hartford system.

Deneau said he had prepared a similar resolution for Hartford township at the request of its board members and action was expected to be taken tonight.

The city of Hartford has been ordered by the state department of natural resources to begin construction on either improvements to its existing plant or a new plant by July, 1977, Deneau said.

Deneau said plans were drawn for a new plant because it would be cheaper to build a new one than it would be to correct pollution violations at the existing plant.

He said the plant would be designed so it could be readily expanded later if the townships decide to link up to it.

Councilmen scheduled a public meeting for Monday, July 19, to further consider the matter. Deneau said he would ask the council at that meeting to approve a preliminary study his firm has completed on the sewer project. That study must be approved before the city can apply for state and federal grants to help finance the cost of drafting construction plans for the new treatment plant.

Councilmen said they would schedule public hearings on the project before they give their approval to go ahead with the actual design of the project.

In other areas, the council said it would turn over complaints about an apartment building to its attorney. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stuart, 111 South Haver street, complained about the two-apartment building located at 106 South Haver. The couple claimed that 14 people living in the two apartments were sharing one bathroom; that dogs were running loose on the property; that sidewalks in front of the house were broken; that excessive noise came from the apartments and that there was garbage on the property.

Theodore Johnson, East Oak street, appeared again before the council to complain about neighbors parking on his property. Johnson made similar complaints at the council's June 28 meeting.

Proposal Just Being Studied

WATERVLIET — A proposal to control boating and water skiing on Paw Paw lake was not acted upon Monday night by the Watervliet township board as indicated in a story regarding the board meeting published yesterday. The proposal was taken under study. Supervisor Lyle Woodworth said preparation of an ordinance for approval by the DNR was one of several options being considered. Other options include revising the township's 1960 ordinance on lake safety, working in conjunction with Coloma township on a joint ordinance and contacting the DNR forits rules and regulations.

Illegal Search Hearing Slated

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — A hearing has been set for July 23 in district court here on a move by state Sen. Basil Brown to suppress evidence in a marijuana possession case.

The hearing will be over Brown's motion not to permit as evidence police charges they found a small amount of marijuana in his car in January 1975.

The Highland Park Democrat, longest-serving member of the Senate, withdrew his plea of no contest to the charge of marijuana possession last week in order to fight the case. His action was prompted by a recent state Court of Appeals ruling on marijuana searches.

Brown's car was stopped in 1975 by an Eaton County deputy who said the car was being driven erratically. A search of the car allegedly turned up a small quantity of marijuana.

Brown, an attorney and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, argued that the stopping and searching were illegal. When those arguments failed to suppress the evidence, he entered a no contest plea.

Brown was to have been sentenced last week, but instead he withdrew his no contest plea to the charges. He said he based his move on a recent Court of Appeals decision that the odor of marijuana alone is not grounds for searching a vehicle.

The July 23 hearing was slated for 1:30 p.m.

Michigan Revises Costs Of Medicaid

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Adults getting hearing, vision and dental services under Michigan's Medicaid program will begin paying part of the cost starting Aug. 1.

Medicaid payment for hearing, vision and dental service was cut Jan. 1 to stretch remaining Medicaid money through June 30. The Legislature two weeks ago appropriated money to begin funding the program again.

Under the revised Medicaid program, each visit for vision services will cost the participant $2 and each dental visit will cost $3, John Dempsey, state social services director, said today.

Under the new plan, emergency dental work to relieve pain and infection will be included under Medicaid. Previously, these services were covered for persons over 21 only when related to preparation for dentures, Dempsey said.

Denture repair and realignment also will be covered, he said.

New rules also have been adopted to limit the number of times the purchase of eyeglasses will be covered by Medicaid. Previously Medicaid purchased one pair of glasses per recipient in a year. New rules will restrict payment to one pair every two years for persons under 21 and one pair every three years for persons over 21.

Also, a specified degree of sight correction must be called for before Medicaid pays for glasses, Dempsey said.

Publicity Is Issue

ALLEGAN — Possible effects of pre-trial publicity have become a central issue in selection of a jury to sit on the first degree murder trial of accused cop killer Richard Frederick Dixon.

Jury selection started July 6, and Dixon's defense attorney has been calling prospective jurors one-by-one into the Allegan county circuit courtroom to question them about what they have read or heard about the case.

Not all of the 110 prospective jurors have been questioned yet, according to a court spokesman, and no jurors have been impaneled yet.

Dixon, 35, of Detroit, is accused of shooting South Haven Policeman Michael McAllister Jan. 8 in Allegan county's Casco township.

The ex-convict has also been arraigned in federal court on an air piracy charge in connection with the October, 1972, hijacking of an airliner that was forced to fly from Detroit to Cuba.

may be delayed until after the Republican convention in August, union officials say their political workers will start working for Carter this week.

"We're going all out," an AFL-CIO staff official said Tuesday. "It's going to be an efficient, clean political operation without, I suspect, much emotion.

"Of course, if former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is on the ballot, it'll be a holy crusade."

If the federation is four-square behind Carter, it could call on an army of political workers from among 14 million unionists. That, alone, would represent millions of dollars worth of support.

Radio Association To Meet

Firemen Probe 2 BH Blazes

Benton Harbor and Benton township firemen are investigating fires at two vacant houses that occurred early Tuesday and early today.

Township firemen said floors in two rooms at a house at 1240 Vincent court were burned and the entire single family house was damaged by heat and smoke in the 6:17 a.m. blaze. Firemen said it is believed the fire burned several hours before it was noticed. Owner of the house was identified by firemen as Dan H. Lee, 1122 East Main street, Benton township.

About 6:30 a.m. today Benton Harbor firemen were called to a house at 562 North Winans street and extinguished two separate blazes, one that started in a mattress in the basement, the other that started in a sofa on the first floor.

Firemen said two rooms, including the kitchen sustained extensive fire damage. The owner had yet been identified, firemen reported.

New Van Buren Annex Opened

PAW PAW — Van Buren county's new $800,000 annex to the courthouse was opened for public inspection for the first time yesterday afternoon. About 40 people, including many county officials, were on hand for the open house and tour of the expansion facility.

The building is scheduled to go into actual use today with the opening of Seventh District court on the main floor. The court was moved into the annex from its crowded area in the old court house building.

The top floor and basement of the 18,000 square foot building remain unfinished. Those floors are to be completed when more construction funds become available to the county. The new building is connected to the old courthouse by an enclosed bridge on the second floor. The main entrance is under the bridge.

Research Ship Delays Visit

The Roger R. Simons, a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency research vessel, has bypassed the Twin Cities, but may be here in August, according to the Coast Guard station in St. Joseph. The Coast Guard reported they were in contact with the 122-foot laboratory ship yesterday by radio and learned the Simons wouldn't visit the Twin Cities this week.

It had been hoped that the Simons might be able to tie up in the Twin Cities harbor for public viewing on either Monday or Tuesday of this week. The Simons was apparently unable to make it Monday because of heavy seas and scheduling problems. The ship was in South Haven yesterday, according to the Coast Guard.

The Simons is currently conducting a survey of the open waters of Lake Michigan to determine if industrial and municipal cleanup programs in the last six years have improved the lake's water quality.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Man Says Would-Be Robber Knifed Him

A Benton township man told Benton Harbor police early today he was cut with a knife by a man who demanded money in an alley near the intersection of Territorial road and Fourth street.

Allen Wesley, 28, of 1973 Union street, was released after treatment for two cuts on his arm at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor. He said the incident occurred about 3:45 a.m. when a man jumped out from behind a building. He said he was cut as he turned and ran from the man. No money was taken, police indicated.

An $800 motorcycle was among three thefts reported to Benton Harbor and Benton township police Tuesday.

William Heeter, 1114 Milton street, told Benton Harbor police his 1974 Kawasaki cycle was taken from the front yard of his residence sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Another theft reported to Benton Harbor police was a .38 caliber revolver from the home of Inez Harvey, 380 Vineyard street.

Benton township police said a portable radio, woman's watch and three rings were reported stolen from the Charles Brown residence, 1640 Ogden avenue, Fairplain. Value of the stolen goods was not reported.

Benton Harbor police said a young man was arrested Tuesday night on charges of being a disorderly person (using profanity) and resisting arrest.

Police said they were called to the 900 block of Pipestone street about 10 p.m. with a report of a disturbance. Police said there was a brief struggle, but no one was injured. Booked at the Berrien county jail was Preston Tillman, Jr., 18, of 607 East Empire avenue.

He said some of the audit's recommendations for new policies were not permitted under federal regulations, and others were "not administratively feasible." But, he acknowledged, "we don't have too much argument with the audit."

Paw Paw Physician Asks Shooting Charge Hearing

PAW PAW — Dr. Timothy P. McManus was arraigned in Seventh District court Tuesday on a warrant charging assault with a deadly weapon against Artie Joe Roy, 31.

McManus was arrested Tuesday afternoon after an alleged shooting incident at his home about 4:20 a.m. Tuesday. No one was injured.

Tuesday's court appearance was the second in as many days for McManus. On Monday, he demanded preliminary examination on a charge of resisting arrest and pleaded innocent to a charge of assaulting his son, Thomas, 21, on July 10. He was released on his own recognizance on both charges.

McManus, a physician, was freed yesterday on $1,000 personal recognizance bond after demanding examination on the charge of a assault with a deadly weapon. A warrant was issued after Roy charged that he had been fired at three times with a shotgun. State police said McManus told them he had been hit in the head with a brick at his home on Red Arrow highway after ordering a man to leave.

Troopers said Roy, 6443 Thelma, also was arrested yesterday. He demanded hearings on charges of resisting arrest and probation violation.

Troopers said they were ordered by District Judge William Buhl to arrest Roy after Roy had called Buhl about 5:30 a.m. in connection wi h the alleged incident at McManus' home. Police said Buhl told them Roy had violated probation by drinking.

Roy was charged with resisting arrest at his apartment when Trooper Michael Bowie took him into custody about 6:30 a.m.

Buhl had placed Roy on two years probation in May, on a charge of resisting arrest March 22 in Hartford.

Oil Spill Cleanup Slated Today On St. Joe River

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

NILES — Cleanup of a fuel oil spill on the St. Joseph river here was scheduled to get underway today, according to a spokesman for the state Department of Natural Resources.

Chester Harvey, district engineer for the DNR's Water Resources commission office in Grand Rapids, said the oil slick extended several miles on the river, north from a point near the Main street bridge in Niles.

Harvey said the oil spilled from the Sycamore street storm sewer outlet on the river in downtown Niles, but the source for the leak had not been determined. Estimates of the spilled oil, described by Harvey as "number six or Bunker C oil," vary from several hundred gallons to several thousand gallons, Harvey said.

The DNR representative said the leak was spotted in Niles yesterday morning, but it was uncertain when the oil spilled into the storm sewer.

Harvey said the sewer outlet was submerged until last weekend and that the oil may have been trapped inside the sewer until the river level dropped below the outlet.

Representatives from the DNR and the federal Environmental Protection agency were on the scene today and attempting to locate points, Harvey said. He said two points would probably be established, somewere in Niles and below an Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. dam in Buchanan.

Harvey said a private contractor would probably be hired to set up booms across the river to catch the oil.

Hartford Sewage Plant Cost Goes Up

HARTFORD — The cost to Hartford city residents for building a proposed replacement sewage treatment plant will be higher now because the townships of Bangor and Hartford are dropping out of the project, Hartford city councilmen were told last night.

Thomas Deneau, project engineer, said that the original plans for the proposed plant estimated the city's share at $206,000.

Now that both townships have indicated they will not participate, the cost to the city for building a new plant has risen to an estimated $331,000, Deneau said.

The cost to Hartford sewer customers will increase by an average of $2.66 per month if the plant is built, Deneau said.

The total cost of the proposed plant and an interceptor to the existing city sewage network was estimated at about $1.7 million. The remainder of the cost would be paid for from state and federal grants.

Initially, the cost of the project had been pegged at $5.6 million to cover the three municipalities.

Deneau, of the St. Joseph engineering firm of Wightman and Associates, said the proposed project originally called for building sewage collection systems in areas of both townships. Those systems would drain into the new Hartford plant for treatment.

However, last night the Bangor township board passed a resolution stating the township will not participate in the project unless ordered to do so by the state water resources commission or unless requested to do so by residents.

The area around Van Auken lake in Bangor township was to be linked to the Hartford system.

Deneau said he had prepared a similar resolution for Hartford township at the request of its board members and action was expected to be taken tonight.

The city of Hartford has been ordered by the state department of natural resources to begin construction on either improvements to its existing plant or a new plant by July, 1977, Deneau said.

Deneau said plans were drawn for a new plant because it would be cheaper to build a new one than it would be to correct pollution violations at the existing plant.

He said the plant would be designed so it could be readily expanded later if the townships decide to link up to it.

Councilmen scheduled a public meeting for Monday, July 19, to further consider the matter. Deneau said he would ask the council at that meeting to approve a preliminary study his firm has completed on the sewer project. That study must be approved before the city can apply for state and federal grants to help finance the cost of drafting construction plans for the new treatment plant.

Councilmen said they would schedule public hearings on the project before they give their approval to go ahead with the actual design of the project.

In other areas, the council said it would turn over complaints about an apartment building to its attorney. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stuart, 111 South Haver street, complained about the two-apartment building located at 106 South Haver. The couple claimed that 14 people living in the two apartments were sharing one bathroom; that dogs were running loose on the property; that sidewalks in front of the house were broken; that excessive noise came from the apartments and that there was garbage on the property.

Theodore Johnson, East Oak street, appeared again before the council to complain about neighbors parking on his property. Johnson made similar complaints at the council's June 28 meeting.

Proposal Just Being Studied

WATERVLIET — A proposal to control boating and water skiing on Paw Paw lake was not acted upon Monday night by the Watervliet township board as indicated in a story regarding the board meeting published yesterday. The proposal was taken under study. Supervisor Lyle Woodworth said preparation of an ordinance for approval by the DNR was one of several options being considered. Other options include revising the township's 1960 ordinance on lake safety, working in conjunction with Coloma township on a joint ordinance and contacting the DNR forits rules and regulations.

Illegal Search Hearing Slated

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — A hearing has been set for July 23 in district court here on a move by state Sen. Basil Brown to suppress evidence in a marijuana possession case.

The hearing will be over Brown's motion not to permit as evidence police charges they found a small amount of marijuana in his car in January 1975.

The Highland Park Democrat, longest-serving member of the Senate, withdrew his plea of no contest to the charge of marijuana possession last week in order to fight the case. His action was prompted by a recent state Court of Appeals ruling on marijuana searches.

Brown's car was stopped in 1975 by an Eaton County deputy who said the car was being driven erratically. A search of the car allegedly turned up a small quantity of marijuana.

Brown, an attorney and chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, argued that the stopping and searching were illegal. When those arguments failed to suppress the evidence, he entered a no contest plea.

Brown was to have been sentenced last week, but instead he withdrew his no contest plea to the charges. He said he based his move on a recent Court of Appeals decision that the odor of marijuana alone is not grounds for searching a vehicle.

The July 23 hearing was slated for 1:30 p.m.

Michigan Revises Costs Of Medicaid

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Adults getting hearing, vision and dental services under Michigan's Medicaid program will begin paying part of the cost starting Aug. 1.

Medicaid payment for hearing, vision and dental service was cut Jan. 1 to stretch remaining Medicaid money through June 30. The Legislature two weeks ago appropriated money to begin funding the program again.

Under the revised Medicaid program, each visit for vision services will cost the participant $2 and each dental visit will cost $3, John Dempsey, state social services director, said today.

Under the new plan, emergency dental work to relieve pain and infection will be included under Medicaid. Previously, these services were covered for persons over 21 only when related to preparation for dentures, Dempsey said.

Denture repair and realignment also will be covered, he said.

New rules also have been adopted to limit the number of times the purchase of eyeglasses will be covered by Medicaid. Previously Medicaid purchased one pair of glasses per recipient in a year. New rules will restrict payment to one pair every two years for persons under 21 and one pair every three years for persons over 21.

Also, a specified degree of sight correction must be called for before Medicaid pays for glasses, Dempsey said.

Publicity Is Issue

ALLEGAN — Possible effects of pre-trial publicity have become a central issue in selection of a jury to sit on the first degree murder trial of accused cop killer Richard Frederick Dixon.

Jury selection started July 6, and Dixon's defense attorney has been calling prospective jurors one-by-one into the Allegan county circuit courtroom to question them about what they have read or heard about the case.

Not all of the 110 prospective jurors have been questioned yet, according to a court spokesman, and no jurors have been impaneled yet.

Dixon, 35, of Detroit, is accused of shooting South Haven Policeman Michael McAllister Jan. 8 in Allegan county's Casco township.

The ex-convict has also been arraigned in federal court on an air piracy charge in connection with the October, 1972, hijacking of an airliner that was forced to fly from Detroit to Cuba.

may be delayed until after the Republican convention in August, union officials say their political workers will start working for Carter this week.

"We're going all out," an AFL-CIO staff official said Tuesday. "It's going to be an efficient, clean political operation without, I suspect, much emotion.

"Of course, if former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is on the ballot, it'll be a holy crusade."

If the federation is four-square behind Carter, it could call on an army of political workers from among 14 million unionists. That, alone, would represent millions of dollars worth of support.

Chester Harvey, district engineer for the DNR's Water Resources commission office in Grand Rapids, said the oil slick extended several miles on the river, north from a point near the Main street bridge in Niles.

Harvey said the oil spilled from the Sycamore street storm sewer outlet on the river in downtown Niles, but the source for the leak had not been determined. Estimates of the spilled oil, described by Harvey as "number six or Bunker C oil," vary from several hundred gallons to several thousand gallons, Harvey said.

The DNR representative said the leak was spotted in Niles yesterday morning, but it was uncertain when the oil spilled into the storm sewer.

Harvey said the sewer outlet was submerged until last weekend and that the oil may have been trapped inside the sewer until the river level dropped below the outlet.

Representatives from the DNR and the federal Environmental Protection agency were on the scene today and attempting to locate points, Harvey said. He said two points would probably be established, somewere in Niles and below an Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. dam in Buchanan.

Harvey said a private contractor would probably be hired to set up booms across the river to catch the oil.

Police Release Admitted Slayer Of 3 In Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit police Tuesday released a Troy man after questioning him for two days in the Sunday night slayings of three reputed Mafia figures.

Ernest Tom Kanakis, 44, told police he shot the trio in selfdefense after being lured to the Detroit home of Frank Randazzo and ambushed by the men, who tried to stab him to death.

Dead are Randazzo, 62, Joseph Seraguss, 66, of Detroit, and Nick Ditta, 69, of St. Clair Shores. All had been named by police as low-level Mafia figures.

Police released Kanakis on the condition he could be called back to give information in the case.

U.S. Atty. Philip Van Dam said his office is investigating whether Kanakis may have violated his three-year concealed weapons permit by carrying the gun used in the killings to Randazzo's home. The permit is valid for use in Kanakis' home, place of business, or a bank.

Kanakis has six misdemeanor convictions including gambling violations in the last eight years. The law does not refuse gun permits on the basis of misdemeanors.

Earlier reports said the U.S. Organized Crime Strike Force, an arm of Van Dam's office, used its influence to help Kanakis get the gun permit when he was a prosecution witness in a federal trial five years ago.

Van Dam said no one on the strike force staff now was in a position five years ago to know if the force used informal influence to help Kanakis to get a permit.

Kanakis told police he was summoned to a meeting with Randazzo, who accompanied him to the basement of his home on the pretext of having Kanakis dispose of a safe.

Kanakis said Randazzo grabbed him from behind at the bottom of the stairs and told his two accomplices who were hiding in the basement, "OK, kill him."

Kanakis said he was stabbed several times, apparently with an ice pick, but managed to pull his gun and shoot the three men.

Indictment Names Judge

DETROIT (AP) — A Highland Park Municipal judge has been charged with defrauding a Georgia couple of $6,500 by arranging for a man who was not an attorney to represent the couple in a murder case. A federal grand jury handed down the indictment against Judge James D. O'Connell, who stepped down from the bench in April when another grand jury indicted him for receiving and concealing stolen property. U.S. Atty. Gordon Gold said Tuesday O'Connell knew a man named Sterling Brown was not an attorney, but that the judge nonetheless arranged for Brown to represent Claude and Margret Garland. The government says O'Connel and Brown conspired for Brown to represent the couple between June 1974 and February of this year. Brown is an unindicted co-conspirator in the case.

Robert Pagel Joins Oronoko Township Board

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Robert Pagel was named by the Oronoko township board last night to replace trustee Donald Prior, who resigned. Pagel, 51, Red Bud Trail, Berrien Springs, has been township zoning administrator and building inspector for four years.

Prior announced in May that he was leaving his post of vice president for development and public relations at Andrews university, Berrien Springs, to accept a similar post at Loma Linda university, Riverside, Calif. The move triggered his resignation from the trustee post. The resignation was effective last night.

Named to replace Pagel as zoning administrator and building inspector was Thomas Russell, 32, currently township tax assessor. Russell will continue to serve as assessor, in addition to assuming the building inspector and zoning administrator posts. He will be paid a total of $14,300 per year.

In other areas, the board approved creation of a new zoning appeals board, to accompany a new zoning ordinance approved last month. The new ordinance was made in order to conform to state regulations, according to Alex Miskiewicz, township clerk.

Two members of the former appeals board and three new members were named to the new unit. Members from the former board, whose terms will expire this year, are Richard Schinkel and Walter Hildebrand. The three new members are Walter Hildebrand's brother, Ernest, Mrs. Barbara Lee and Phillip Riess.

The board accepted a bid by Wilburn Goosey, Berrien Springs, to paint trim at the township hall at a cost of $320. The board said his bid was the lowest of three submitted.

The board approved extending street lighting to Shaker Heights 2 subdivision and to spot other lights at various locations in the township.

Youth Asks Hearing In Berrien

A 17-year-old Benton Harbor youth accused along with two juveniles of stealing a collection bag from a newspaper girl demanded preliminary examination yesterday in Berrien District court.

Eric Williams, of 166 Apple avenue, was jailed under $1,000 bond after his arraignment on a charge of larceny from a person. He is charged with taking a collection bag containing money from Gayle Bolin, 12, daughter of Benton Harbor Commissioner Arnold and Mrs. Bolin.

She was robbed Saturday evening while riding her bicycle on Colfax avenue, near Kline avenue. She was making collections from newspaper subscribers.

Builder Board Members Picked

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has announced the appointment of William Ohle of Boyne City, and the reappointment of five others, to the state Residential Builders' and Maintenance & Alteration Contractors Board for terms expiring in 1979.

Reappointed were Robert Wheeler of Shelby, Norman Jamieson of Howell, Raymond Dzendzel of Detroit, Mark Jacobson of Southfield and Robert Lussenden of Farmington.

52nd Annual Yacht Race

DETROIT (AP) — Bay View Yacht Club's 52nd annual Port Huron-to-Mackinac race will have fewer of entries than did last year's race. Race committee chairman Constantine Cost said Tuesday that 230 yachts have entered the 259-nautical-mile event, 88 fewer than in 1975. Cost also said the boat Maskar out of the Erie Yacht Club has been named the "scratchboat," or pace-setter for the Saturday event.

Septic Tanks Issue In Allegan

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board of commissioners Tuesday promised an airing of complaints lodged against the health department regarding enforcement of septic tank regulations.

Formal complaints have been filed by two Moline area residents in northeastern Allegan county after they were denied septic tank permits for homes already under construction.

County board members voted to refer the complaints to the county services committee and co-chairman Ralph Sytsma of Leighton township said the committee would meet Wednesday July 21 at 10 a.m. with both county and state health officials for a review of the situation.

County sanitarians for sometime have been urging prospective home builders to check with them about the feasibility of septic tank systems before buying a lot or proceeding with construction.

Under new state and county health codes, there are several areas in the county where soil conditions are such that septic tank permits are not granted. The Moline area is one of them, the sanitarians said.

Sanitarians have reported that instances of septic tank failures are on the increase, due to soil conditions, intensive development and increasing use of garbage disposal units.

They said such failures are not only an inconvenience to homeowners, but pose a threat to purity of drinking supplies as well.

In other areas, commissioners finally acted on a series of requests concerning district court personnel.

Denied were Judge Gary Stewart's requests that the court administrator's salary be set at $13,500, that two new deputy clerk positions be established and one-grade salary increases be granted for the recorder and bailiff.

School Cutting $1 Million

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — The Saginaw Township Board of Education has voted to lay off 55 of its 395 teachers and 25 other district employes in approving program cuts totaling more than $1 million. The cuts, made Monday, eliminate high school athletics and reduce elective courses available to students. They also cut out elementary schools' physical education, reading and music programs, and mean middle school class days will end 50 minutes earlier than last year, officials said. The cuts were made because voters defeated a 6.5 millage request in June, school officials said. They said they plan another millage campaign in November.

The cuts, made Monday, eliminate high school athletics and reduce elective courses available to students. They also cut out elementary schools' physical education, reading and music programs, and mean middle school class days will end 50 minutes earlier than last year, officials said. The cuts were made because voters defeated a 6.5 millage request in June, school officials said. They said they plan another millage campaign in November.

Cass Rejects U.S. Grant For Narcotics Unit

CASSOPOLIS — The Cass county board of commissioners yesterday renewed its battle with Sheriff James Northrop on a new front by voting not to accept a federal grant that partly financed operations of a narcotics unit in the sheriff's department.

The 5 to 4 vote (with two commissioners absent) ended the unit which had been in operation for 18 months. It also meant three deputies stand to lose their jobs. The last funding grant for the unit expired June 30.

Board Chairman Johnie Rodebush of Niles was joined by four other Democrats in voting against accepting the $42,462 federal grant that would have also required $19,983 in county funds to finance unit operations for another 15 months.

Rodebush praised Northrop, a Republican and his department but said "I feel we are neglecting other departments to bail out overspending in the sheriff's department." The 1976 sheriff's budget allots $369,909 for department operations plus another $48,150 for jail and turnkey operations. Those figures do not include funds for the metro crime unit nor the metro narcotics unit.

The vote against the drug investigation unit came less than two weeks after a circuit court judge ordered the board to pay Northrop's wife Barbara $7,922 for back wages for the year she has worked as a jail matron.

The sheriff had sued the board over its alleged interference in operations of the sheriff's department and a dispute between sheriff and board members on who can set hiring policies.

In March, the board also ordered Northrop in a written notice to appear before the board to answer certain question about the operations and property of his department.

While Rodebush said economics was the main reason behind the termination of the unit, the mathematics of it all left some doubt in the mind of at least one commissioner.

Commissioner Robert Powers of Marcellus said that while the county will not now have to spend the $19,983 for its share of the drug unit's cost, the county will have to pay out about $9,900 in unemployment for the three deputies Northrop said he will have to lay off.

Joining Rodebush in voting against the program were Commissioners Rexford Clark of Dowagiac, Mrs. Marjorie Federowski of Vandalia, Steve Toth and Harold Harp, both of Edwardsburg. All are Democrats.

Voting to keep the program were Commissioners Powers, Kenneth Fox of Cassopolis and Mrs. Blanche Trout of Union, all Republicans, and Donald Martin of Niles, a Democrat.

Commissioner Charles Sarabyn, a Republican, and Commissioner Charles Ritter, a Democrat, both of Dowagiac, were absent from the meeting.

SPENDS $9 MILLION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter, who spent nearly $9 million in his apparently successful campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, raised more than one-third of the money last month.

Cass Board Voids Contract; Will Seek Bids

CASSOPOLIS — Heeding their attorney's advice, the Cass county board commissioners yesterday voided the contract it awarded in June for equipping and furnishing of the medical care facility now under construction.

Board members said they will advertise for bids to equip and furnish the 76-bed, $2.5 million center for the aged and infirm after voiding the earlier contract.

On June 29, the board had agreed to buy the equipment and furnishings through the Design House Inc., Farmington, Mich., for $85,000, without taking bids.

But earlier this month, the board's attorney in an opinion sought by the board, declared the board's contract with Design House "void."

Commissioner Robert Powers of Marcellus yesterday suggested the board accept the legal opinion and seek bids.

If we don't, he said, "...someone might call us on the carpet."

Commissioners said they want bids for equipping and furnishing the facility returned by the board's Aug. 10 meeting.

Specifications will be on file in the county clerk's office or with the project architect, Daverman and Associate of Grand Rapids.

In declaring the contract with Design House void, the board's attorney, Donald France of Marcellus said it is a general rule in the state that municipal contracts for work or improvement are to be handled through bidding.

It is a government's duty to accept bids to preserve public money, he told the board in his opinion.

In another area, the board accepted from the state health department a letter declaring that the Cass county health department does not have qualified personnel to conduct inspections of restaurants, septic sewage systems, subdivision planning or public swimming pools.

Board members said the health department presently is trying to hire two qualified environmentalists at an annual salary of $13,500 each.

Carter For 'Zero' Budget

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If there is political appeal to zero-base budgeting in this presidential election campaign, it will be because people are fed up with waste and beaucratic inefficiency. Jimmy Carter hopes so.

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"YOU'RE A MARVEL, HARRY. HOW COULD YOU POSSIBLY GUESS THAT I FURNISHED MY HOUSE WITH GARAGE SALE ITEMS?"

The budgeting approach to governmental programs of "let's return to zero bases and begin again" seems to have instinctive, fundamental appeal to Carter and, he hopes, to millions of voters too.

Upon becoming governor of Georgia in 1970, Carter observed that once a bureaucratic entity had been established, it was almost immune from later scrutiny, often wastefully perpetuating itself like a cancer.

"We changed all of this in my state and devised a procedure whereby future budgets would start from scratch — at zero," he writes in his campaign autobiography. It was the beginning of his version of zero basing.

"I had run on a platform promising reorganization of the state government, stating that there were 146 agencies in all. Our later analysis revealed 300, and we abolished 278 of them!" he writes.

Carter now promises, if elected, to pursue a reorganization of the structure of the federal government and the institution of another zero-base budget system.

A Carter adviser suggests that at the federal level "it would not be a revolution so much as a change — one of degree rather than kind." Whether Carter would be able to zerobase away any agency cannot be foretold, said Michael Wachter, an economic adviser.

The concept is nothing new, having been used by some businessmen for years. It has some support among concerned federal officials too, and years ago was endorsed to some extent by Arthur F. Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman.

Its appeal to the public, however, might never have been so high, at least in Carter's opinion. He sees a public fed up with agencies whose purpose over the years deteriorates from public service to self-preservation.

Ask the fundamental question, he urges; determine if an agency is needed at all.

By John Rocha

The combination of the Bicentennial celebrations, which were marvelous, and the superb cutting-out expedition the Israelis mounted to rescue the hostages from Uganda, pretty much took over the news last week.

Indeed, I suspect Thomas Jefferson's shade of inspiring both — it was under his "imperial" presidency that the United States Navy, without a declaration of war or any such new-fangled constitutional stuff, went in and socked the Barbary pirates. In words attributed to Commodore Samuel Barron, "Don't chase the hornets; burn

While we and the Israelis were celebrating, the Organization of African Unity (OAU) was meeting in Port Louis, Mauritius. It is important to realize that Africa, like Latin America, is a geographical reality but a political fiction. For example, the East Indians run Mauritius, where they were brought originally as contract laborers in the sugar fields. There are whites, blacks, coloreds, Christians, Muslims, animists, nomads, urbanites, radicals and conservatives scattered throughout the continent. Normally the meetings of the OAU are a bit disorganized, but his one was virtually indescribable. It was like a Marx Brothers movie.

On second thought, that is unfair to the Marx Brothers who were intentionally funny. A better analogy would be a unity meeting of left-wing sects where the humor is unintentional — for example, I attended a Socialist meeting in the late 1930s scheduled to last three days, but a Trotskyist faction planned a walk-out after one day and solemnly demanded a special registration fee, one-third of the going rate! Listening to various short-wave accounts of the OAU love-fest left me exhausted. Let me try to set out events in some sequence of order.

First, the Moroccans, Mauritanians, and Algerians are having a private fight over the former Spanish Sahara, which happens to have some of the world's richest phosphate mines. The Spaniards genially turned it over to Morocco and Mauritania and shoved off; the Algerians, who have a short border with the area, set up a Liberation Front Polisario, and since then there have been wars and rumors of wars. The OAU refused to accredit a Polisario delegation, but it sneaked in under Algerian diplomatic cover. Morocco walked out, and Mauritania hung around, making noises, just to keep a watching brief.

Second, everybody rose and by acclamation denounced the white settler regimes. They hardly finished that therapeutic exercise in unity when Ugandan President Idi Amin, a bit startled by events at Entebbe, let fly with a ferocious blast at Israel and Kenya, an alleged co-conspirator. The Kenyan vice president, Daniel Moi, then broke me up: In essence, he said that the Kenyans loved their Ugandan neighbors and it was simply slanderous to accuse Nairobi of complicity with the wicked Israelis. After this dead-pan exercise in spectacular lying, everybody voted against Israeli aggression, and said the United Nations should do something.

The best, however, was yet to come. President Gaafar al-Nimeiry of Sudan came on like gangbusters acusing Libya of sponsoring an abortive coup against him.

He asked OAU support in controlling that madman, Col. Muammer el-Qaddafi. The last item on the BBC news that night was a bland statement that Sudanese and Libyan troops had arrived in Beirut as part of the Arab League peacekeeping force and, as they emerged from their planes, started shooting each other! Anybody for the tall ships? Or, let's go see the Queen.

By John Roche

The combination of the Bicentennial celebrations, which were marvelous, and the superb cutting-out expedition the Israelis mounted to rescue the hostages from Uganda, pretty much took over the news last week.

Indeed, I suspect Thomas Jefferson's shade of inspiring both — it was under his "imperial" presidency that the United States Navy, without a declaration of war or any such new-fangled constitutional stuff, went in and socked the Barbary pirates. In words attributed to Commodore Samuel Barron, "Don't chase the hornets; burn

While we and the Israelis were celebrating, the Organization of African Unity (OAU) was meeting in Port Louis, Mauritius. It is important to realize that Africa, like Latin America, is a geographical reality but a political fiction. For example, the East Indians run Mauritius, where they were brought originally as contract laborers in the sugar fields. There are whites, blacks, coloreds, Christians, Muslims, animists, nomads, urbanites, radicals and conservatives scattered throughout the continent. Normally the meetings of the OAU are a bit disorganized, but his one was virtually indescribable. It was like a Marx Brothers movie.

On second thought, that is unfair to the Marx Brothers who were intentionally funny. A better analogy would be a unity meeting of left-wing sects where the humor is unintentional — for example, I attended a Socialist meeting in the late 1930s scheduled to last three days, but a Trotskyist faction planned a walk-out after one day and solemnly demanded a special registration fee, one-third of the going rate! Listening to various short-wave accounts of the OAU love-fest left me exhausted. Let me try to set out events in some sequence of order.

First, the Moroccans, Mauritanians, and Algerians are having a private fight over the former Spanish Sahara, which happens to have some of the world's richest phosphate mines. The Spaniards genially turned it over to Morocco and Mauritania and shoved off; the Algerians, who have a short border with the area, set up a Liberation Front Polisario, and since then there have been wars and rumors of wars. The OAU refused to accredit a Polisario delegation, but it sneaked in under Algerian diplomatic cover. Morocco walked out, and Mauritania hung around, making noises, just to keep a watching brief.

Second, everybody rose and by acclamation denounced the white settler regimes. They hardly finished that therapeutic exercise in unity when Ugandan President Idi Amin, a bit startled by events at Entebbe, let fly with a ferocious blast at Israel and Kenya, an alleged co-conspirator. The Kenyan vice president, Daniel Moi, then broke me up: In essence, he said that the Kenyans loved their Ugandan neighbors and it was simply slanderous to accuse Nairobi of complicity with the wicked Israelis. After this dead-pan exercise in spectacular lying, everybody voted against Israeli aggression, and said the United Nations should do something.

The best, however, was yet to come. President Gaafar al-Nimeiry of Sudan came on like gangbusters acusing Libya of sponsoring an abortive coup against him.

He asked OAU support in controlling that madman, Col. Muammer el-Qaddafi. The last item on the BBC news that night was a bland statement that Sudanese and Libyan troops had arrived in Beirut as part of the Arab League peacekeeping force and, as they emerged from their planes, started shooting each other! Anybody for the tall ships? Or, let's go see the Queen.

Michigan Men Killed In South

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Michigan men were among four struck and killed Tuesday by a tractor-trailer as they stood beside a disabled pickup truck taking them to work in tobacco fields, police said.

Sgt. D.J. Caudle of the Highway Patrol identified three of the victims as Jerry Crumb, 26, of Detroit; John R. Heynes, about 30, of Kalamazoo; and Clarence Turner, 41 of LaFollette, Tenn. Caudle said the fourth man was not identified.

Milliken Urges 'Sunset' Measure

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has directed his staff to help state lawmakers draft "sunset" legislation which would require the periodic renewal of state programs to keep them operating.

In a letter to House Minority Leader Dennis Cawthorne, R-Manistee, Milliken agreed with Cawthorne's recommendation to study the possibility of including sunset legislation in the next budget.

Milliken said Tuesday his staff would work with Cawthorne in developing such legislation.

Under sunset laws, state programs are given expiration dates. Unless they are reviewed, justified and renewed by the legislature, they would die on those dates.

The concept is aimed at curbing the growth of state operations, eliminating duplication, and weeding out old and outmoded programs which have outlived their usefulness.

"I am interested in a mechanism which would create an incentive for periodic and comprehensive legislative evaluation of existing programs and agencies," Milliken wrote Cawthorne. "I believe that accountability of government in the public eye would be improved by looking seriously at this kind of legislation."

Milliken directed Patrick Babcock, his chief legislative lobbyist, to coordinate executive office involvement with legislative leaders.

WHEN THE British were established in the New York City area, they tempted colonists with the gains to be derived from bartering agricultural products for officially boycotted European goods. A brisk business developed and "London trading" became a dangerous form of supply for the British army and navy, The World Almanac relates.

Lobbyist Hits Oil Break-Up

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A proposed congressional breakup of major oil companies could boomerang and hurt Michigan's auto industry, a lobbyist for Michigan's oil industry said.

"Anything that would increase the influence of OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) should be opposed by the automobile industry and those employed in that industry," Robert Waldron, director of Associated Petroleum Industries of Michigan, said Tuesday.

He said the "long and uncertain process of" divestiture would strengthen OPEC's domination of the petroleum market.

"It was the OPEC oil embargo which caused massive layoffs in the automobile industry in 1973 and 1974," Waldron said. "And to weaken and reduce the size of oil companies by divestiture will certainly weaken our bargaining position with OPEC and eventually lead to higher costs."

Waldron said new government studies show unemployment for the next five to seven years would increase 290,000 to 670,000 if the divestiture bill, to be considered by the Senate later this summer, is passed.

He said the government also estimated that 500,000 jobs, many of which he said were in the auto industry, were lost during the 1973-1974 oil embargo.

Rising Costs Hike Price Of Watervliet Bridge

WATERVLIET — Revised construction estimates have raised costs for Watervliet's Butternut street bridge replacement about $33,257, according to city engineers.

Maurice Rushlow, of Wightman and Associates, St. Joseph, reported to city commissioners last night that construction estimates had to be revised this month and sent to the state highway department before it takes bids on the project July 21.

Originally the bridge replacement cost was $143,211, but rising unit construction costs have raised the total to $176,468, according to Rushlow.

He said state and federal funds under the critical bridge program will pay for $148,269 of the project, with the city's share at $28,199.

The city formally signed the construction contract with the highway department last night.

In other city engineering projects, Rushlow recommended the city apply for an extension and increase of its Environmental Protection Agency grant for a sewer system evaluation survey.

Rushlow said the extension and increase of the the city's current grant from the EPA is needed for smoke testing and television camera surveys throughout the sewer lines because of a serious infiltration and inflow problem that exists in the waste water system.

Commissioner Al Steffens said that city water meters are registering an average 144,000 gallons of water pumped per day, but the Paw Paw lake sewage treatment plant is charging the city for an average of 495,950 gallons received a day.

Steffens said the city has to pay 1.6 cents per gallon for treatment of some 326,000 gallons per day that comes from inflow because of sewer line breaks and holes, building and store drains, and home drain spouts.

He told the commission it would be cheaper to survey and fix the bad lines than to keep paying for treatment of this extra inflow water.

Expected costs of the survey total $43,000 with the state and federal share at $34,400 and the city's share at $8,600. Commissioners took the proposal under study to determine where local funds could be obtained.

Rushlow also reported the new water tank and tower are completed except for painting and commissioners noted they have no immediate plans on whether to maintain the old water tower in case of future needs or have it torn down.

Damages to city streets and sidewalks due to the recent Chesapeake and Ohio train derailment amount to $3,891, according to estimates made by Rushlow and Commissioner William Lushbough.

The commission voted to seek that amount from the C&O along with overtime labor costs for policemen and firemen who worked at the site.

The city's yearly audit was presented by Kovtun and company, St. Joseph, who reported the city was in good shape financially and improving except the city's sewer fund needs more improvement because of continuous high costs coming from the sewer treatment plant charges.

Mayor Arvid Frazier and Steffens warned residents that burning barrels have to be kept behind homes, not on tree lawns and garbage is not to be burned in the barrels.

Commissioner Charles Burress reported that owners of junk cars in the city have been warned or received citations from police to remove the cars.

Based on complaints from residents on the north side of town, the commission agreed to send a letter to the Watervliet Paper company noting their complaints over soot and other alleged pollution.

Three Hurt In Traffic Accidents

One man was hospitalized and two people sustained apparently minor injuries in two traffic accidents Tuesday, Benton township and St. Joseph township police reported.

Benton township police said Herbert Eugene Loper, 33, of 3883 Hartman road, Sodus, sustained a broken hip when his pickup truck veered off Pipestone road north of I-94 and rolled over into a grove of small trees about 10:40 p.m. He was alone in the vehicle and reported in "fair" condition today at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor. Police said he was ticketed for driving left of center.

St. Joseph township police reported drivers of two cars were injured, but did not require hospitalization, when their cars collided on Colfax avenue north of Nickerson avenue shortly before 9 p.m.

The drivers were identified as Dr. Hari N. Malik, 37, of 1362 Desmond street, Lincoln township, and David A. Wilson, 20, of 217 Hoover avenue, Fairplain. Wilson was cited for violation of the basic speed law, police said.

Lawrence Grants Three Pay Raises

LAWRENCE — Pay raises of 25 cents per hour for three village employes were approved by the Lawrence village council last night.

Police Chief Dale Gribler's pay was hiked from $3.75 per hour to $4 per hour, and Patrolman John Beam's pay was hiked from $3.25 per hour to $3.50 per hour. Both raises were retroactive to June 1.

The hourly rate for Phyllis Buechner, office secretary, increased from $3.25 to $3.50, is retroactive to July 1.

In other areas, the council approved a $94 service agreement offered by Dearing Office Machine Co., Benton Harbor, to service the city's calculator and typewriters for one year.

The council announced that police have requested bicycle owners to register the serial numbers of their bikes with the department at no cost. Police said that registration of the numbers will make return of found bicycles easier.

Decatur Twp. OKs $10,000 Payment

DECATUR — The Decatur township board approved a $10,000 payment last night to the Van Buren county road commission for work done on township roads in 1975.

Township Supervisor Joseph Miller told the board a new ruling is now in effect which requires the township to pay at least 75 per cent of the cost of a specific project at the time the work is to be done. Payment could be made later under the old rule.

In other news, several people residing in a private subdivision at Lake of the Woods asked through their spokesman, Mrs. Bea Bukoutz, that work be done on subdivision roads.

They were told however, that because the subdivision was private, the township board could do nothing.

Miller said he would try to set up a meeting with Paul Kaiser, engineer-manager of the county road commission, and residents of the subdivision to see if they can work out a solution.

Miller proclaimed the figst week in August as Decatur township Bicentennial Week. This is planned as a replay of the Decatur Celery festival which was held in Decatur in the 1940s.

Miller reported more vandalism has occurred at the township's Anderson cemetery. Several old heavy monuments have been tipped over and a security light broken, he said.

Buchanan Twp. Appoints Flenar New Fire Chief

BUCHANAN — Richard Flenar was named Buchanan township fire chief by the township board last night.

Flenar, 33, replaces Charles Wesner, who retired last month after serving as fire chief since the department was formed in 1954. Flenar served as assistant fire chief for five years prior to being named chief last night and has a total of 10 years service with the volunteer fire department.

Named to replace Flenar as assistant fire chief was Fred Canfield, 35, a veteran of 10 years with the department.

In other areas, the board was informed that a radio system to alert firemen of fires was delivered yesterday and the units are expected to be in service by the end of next week. The new system will replace a telephone alert system now used by firemen.

Under the new system, the Buchanan police department will monitor the township's fire telephone number and then dispatch township firemen by radio to the scene of the fire. Kenneth Jones, township supervisor, told four residents of the Clear Lake area that they would not be forced to hook into the proposed extention of Buchanan city water and sewer lines to the area. Representatives of the Life Action Youth Ranch, located at the lake, appeared at the board's July 6 meeting to ask what methods should be followed to have the city extend the lines to the ranch.

Rising Costs Hike Price Of Watervliet Bridge

WATERVLIET — Revised construction estimates have raised costs for Watervliet's Butternut street bridge replacement about $33,257, according to city engineers.

Maurice Rushlow, of Wightman and Associates, St. Joseph, reported to city commissioners last night that construction estimates had to be revised this month and sent to the state highway department before it takes bids on the project July 21.

Originally the bridge replacement cost was $143,211, but rising unit construction costs have raised the total to $176,468, according to Rushlow.

He said state and federal funds under the critical bridge program will pay for $148,269 of the project, with the city's share at $28,199.

The city formally signed the construction contract with the highway department last night.

In other city engineering projects, Rushlow recommended the city apply for an extension and increase of its Environmental Protection Agency grant for a sewer system evaluation survey.

Rushlow said the extension and increase of the the city's current grant from the EPA is needed for smoke testing and television camera surveys throughout the sewer lines because of a serious infiltration and inflow problem that exists in the waste water system.

Commissioner Al Steffens said that city water meters are registering an average 144,000 gallons of water pumped per day, but the Paw Paw lake sewage treatment plant is charging the city for an average of 495,950 gallons received a day.

Steffens said the city has to pay 1.6 cents per gallon for treatment of some 326,000 gallons per day that comes from inflow because of sewer line breaks and holes, building and store drains, and home drain spouts.

He told the commission it would be cheaper to survey and fix the bad lines than to keep paying for treatment of this extra inflow water.

Expected costs of the survey total $43,000 with the state and federal share at $34,400 and the city's share at $8,600. Commissioners took the proposal under study to determine where local funds could be obtained.

Rushlow also reported the new water tank and tower are completed except for painting and commissioners noted they have no immediate plans on whether to maintain the old water tower in case of future needs or have it torn down.

Damages to city streets and sidewalks due to the recent Chesapeake and Ohio train derailment amount to $3,891, according to estimates made by Rushlow and Commissioner William Loshbough.

The commission voted to seek that amount from the C&O along with overtime labor costs for policemen and firemen who worked at the site.

The city's yearly audit was presented by Kovtan and company, St. Joseph, who reported the city was in good shape financially and improving except the city's sewer fund needs more improvement because of continuous high costs coming from the sewer treatment plant charges.

Mayor Arvid Frazier and Steffens warned residents that burning barrels have to be kept behind homes, not on tree lawns and garbage is not to be burned in the barrels.

Commissioner Charles Burress reported that owners of junk cars in the city have been warned or received citations from police to remove the cars.

Based on complaints from residents on the north side of town, the commission agreed to send a letter to the Watervliet Paper company noting their complaints over soot and other alleged pollution.

Three Hurt In Traffic Accidents

One man was hospitalized and two people sustained apparently minor injuries in two traffic accidents Tuesday, Benton township and St. Joseph township police reported.

Benton township police said Herbert Eugene Loper, 33, of 3893 Hartman road, Sodus, sustained a broken hip when his pickup truck veered off Pipestone road north of I-94 and rolled over into a grove of small trees about 10:40 p.m. He was alone in the vehicle and reported in "fair" condition today at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor. Police said he was ticketed for driving left of center.

St. Joseph township police reported drivers of two cars were injured, but did not require hospitalization, when their cars collided on Colfax avenue north of Nickerson avenue shortly before 9 p.m.

The drivers were identified as Dr. Hari N. Malik, 37, of 1362 Desmond street, Lincoln township, and David A. Wilson, 20, of 217 Hoover avenue, Fairplain. Wilson was cited for violation of the basic speed law, police said.

BIG LAKE RACE OF 1905

Eastland Won Steamship Duel

By GEORGE VARGO

It was June, 1905, a month when city folks were starting to go on those memorable cruises to South Haven, St. Joseph and Benton Harbor. Those lake excursions were the greatest thing that every happened to resort towns, on this side of the lake.

There was one event that thrilled the folks in South Haven — the big race which was held by the steamers City of South Haven and Eastland.

While South Haven's Sunday store closing forces were girding for a showdown that would come a month later, the two steamers embarked Sunday, June 25, in a contest that still has old lake hands talking. It was hot that year but throngs of cheering folks stood on the bluff and piers at South Haven to watch the finish of the race between the two famous ships which left Chicago that morning.

Ten years later, July 24, 1915, the Eastland capsized in the Chicago river, carrying 821 people to their death, but on the day of the contest she was at the height of her career.

The City of South Haven had a 10-minute start as the Eastland cast off her lines at Chicago and turned her nose towards the Michigan shore. The Eastland's fires did not burn well, since she had been running constantly for over 24 hours, and the constant pressure on her boilers and engines was great.

Up ahead, the City of South Haven was leading by three miles, great columns of smoke rolling from both stacks. The Eastland seemed outdistanced.

She was gradually falling behind the South Haven when the chief engineer ordered her fires cleaned and the ashes removed from her boilers in order to give her a fresh start. While one boiler was being cleaned, the others were kept going to provide whatever steam they could muster.

The Chief watched the gauges while the oilers kept all bearings and pistons working beautifully. It was one happy family — even the coal passers sweating in the hold of the boiler room. After all boilers were cleaned, the "black gang" poured in shovel after shovel of coal, then started placing their bets.

The press had stated it would be difficult to find two steamers so well matched. Newspapers all through the country filed news about the race. South Haven was one of the best advertised resorts on Lake Michigan and was filled with tourists weeks after the race.

As the steamers neared within 30 miles of South Haven, the Eastland finally shot ahead. The passengers went wild with excitment as she passed and as the Eastland neared her destination the cheers from the spectators on shore took up the chorus. It was one wild demonstration on the beach and in town the crowds simply went wild.

Parties were held on the beach and in cottages and homes. It looked like Armistice day in the old town as trains blew their whistles and bells rang, proclaiming it one big holiday.

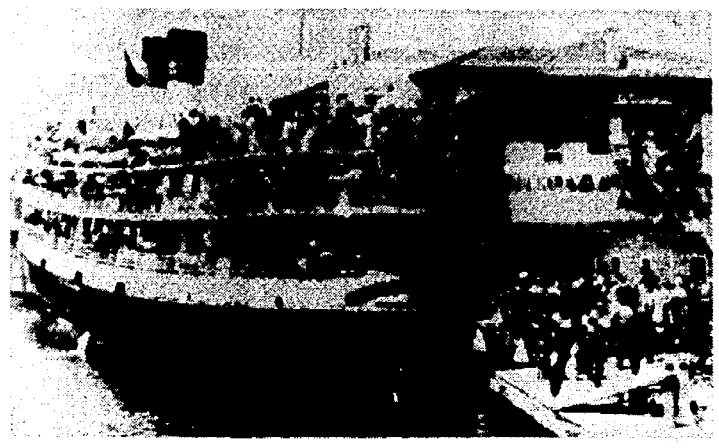

The City of South Haven was beaten, and no amount of pushing could save her. As the victorious Eastland came inside the piers she was a good half mile in the lead. In behalf of the City of South Haven an offer to race again for money or marbles" was printed in the St. Joseph Herald-Press June 28 by G.P. Corey, general manager of the Dunkley-Williams company.

Steamship interests all over the great lakes were interested in the race. R. R. Blacker, of the Michigan Steamship company fired a counter challenge, offering to bet "from $1,000 to $5,000 that the Eastland can beat the South Haven in a fair test anytime," but no reply was made.

The Eastland was built by the Jenks Shipbuilding company at Port Huron. She was 85 feet in length with a 38 foot beam. One hundred staterooms were built on her upper deck, the three lower decks were of steel while the hurricane deck was wood construction. She was noted for her speed and yacht-like lines.

DETROIT (AP) — Officials say the city of Detroit has paid at least $4.3 million since 1973 for court judgments and out-of-court settlements arising from charges of police misconduct and brutality against citizens. Of the 107 settlements and judgments authorized by the city council from January 1973 through March 1976, 96 were settled out of court for a total of $2.6 million and 11 were the result of court verdicts totalling $1.7 million. Most of the payments over the past three years were for incidents occurring in the late 1960's and early 1970's. Some $900,000 was paid out in suits arising from the controversial and now-defunct STRESS unit, a special plainclothes program aimed at fighting street crime.

Accused Extortionist Is Bound Over

Naomi Matrau, 47, of 147 Haywood street, Hartford, was bound over to Berrien Circuit court Tuesday on an extortion charge while a second charge, inciting a witness to commit perjury, was dismissed.

Mrs. Matrau, charged with a Dec. 10 armed robbery in Van Buren county, appeared in Berrien District court because she allegedly threatened a witness in the robbery case June 25 in Berrien's Coloma township.

District Judge Hugh Black bound over Mrs. Matrau on a charge of threatening Louella Poole, of Coloma. He dismissed the second charge because, he said, the prosecution failed to show that Mrs. Matrau attempted to convince Louella Poole to testify falsely.

Also bound over to Circuit court was James E. Tyes, 17, of 158 Townline road, rural Benton Harbor, charged with breaking into a Benton Harbor house April 16. He was jailed on $6,000 bond. A charge of armed robbery against the man was dismissed.

Sentenced yesterday were:

Robert A. Bruner, 23, of 917 Pearl street, St. Joseph, 30 days in jail for contempt of court for failure to appear at a preliminary hearing on charges of larceny in a building. Larceny charges were dismissed yesterday.

Daniel Sellers, 32, of Gary, Ind., $75 fine and costs for possession of an unregistered pistol in his car on July 1 in Benton Township.

David Newton, 22, of 2648 Lincoln avenue, St. Joseph, 45 days in jail for the attempted assault and battery April 27 of Roger Reddel at 2731 Niles avenue, St. Joseph.

Rebecca Sears, 17, of 981 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, $152 for driving under the influence of intoxicants Monday in Berrien Springs.

Lawrence Brian, 22, of Lincoln Park, three days, suspended, and $80 for driving while license suspended Monday in Benton Township.

Eugene Heyn, 18, of 15662 Lakeshore drive, Union Pier, $50 for malicious destruction of property under $100 to a building on Lakeshore drive in Union Pier on April 15.

Alfred Chenault, 23, of 728 N. Main street, Berrien Springs, $50 for use of marijuana at his house on July 8.

Sentenced for the following violations were:

Impaired driving — Ricky D. Jordan, 23, of 5473 Washington avenue, Lincoln township, $75; Timothy L. Rowlee, 22, of 990 Wedgewood, St. Joseph, $102.

Larceny under $100 — Janice Lilly, 19, of 168 Quince drive, Benton township, $125; Kenneth Wilderness, 17, of 856 Ogden avenue, Benton Harbor, $122 or 30 days in jail; Barbara Johnson, 24, of 407 Pavone street, Benton Harbor, 30 days in jail plus $200 or 90 days in jail total.

In other district court action, carrying a concealed weapon charge was dismissed against George Eckwood, 68, of Michigan City, Ind.

GR Man's Bond $50,000

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — Robert Romberger, 29, of Grand Rapids, was bound over to Ionia County Circuit Court Tuesday on charges of kidnaping and first-degree sexual assault. Romberger allegedly abducted a 24-year-old Lyons woman on July 7 as she was walking with her four children near her home. Romberger is being held on $50,000 bond.

Coloma Group Adds Referral Service

COLOMA — A farmer referral service has been added to the services of the North Berrien Community S.O.S. organization, according to Mrs. Barbara Carrothers, executive director. Mrs. Carrothers said the Coloma-based all-volunteer service will assist farmers in the Coloma, Watervliet area to find laborers and aid laborers in the area to find work on surrounding farms throughout the remaining harvesting season. Approximately 72 farms in the area are able to benefit from the free service, said Mrs. Carrothers. Both farmers and farm laborers may contact Mrs. Carrothers at the office, 134 Church street, Coloma, from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Gladiolus Festival Final Meeting Set

COLOMA — The final meeting of the Coloma Gladiolus Festival committee prior to the start of this year's week-long festivities will be held Wednesday, July 21, beginning at 8 p.m., at the Coloma township hall.

Mike Dilts, festival president, announced all organizations, groups, and individuals planning on participating in the festival, Aug. 2-8, should have a representative at the meeting.

The meeting is open to the public and those wishing to assist in the festival activities, Dilts said.

New Phone Service Is Available

BANGOR — A special limited one-party residential telephone service call "Life Line" is now available to customers of the General Telephone company in the Bangor exchange, according to John VerBeek, division manager.

The new program is designed for those who make very limited use of their telephone, but want basic service because of security and emergency purposes.

Life Line customers are limited to 30 calls per month at a rate $2 less than the regular one-party service in an exchange. The cost to Bangor customers will be $6.85 per month. Additional local calls over 30 cost 10 cents each.

The company recently completed installation of the required specialized equipment necessary to provide its service in the Bangor area. The service is expected to be available throughout Michigan by the end of the year.

Rail Crash Kills One; 30 Hurt

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP) — One passenger was killed and 30 others injured in the collision of two commuter trains about 50 yards from the station here.

F.B. St. John, a New York City banker, was in the front of a four-car train that left Grand Central Station in New York at 5:27 p.m. Tuesday for New Canaan, about an hour's run.

As the train approached New Canaan, a six-car train discharged passengers and moved south on the same track toward a siding.

The engineer and trainman apparently saw the crash coming and ran through the train to warn the some 300 passengers, said St. John, 53, of New Canaan.

Accused Extortionist Is Bound Over

Naomi Matrau, 47, of 147 Haywood street, Hartford, was bound over to Berrien Circuit court Tuesday on an extortion charge while a second charge, inciting a witness to commit perjury, was dismissed.

Mrs. Matrau, charged with a Dec. 10 armed robbery in Van Buren county, appeared in Berrien District court because she allegedly threatened a witness in the robbery case June 25 in Berrien's Coloma township.

District Judge Hugh Black bound over Mrs. Matrau on a charge of threatening Louella Poole, of Coloma. He dismissed the second charge because, he said, the prosecution failed to show that Mrs. Matrau attempted to convince Louella Poole to testify falsely.

Also bound over to Circuit court was James E. Tyes, 17, of 158 Townline road, rural Benton Harbor, charged with breaking into a Benton Harbor house April 16. He was jailed on $6,000 bond. A charge of armed robbery against the man was dismissed.

Sentenced yesterday were:

Robert A. Bruner, 23, of 917 Pearl street, St. Joseph, 30 days in jail for contempt of court for failure to appear at a preliminary hearing on charges of larceny in a building. Larceny charges were dismissed yesterday.

Daniel Sellers, 32, of Gary, Ind., $75 fine and costs for possession of an unregistered pistol in his car on July 1 in Benton Township.

David Newton, 22, of 2648 Lincoln avenue, St. Joseph, 45 days in jail for the attempted assault and battery April 27 of Roger Reddel at 2731 Niles avenue, St. Joseph.

Rebecca Sears, 17, of 981 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor, $152 for driving under the influence of intoxicants Monday in Berrien Springs.

Lawrence Brian, 22, of Lincoln Park, three days, suspended, and $60 for driving while license suspended Monday in Benton Township.

Eugene Heyn, 18, of 15662 Lakeshore drive, Union Pier, $50 for malicious destruction of property under $100 to a building on Lakeshore drive in Union Pier on April 15.

Alfred Chenault, 23, of 728 N. Main street, Berrien Springs, $50 for use of marijuana at his house on July 8.

Sentenced for the following violations were:

Impaired driving — Ricky D. Jordan, 23, of 5473 Washington avenue, Lincoln township, $75; Timothy L. Rowlee, 22, of 990 Wedgewood, St. Joseph, $102.

Larceny under $100 — Janice Lilly, 19, of 168 Quince drive, Benton township, $125; Kenneth Wilderness, 17, of 856 Ogden avenue, Benton Harbor, $122 or 30 days in jail; Barbara Johnson, 24, of 407 Pavone street, Benton Harbor, 30 days in jail plus $200 or 90 days in jail total.

In other district court action, carrying a concealed weapon charge was dismissed against George Eckwood, 68, of Michigan City, Ind.

GR Man's Bond $50,000

IONIA, Mich. (AP) — Robert Romberger, 29, of Grand Rapids, was bound over to Ionia County Circuit Court Tuesday on charges of kidnaping and first-degree sexual assault. Romberger allegedly abducted a 24-year-old Lyons woman on July 7 as she was walking with her four children near her home. Romberger is being held on $50,000 bond.

Planners OK Race Track Zoning

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A proposed horse racing track in Three Oaks township advanced a legal lap Tuesday when the Berrien county planning commission belatedly approved a rezoning request.

The rezoning for 480 acres has been approved twice by the Three Oaks township board of trustees, first on June 7 and again on Monday night. The first approval was held to be void, however, because the rezoning request had not been sent to the county planning commission for review as required by law. Commissioners noted the planning commission's zoning and development review committee had recommended approval during a recent committee meeting. The entire commission yesterday approved the zoning change and instructed the planning department staff to assess the impact of the race track on the county.

The township approved the rezoning Monday after trustees were told the request had been submitted to county planners on June 10, and that if the board did not get a response from the county within 30 days the board could assume approval. Planners said the commission's action is not necessarily support of the concept of a race track but supports the right of a township to rezone land.

Commissioners also instructed the planning staff to assess how a race track would affect traffic, sewage and water facilities, and drainage in the area. The rezoning changes the tract, located off US-12 southwest of Three Oaks, from residential and agricultural to a planned unit development.

The $10 to $15 million track still must get approval of the state racing commission before construction can begin. There is also a move by some township residents seeking a township-wide referendum on the race track zoning, and the Berrien County Council of Churches has gone on record opposing the proposed track because of its position against gambling.

In other business, the commission:

—Approved a request that the First National Bank of Watervliet be granted a zoning change to construct a new full-service branch bank in Millburg. The request asks that commercial zoning along Territorial road be extended from its present 50-foot depth to 325 feet. The land which would be rezoned is now agricultural. The Benton township planning commission is still to act on the request, and final action is up to the board of trustees, since the county planning commission is only an advisory group.

—Approved a plan proposed by the Region 4 planning commission to preserve portions of the Grand Mere area, including priorities for acquisition of some land. The proposal is to be submitted to the state Department of Natural Resources.

If all the proposed land is acquired, about 1,000 acres would be preserved with a shoreline of 1.5 miles on Lake Michigan.

Bicentennial Pageant To Have Music

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Instrumental and vocal groups from throughout Berrien county will provide the pre-show fanfare for "Fabulous Fruits of Freedom," Berrien county's Bicentennial pageant. The pageant is July 21 through 24 at the Youth Fair grounds. The pre-show music will start at 8:30 p.m. followed by the pageant at 9:30.

Robert Holtzman, pageant director, and Mrs. Roy Parr, chairman of pre-show entertainment said an all-Berrien county Bicentennial band under direction of Dr. Donald Moley, head of the Lake Michigan college music department, will play each evening of the pageant.

Moley organized the band last spring with nearly 100 Berrien county band students. The band program each night will include the prologue to the pageant "Our Nation Indivisible" with color guards and conclude with the "Star Spangled Banner."

A different vocal group will perform each evening. On Wednesday, July 21, the Bicentennial Singers of Monday Musical Club will entertain with a medley of patriotic songs. Performing on July 22 will the Harbor Lights of New Buffalo.

Barbershop groups will take the stage the next night with the Sing-a-Lings (women) and the Fruit Belt chorus (men). On closing night Saturday, the Four Flags Players of Niles will present a musical revue of the 1920s.

"Fabulous Fruits of Freedom" is a 90-minute show of 20 episodes covering Berrien county from the days of the Indians and French explorers to horticulture and industry. The show has a cast of 400.

The First Lady of the Berrien County Bicentennial pageant will be announced on opening night. She and Miss Corby Dixon, Berrien Bicentennial queen, will be presented each evening during the pageant.

General admission tickets are on sale at various locations in the county — $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Patrons tickets are $6 and reserved seats, $3.50, are available by calling the Bicentennial office, 925-0694.

New Hours For Pageant Headquarters

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Paul McAdams, president of the Berrien County Bicentennial Pageant, Inc., has announced new store and office hours for pageant headquarters. From Saturday through Tuesday the hours will be 1-7 p.m. From July 21 through 24, the headquarters will be open from 1 p.m. until the end of the "Fabulous Fruits of Freedom" performance. The pageant store sells Berrien Bicentennial commemorative items.

Old-Time Costumes Requested

The Berrien County Bicentennial pageant needs the loan of various articles of period dress as costumes for the "Fabulous Fruits of Freedom" pageant.

Mrs. Joseph (Anne) Ondraka, Stevensville, is chairman of the costume committee which is seeking a pilot's leather hat and jacket from the early 1900s, four men's dustcoats, hats, goggles, and eight 1890 band uniforms or reasonable facsimiles.

Mrs. Ondraka has designed the wardrobes for Berrien's Bicentennial Queen and First Lady in the pageant. People with articles to loan may call her at 429-1978.

ORCHARD BUILDINGS DAMAGED: Debris at Tikvah Orchards, landmark farm north of Berrien Springs on US-31-33, continued to smolder this morning after fire extensively damaged or destroyed six migrant cabins and one storage building earlier this morning. Oronoko township firemen said fire of undetermined cause apparently broke out in one-story frame storage building and quickly spread to one and two-room cabins. Owner Eugene Miller said only one of six cabins was occupied and firemen added there were no injuries. Fire was reported about 12:30 a.m. today. No damage estimated had been made by late this morning. (Walter Booth photo)

Many Michigan Delegates Stuck With 'Loser' Udall

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Michigan is likely to cast the largest vote of any state for unsuccessful presidential candidate Morris Udall in convention balloting this evening, with 58 delegates bound to Udall whether they like it or not.

Michigan votes for Jimmy Carter will total 75, but the large Udall vote will be ironic in a state where big labor and Democratic party honchos threw themselves strongly behind Carter.

Only Wisconsin's 25 Udall delegates must also vote for the Arizona congressman because of a state law, similar to Michigan's, that requires a candidate to withdraw his name from the national convention ballot before his delegates are free.

New York State came into the convention with more delegates committed to Udall than in Michigan, but many of those 68 are likely to switch to the winner rather than stick symbolically to Udall.

"I would hope the state delegation has enough feeling for Mo that we would vote for him proudly," Ilene Lengyel told a sparsely-attended Udall caucus Tuesday. None of the delegates seemed too disturbed about having to go with a loser while most of the 3,008 delegates in Madison Square Gardens will have their names on the winner's side.

"There's some feeling a unanimous ballot should be cast for Carter, but none of us feel that so strongly that we would ask Udall to withdraw his name," said James Ramey, a United Auto Workers international representative from Lansing. Ramey was one of two Michigan UAW delegates, among 23, with commitments to Udall.

Udall formally announced Tuesday that he was "removing any legal impediment there may be for Udall delegates to vote their consciences."

But state party chairman Morley Winograd and Ms. Lengyel said the legal impediment for Michigan Udall delegates still remains.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, head of Michigan's Carter force, said he's not bothered that Michigan will have to cast almost half of its votes for Udall, calling it "only a technicality" in what will be a massive national show of support for the former Georgia governor.

Michigan's 73 Carter votes derive from 69 delegates committed to Carter from the start, plus four uncommitted delegates and two Wallace delegates who switched to Carter Monday.

Michigan's delegation will vote almost unanimously for a compromise rule on women's representation in national politics, top female delegates and the party chairman said Tuesday.

Even Debbie Goldberg, an Oak Park housewife who earlier vowed to oppose any rules that did not guarantee women half the delegate spots at the 1980 convention, said she had been convinced the compromise was a good one.

Many other Michigan women, however, in their hearts supported an iron rule requiring the equal split, but said pushing for it would be futile and could splinter the harmony of "this Carter Convention."

Adopted Tuesday in a noisy vote by the Women's Political Caucus, the compromise forged with Jimmy Carter says the party must only "promote" a 50-50 delegate split, but that promoting must begin for the 1978 mid-term party convention.

Delegation chairman Morley Winograd said he expected his delegation to go "almost 100 per cent" for the compromise in a floor vote expected Thursday evening.

Two Michigan men, including an aide to U.S. Sen. Philip Hart, are among those being interviewed for the post of Jimmy Carter's Michigan campaign chairman, Winograd said.

Winograd said Dudley Buffa, Hart's administrative assistant, and Laird Harris, a lieutenant sheriff in Washtenaw County, are being questioned this week by Carter's staff, along with candidates from other states.

Harris also is acting as staff director for the Democratic National Convention's Rules Committee, Winograd said.

Van Buren Seeks Crop Loss Aid

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Staff Writer

PAW PAW — Help appears to be on the way for Van Buren county's economically-battered fruit growers. The county board of commissioners passed a resolution Tuesday calling on Gov. Milliken to declare the county a horticultural disaster area, thus clearing the way for growers to receive low-interest federal loans. Figures released yesterday by A. Robert Earl, Van Buren cooperative extension director, pegged the county's estimated crop losses at $21 million, with damages to apples and grapes placed at $5 million each.

The loans, which have payback periods ranging from one to five years, are at the rate of five per cent interest, Earl said. Following a disaster declaration by the governor, the request goes to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for final approval.

Earl said he had no idea how long the process would take, but noted that many agricultural organizations are applying pressure for quick action.

Damage came because a relatively mild winter and unseasonably warm March caused fruit bud development to be about three weeks ahead of normal and unable to withstand bad spring weather.

The combination of a snowstorm April 28, freezing temperatures on April 9, 12, and 25-29, plus heavy wind damage on May 4-5, killed many buds and caused other damage, the resolution said.

Bee activity, essential to pollination, was also below normal because of cold, wet, and windy conditions.

Earl said the county's losses account for about one-fourth of the state's estimated $100 million crop loss.

Estimated damages, with percentage of crop loss, and dollar loss included: Grapes, 80 per cent, $5 million; blueberries, 40 per cent, $2 million; asparagus, 50 per cent, $1.5 million; plums, 100 per cent, $1 million; pears, 100 per cent, $300,000; tart cherries, 85 per cent, 3 million; peaches, 60 per cent, $500,000; apples, 50 per cent, $5 million; and hay and small grains, 30 per cent, $2.7 million.

In other areas, Commissioner Gerald Rendel announced that a six-month contract impasse with county sheriff's department deputies has been resolved. Deputies have been without a contract since Jan. 1.

Rendel said a binding decision handed down by a Grand Rapids arbitrator granted the deputies substantial pay increases, but upholds the county's bargaining position on most side issues.

Rendel said deputies will now receive a starting salary of $11,025, working up to $12,680 for three years of experience. Under a five per cent increase granted all county employes at the beginning of the year, the starting rate for deputies was $10,525, with a maximum after three years of $11,051.

At the top end of the scale, the increase amounts to about a 20 per cent raise over the $10,500 maximum received by deputies last year, Rendel said.

The agreement, which is retroactive to July 1, covers about nine deputies who are members of Teamsters Local 214. Rendel said he expected command officers to settle for the same rate of pay increase as the deputies.

The arbitrator denied union demands for eye and dental insurance, longevity pay, paid leaves of absence, and increased vacation time for less time in service, the commissioner said.

Commissioners deferred until the preparation of next year's budget, a request by the county social services department for a separate account for child care services.

Edwin Charles, deputy director of services for the department, had asked that commissioners appropriate $8,000 for the fund, which would be matched by an equal amount from the state and federal government.

Charles said the money would enable the DSS to provide direct temporary foster care for some children. Presently, all foster placements must be made through probate court.

Often, Charles said, parents who need to temporarily relinquish custody of their children are hesitant to become involved with the court system. The court is also expensive because it requires the time and services of prosecutors, judges, and attorneys, he said.

Both commissioners Edwin Twitchell and Walter Stickels said they were hesitant about the plan because they felt it would transfer jurisdiction from the court to the DSS.

Commissioners also appointed Twitchell, the Rev. David Cooper of South Haven, Mrs. Patricia Olsen of Decatur, and Atty. Harold Schuitmaker of Lawton as the county's representatives on a joint Human Resources board with Cass and Berrien counties. The board will oversee substance abuse programs in the three counties.

Dawn Patrol Sunday

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven Rotary club will sponsor its annual dawn patrol and fly-in breakfast at South Haven municipal airport Sunday, July 18. Breakfast will be served from 6 a.m. until noon, according to general chairman James Downing. The price will be $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Automobile parking will be $1.

Special attractions will include a 9:30 a.m. performance by the Van Buren Folk dancers, a demonstration of remote controlled airplanes by the Whirlwinds of St. Joseph and displays of new, antique and home-built aircraft. Airplane rides will be available. The event annually attracts an estimated 100 pilots from midwest states. Gifts are given to the pilot flying from the farthest distance, the oldest and youngest pilot and the first arrival after sunrise.

Bainbridge History To Be Distributed

Copies of the 40-page Bainbridge township Bicentennial booklet will be available to township households during the next three Saturdays at the township hall.

Dwight Brink, township Bicentennual committee chairman, said one free copy per household will be distributed from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturdays July 17, 24 and 31.

The booklet, containing 87 pictures, was prepared by the committee in celebration of the nation's 200th birthday and contains a complete history of Bainbridge township.

Township residents must present a circular sent to them in order to pick up their free copy. Additional copies of the booklet may be purchased at a cost of $3 each, said Brink.

According to Brink, approximately 1,300 copies of the booklet have been printed to provide sufficient copies for all township households.

Democrats To Meet Thursday

The Berrien county Democratic committee will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at New Buffalo township hall, according to Marvin LaVanway, county chairman.

Plans for the August convention will be discussed and committees will be assigned times to appear at the Democratic tent at the Berrien County Youth Fair in Berrien Springs.

Hartford Indian Pow Wow Slated Saturday, Sunday

HARTFORD — The second annual all Indian Pow Wow here will be held Saturday and Sunday at Edgewater park, about two miles northeast of Hartford. Joseph Morsaw, Hartford, executive director of American Indian International, said the Pow Wow will open at 10 a.m. both days. There will be Indian foods and crafts for sale and dances will be performed starting at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., Saturday, and at 2 p.m., Sunday. There is also a move by some township residents seeking a township-wide referendum on the race track zoning, and the Berrien County Council of Churches has gone on record opposing the proposed track because of its position against gambling.

In other business, the commission:

—Approved a request that the First National Bank of Watervliet be granted a zoning change to construct a new full-service branch bank in Millburg. The request asks that commercial zoning along Territorial road be extended from its present 50-foot depth to 325 feet. The land which would be rezoned is now agricultural. The Benton township planning commission is still to act on the request, and final action is up to the board of trustees, since the county planning commission is only an advisory group.

—Approved a plan proposed by the Region 4 planning commission to preserve portions of the Grand Mere area, including priorities for acquisition of some land. The proposal is to be submitted to the state Department of Natural Resources.

If all the proposed land is acquired, about 1,000 acres would be preserved with a shoreline of 1.5 miles on Lake Michigan.

Bicentennial Pageant To Have Music

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Instrumental and vocal groups from throughout Berrien county will provide the pre-show fanfare for "Fabulous Fruits of Freedom," Berrien county's Bicentennial pageant. The pageant is July 21 through 24 at the Youth Fair grounds. The pre-show music will start at 8:30 p.m. followed by the pageant at 9:30.

Robert Holtzman, pageant director, and Mrs. Roy Parr, chairman of pre-show entertainment said an all-Berrien county Bicentennial band under direction of Dr. Donald Moley, head of the Lake Michigan college music department, will play each evening of the pageant.

Moley organized the band last spring with nearly 100 Berrien county band students. The band program each night will include the prologue to the pageant "Our Nation Indivisible" with color guards and conclude with the "Star Spangled Banner."

A different vocal group will perform each evening. On Wednesday, July 21, the Bicentennial Singers of Monday Musical Club will entertain with a medley of patriotic songs. Performing on July 22 will the Harbor Lights of New Buffalo.

Barbershop groups will take the stage the next night with the Sing-a-Lings (women) and the Fruit Belt chorus (men). On closing night Saturday, the Four Flags Players of Niles will present a musical revue of the 1920s.

"Fabulous Fruits of Freedom" is a 90-minute show of 20 episodes covering Berrien county from the days of the Indians and French explorers to horticulture and industry. The show has a cast of 400.

The First Lady of the Berrien County Bicentennial pageant will be announced on opening night. She and Miss Corby Dixon, Berrien Bicentennial queen, will be presented each evening during the pageant.

General admission tickets are on sale at various locations in the county — $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Patrons tickets are $6 and reserved seats, $3.50, are available by calling the Bicentennial office, 925-0694.

New Hours For Pageant Headquarters

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Paul McAdams, president of the Berrien County Bicentennial Pageant, Inc., has announced new store and office hours for pageant headquarters. From Saturday through Tuesday the hours will be 1-7 p.m. From July 21 through 24, the headquarters will be open from 1 p.m. until the end of the "Fabulous Fruits of Freedom" performance. The pageant store sells Berrien Bicentennial commemorative items.

Old-Time Costumes Requested

The Berrien County Bicentennial pageant needs the loan of various articles of period dress as costumes for the "Fabulous Fruits of Freedom" pageant.

Mrs. Joseph (Anne) Ondraka, Stevensville, is chairman of the costume committee which is seeking a pilot's leather hat and jacket from the early 1900s, four men's dustcoats, hats, goggles, and eight 1890 band uniforms or reasonable facsimiles.

Mrs. Ondraka has designed the wardrobes for Berrien's Bicentennial Queen and First Lady in the pageant. People with articles to loan may call her at 429-1978.

Bainbridge History To Be Distributed

Copies of the 40-page Baibridge township Bicentennial booklet will be available to township households during the next three Saturdays at the township hall.

Dwight Brink, township Bicentennual committee chairman, said one free copy per household will be distributed from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., on Saturdays July 17, 24 and 31.

The booklet, containing 87 pictures, was prepared by the committee in celebration of the nation's 200th birthday and contains a complete history of Bainbridge township.

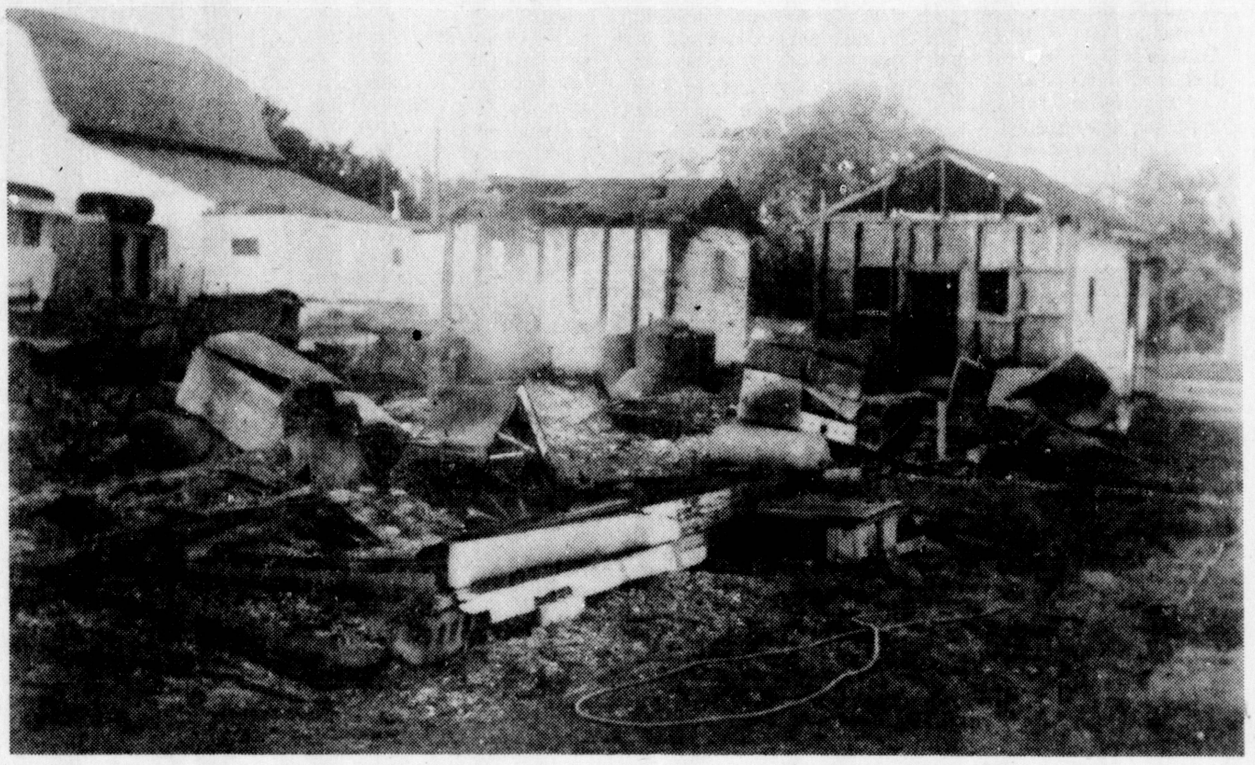

Township residents must present a circular sent to them in order to pick up their free copy. Additional copies of the booklet may be purchased at a cost of $3 each, said Brink.

According to Brink, approximately 1,300 copies of the booklet have been printed to provide sufficient copies for all township households.

Democrats To Meet Thursday

The Berrien county Democratic committee will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. at New Buffalo township hall, according to Marvin LaVanway, county chairman.

Plans for the August convention will be discussed and committees will be assigned times to appear at the Democratic tent at the Berrien County Youth Fair in Berrien Springs.

ORCHARD BUILDINGS DAMAGED: Debris at Tikvah Orchards, landmark farm north of Berrien Springs on US-31-33, continued to smolder this morning after fire extensively damaged or destroyed six migrant cabins and one storage building earlier this morning. Oronoko township firemen said fire of undetermined cause apparently broke out in one-story frame storage building and quickly spread to one and two-room cabins. Owner Eugene Miller said only one of six cabins was occupied and firemen added there were no injuries. Fire was reported about 12:30 a.m. today. No damage estimated had been made by late this morning. (Walter Booth photo)

Many Michigan Delegates Stuck With 'Loser' Udall

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Michigan is likely to cast the largest vote of any state for unsuccessful presidential candidate Morris Udall in convention balloting this evening, with 58 delegates bound to Udall whether they like it or not.

Michigan votes for Jimmy Carter will total 75, but the large Udall vote will be ironic in a state where big labor and Democratic party honchos threw themselves strongly behind Carter.

Only Wisconsin's 25 Udall delegates must also vote for the Arizona congressman because of a state law, similar to Michigan's, that requires a candidate to withdraw his name from the national convention ballot before his delegates are free.

New York State came into the convention with more delegates committed to Udall than in Michigan, but many of those 68 are likely to switch to the winner rather than stick symbolically to Udall.

"I would hope the state delegation has enough feeling for Mo that we would vote for him proudly," Ilene Lengyel told a sparsely-attended Udall caucus Tuesday. None of the delegates seemed too disturbed about having to go with a loser while most of the 3,008 delegates in Madison Square Gardens will have their names on the winner's side.

"There's some feeling a unanimous ballot should be cast for Carter, but none of us feel that so strongly that we would ask Udall to withdraw his name," said James Ramey, a United Auto Workers international representative from Lansing. Ramey was one of two Michigan UAW delegates, among 23, with commitments to Udall.

Udall formally announced Tuesday that he was "removing any legal impediment there may be for Udall delegates to vote their consciences."

But state party chairman Morley Winograd and Ms. Lengyel said the legal impediment for Michigan Udall delegates still remains.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, head of Michigan's Carter force, said he's not bothered that Michigan will have to cast almost half of its votes for Udall, calling it "only a technicality" in what will be a massive national show of support for the former Georgia governor.

Michigan's 75 Carter votes derive from 69 delegates committed to Carter from the start, plus four uncommitted delegates and two Wallace delegates who switched to Carter Monday.

Michigan's delegation will vote almost unanimously for a compromise rule on women's representation in national politics, top female delegates and the party chairman said Tuesday.

Even Debbie Goldberg, an Oak Park housewife who earlier vowed to oppose any rules that did not guarantee women half the delegate spots at the 1980 convention, said she had been convinced the compromise was a good one.

Many other Michigan women, however, in their hearts supported an iron rule requiring the equal split, but said pushing for it would be futile and could splinter the harmony of "this Carter Convention."

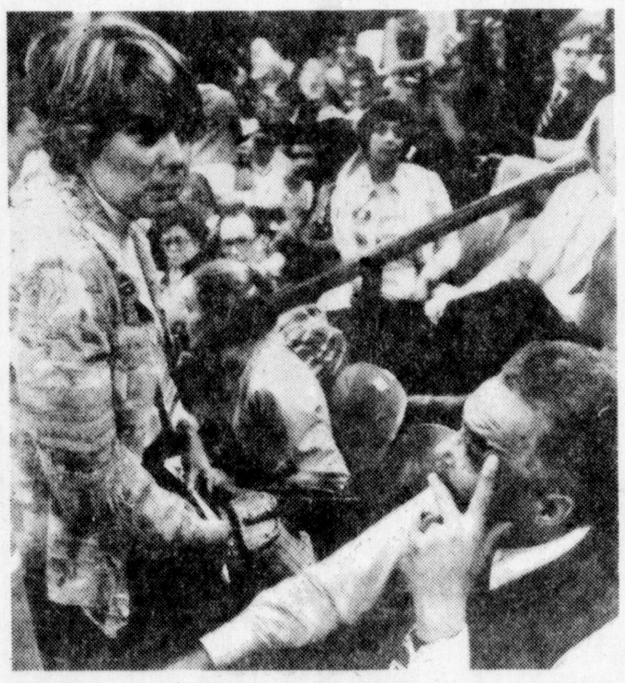

Adopted Tuesday in a noisy vote by the Women's Political Caucus, the compromise forged with Jimmy Carter says the party must only "promote" a 50-50 delegate split, but that promoting must begin for the 1978 mid-term party convention.

Delegation chairman Morley Winograd said he expected his delegation to go "almost 100 per cent" for the compromise in a floor vote expected Thursday evening.

Two Michigan men, including an aide to U.S. Sen. Philip Hart, are among those being interviewed for the post of Jimmy Carter's Michigan campaign chairman, Winograd said.

Winograd said Dudley Buffa, Hart's administrative assistant, and Laird Harris, a lieutenant sheriff in Washtenaw County, are being questioned this week by Carter's staff, along with candidates from other states.

Harris also is acting as staff director for the Democratic National Convention's Rules Committee, Winograd said.

Van Buren Seeks Crop Loss Aid

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Staff Writer

PAW PAW — Help appears to be on the way for Van Buren county's economically-battered fruit growers. The county board of commissioners passed a resolution Tuesday calling on Gov. Milliken to declare the county a horticultural disaster area, thus clearing the way for growers to receive low-interest federal loans. Figures released yesterday by A. Robert Earl, Van Buren cooperative extension director, pegged the county's estimated crop losses at $21 million, with damages to apples and grapes placed at $5 million each.

The loans, which have payback periods ranging from one to five years, are at the rate of five per cent interest, Earl said. Following a disaster declaration by the governor, the request goes to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for final approval.

Earl said he had no idea how long the process would take, but noted that many agricultural organizations are applying pressure for quick action.

Damage came because a relatively mild winter and unseasonably warm March caused fruit bud development to be about three weeks ahead of normal and unable to withstand bad spring weather.

The combination of a snowstorm April 28, freezing temperatures on April 9, 12, and 25-29, plus heavy wind damage on May 4-5, killed many buds and caused other damage, the resolution said.

Bee activity, essential to pollination, was also below normal because of cold, wet, and windy conditions.

Earl said the county's losses account tor about one-fourth of the state's estimated $100 million crop loss.

Estimated damages, with percentage of crop loss, and dollar loss included: Grapes, 80 per cent, $5 million; blueberries, 40 per cent, $2 million; asparagus, 50 per cent, $1.5 million; plums, 100 per cent, $1 million; pears, 100 per cent, $300,000; tart cherries, 85 per cent, 3 million; peaches, 60 per cent, $500,000; apples, 50 per cent, $5 million; and hay and small grains, 30 per cent, $2.7 million.

In other areas, Commissioner Gerald Rendel announced that a six-month contract impasse with county sheriff's department deputies has been resolved. Deputies have been without a contract since Jan. 1.

Rendel said a binding decision handed down by a Grand Rapids arbitrator granted the deputies substantial pay increases, but upholds the county's bargaining position on most side issues.

Rendel said deputies will now receive a starting salary of $11,025, working up to $12,680 for three years of experience. Under a five per cent increase granted all county employes at the beginning of the year, the starting rate for deputies was $10,525, with a maximum after three years of $11,051.

At the top end of the scale, the increase amounts to about a 20 per cent raise over the $10,500 maximum received by deputies last year, Rendel said.

The agreement, which is retroactive to July 1, covers about nine deputies who are members of Teamsters Local 214. Rendel said he expected command officers to settle for the same rate of pay increase as the deputies.

The arbitrator denied union demands for eye and dental insurance, longevity pay, paid leaves of absence, and increased vacation time for less time in service, the commissioner said.

Commissioners deferred until the preparation of next year's budget, a request by the county social services department for a separate account for child care services.

Edwin Charles, deputy director of services for the department, had asked that commissioners appropriate $8,000 for the fund, which would be matched by an equal amount from the state and federal government.

Charles said the money would enable the DSS to provide direct temporary foster care for some children. Presently, all foster placements must be made through probate court.

Often, Charles said, parents who need to temporarily relinquish custody of their children are hesitant to become involved with the court system. The court is also expensive because it requires the time and services of prosecutors, judges, and attorneys, he said.

Both commissioners Edwin Twitchell and Walter Stickels said they were hesitant about the plan because they felt it would transfer jurisdiction from the court to the DSS.

Commissioners also appointed Twitchell, the Rev. David Cooper of South Haven, Mrs. Patricia Olsen of Decatur, and Atty. Harold Schuitmaker ot Lawton as the county's representatives on a joint Human Resources board with Cass and Berrien counties. The board will oversee substance abuse programs in the three counties.

Dawn Patrol Sunday

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven Rotary club will sponsor its annual dawn patrol and fly-in breakfast at South Haven municipal airport Sunday, July 18. Breakfast will be served from 6 a.m. until noon, according to general chairman James Downing. The price will be $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Automobile parking will be $1.

Special attractions will include a 9:30 a.m. performance by the Van Buren Folk dancers, a demonstration of remote controlled airplanes by the Whirlwinds of St. Joseph and displays of new, antique and home-built aircraft. Airplane rides will be available. The event annually attracts an estimated 100 pilots from midwest states. Gifts are given to the pilot flying from the farthest distance, the oldest and youngest pilot and the first arrival after sunrise.

OHIO: Lively Melting Pot Of Middle America

By DAVID B. BOWES

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (NEA) — Well, for one thing, Ohio is "round at both ends and hi in the middle." Get it?

And in case you didn't know, Ohio is the Buckeye State, a mother of presidents and astronauts, and a state that is back on the intellectual map.

In the 1920s, author Sherwood Anderson's "Winesburg, Ohio" was a prototype for narrow Midwestern towns from which bright young people escaped to the glitter and diversity of New York.

By the 1940s, however, this was a back-home state that young women seeking fame and fortune could miss so much that some on Broadway sang "Why, Oh Why, Oh Why Oh, Why Did I Ever Leave Ohio?"

And by the 1960s, when her profusion of colleges and universities was educating students from everywhere, Ohio sadly provided the name—Kent State—by which a generation of seaboard youth will remember that decade.

So much for Ohio's having returned, for better or worse, to the relative mainstream of thought and action. (Unless the mainstream came home to Ohio.)

Pennsylvania's coal fields and

Here's Number 35

Here's No. 35 in a series on some of the colorful people, facts and history of each of America's 50 states. Today's author is editorial page editor of the Cincinnati, Ohio, Post and Times Star.

What is Ohio really like?

Perhaps significantly, I find it easier to explain what and where Ohio is by first explaining what and where it is not. And then taking much of it back.

Ohio is not Michigan, which lies generally north. Pennsylvania to the east, Indiana to the west or Kentucky and West Virginia to the south. Yet Ohio reveals to the diligent observer the best known characteristics of these bordering states.

Michigan's manufacturing cities long have been the symbol of mobile America's industrial might. But northern Ohio plays a major role in keeping Detroit's products rolling. Tires from Akron, carburetors from Toledo.

Blast furnaces were perhaps first to find their way into textbook and encyclopedia illustrations. Allow me to introduce Youngstown, East Liverpool, Steubenville and plenty of sooty eastern Ohio coal country.

Indiana's green farmland and rural villages frequently are chosen for calendar art to depict agrarian simplicity far from crowded pavements. May I present Van Wert, New Philadelphia, Circleville and countless farming communities that pay obeisance to Columbus in Ohio's flat midsection.

Kentucky and West Virginia are mantled with ancient, wooded slopes that soften many states in America's southeastern region. Southern Ohio is similarly adorned from the hillsides overlooking downtown Cincinnati to the remote counties near Athens which the federal government considers part of Appalachia.

What of Ohio's people? Here again, one simply cannot generalize.

A bewhiskered Mennonite farmer driving his horse-drawn carriage to church across one of Ohio's surviving covered bridges has little or nothing in common with a Cleveland factory worker of Eastern European descent heading for for the onion-shaped steeple of his Orthodox church.

A grape grower sitting by his radio on one of Ohio's Lake Erie islands, or a former Tennessean listening to country banjo in a Hamilton saloon, shares only tenuous cultural ties with the German-American merchant seated in Cincinnati's elegant Music Hall as Handel's Messiah or Verdi's Il Trovatore unfolds.

Likewise the hypothetical blue-collar Dayton housewife of political survey fame and the fox-hunting society matron from Chagrin Falls. But all these folk and more are Ohioans. So too, at least during harvest time are migrant Chicanos picking tomatoes and sugar beets.

Of the expanding middle class, however, some observations made 30 years ago by a latter-day De Tocqueville remain essentially true of Ohio.

Graham Hutton, a British diplomat who studied this region in the 1940s and wrote a perceptive book called "Midwest at Noon," would still recognize the "restless tempo of business and social life, and what passes for entertainment and is properly called in the vernacular a 'whirl.'"

But these are traits and conditions Ohio shares with other heartland states, much as they all still stage big summer fairs where I wouldn't be at all surprised if Jeanne Crain and Lon McCallister were to suddenly appear in Technicolor and burst into song.

Only Ohio has the Neil Armstrong Space Museum.

Here at Wapakoneta where Armstrong grew up—former astronaut John Glenn, now Ohio's junior U.S. Senator, hails from Cambridge—proud townsfolk have enshrined the red and yellow Aeronca trainer in which Armstrong learned to fly. And the bicycle he rode to the flying field.

New Detroit Skyline In Making

The glass tower rising (left) on downtown Detroit's riverfront will be the 1,400-room Detroit Plaza hotel. The spectacular 70-story structure is the centerpiece in the city's new Renaissance Center. Deputy's Lawyer Asks For Arrest Of Sheriff

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The attorney for a Washtenaw County sheriff's deputy suspended after a brawl with Sheriff Fred Postill and a jail administrator said Tuesday he is upset because Postill has not been arrested.

Jack J. Garris, representing deputy Basil Baysinger, also said he has not been permitted to look at the final report of a State Police investigation of the incident, which took place Saturday night during a wedding reception at the Chelsea Fairgrounds.

Garris said he had asked County Prosecutor William Delhey to have Postill arrested on assault and battery charges for allegedly striking Baysinger and his wife.

"I can appreciate the delicacy of the situaton," Garris said, "but I think a man (Delhey) should do his job regardless of the repercussions."

Baysinger, who was suspended indefinitely on Monday, has claimed Postill and jail administrator Frank Donley attacked him three different times at the wedding reception. Baysinger said after the third attack Postill drew his gun and threatened to shoot him, but was stopped by Chelsea police.

Postill says he was trying to stop a fight between Baysinger and Donley, and claims Baysinger struck him.

Delhey met Tuesday with lawyers and a State Police investigator to review the report on the incident, but would not comment on the meeting.

Garris said he will take the case to the state attorney general if no warrant is issued for Postill's arrest.

Postill's attorney, R. Michael Stillwagon, was not available for comment Tuesday.

Small Cars Slump; AMC Reports Loss

DETROIT (AP) — Small-car specialist American Motors Corp., caught in the compact car sales slump, reported a $3.9 million net loss in earnings for the third quarter of fiscal 1976, but said the firm showed a profit for the last nine months.

This week's announcement showed third-quarter earnings dropped from the $10.1 million reported for the same quarter a year ago. Net sales for the quarter totaled $602 million, down from $646 million in 1975.

For the nine months ending June 30, AMC reported net earnings of $4.8 million on sales of $1.8 billion, compared with a net loss of $43.2 million on sales of $1.6 billion for the same period last year.

AMC Chairman Roy Chapin Jr. and President William Luneburg said they expected the company to lose money again during the fourth quarter, resulting in a loss for the fiscal year.

Chapin and Luneburg said even though other U.S. automakers are posting healthy profits because of surging auto sales, the surge has come in intermediate and big car sales, while small car sales are down.

Although new car sales in June rose to the highest monthly level since July 1973, AMC reported a 37 per cent drop in sales. In the first half of 1976, AMC sales dropped 18 per cent.

Chapin and Luneburg said while passenger car sales declined, sales of Jeep vehicles and other non-automotive operations continued to exceed those of last year.

AMC reported Jeep sales running at record levels. AM General Corp., a subsidiary which manufactures tactical trucks, postal service vehicles and urban transit buses, is also having a profitable year, the company reported.

"We continue to believe that sales of small cars will increase because the long-run pressures from inflation, energy prices and mandated fuel economy objectives will dictate emphasis on smaller cars," Chapin and Luneburg said.

The AMC executives said they believed sales of 1977 models would increase and, coupled with continuing cost reduction moves, would result in a return to profitable operations in the 1977 fiscal year.

AMC has extended the annual model-changeover plant closings this summer to reduce its inventory. Chapin and Luneburg said the company would also incur substantial added costs during the fourth quarter for restructuring manufacturing operations and introducing the 1977 models.

The company has already announced extended vacations for production workers.

ALL-WOMAN MARINE PATROL: The first all-woman patrol by members of the St. Joseph Coast Guard Auxiliary was conducted Sunday by these three auxiliary members. Preparing to get underway are crew members (from left) Ms. Nancy Green, Hagar township, Mrs. Dee (James) Davis, St. Joseph, and skipper Mrs. Mari (Edward) O'Keefe, Hagar township, whose 40-foot boat they were aboard. Since the St. Joseph auxiliary began patrols six years ago women have been on patrols with men, but never as an all-woman group. The women were on duty between noon and 8 p.m. Sunday and towed in one boat, with four men aboard, that had engine trouble. There are 16 women members of the 65-member St. Joseph auxiliary unit. Auxiliary members volunteer their time and boats to aid the regular Coast Guard at St. Joseph and South Haven in assisting boaters. (Staff photo)

Former Trooper Loses Suit Against Tire Firm

GRAND RAPIDS — A former state police trooper from the Paw Paw post has lost the $750,000 lawsuit he filed as the result of an Oct. 7, 1971, crash of his cruiser and a semi-truck and trailer.

Archie Davies, 33, Paw Paw, had sought the damages from Goodyear Tire & Rubber company. He claimed accident injuries forced him to take medical retirement from the state police in 1974 after eight years of service.

The Kent county circuit court jury returned the "no cause of action" verdict July 5 after a six-day trial, according to a spokesman in the office of Circuit Court Judge George Boucher.

In February, 1974, Davies filed the suit against the Great Lakes Express company of Grand Rapids and the tire and rubber company, alleging negligence, violation of warranty (on tires the truck was using) and liability.

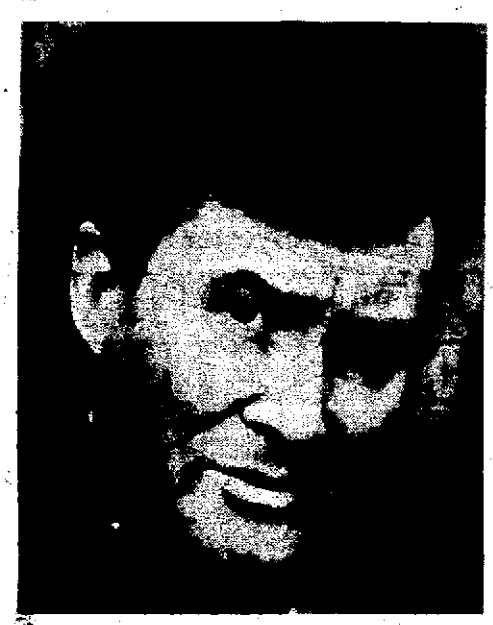

He later dropped claims against the trucking company.

Davies claimed he incurred medical and hospital bills of $22,600 for treatment of injuries and that he still suffers pain because of the injuries.

Davies was a passenger in the cruiser being driven by Trooper Wendell Hagg, then 24, also of the Paw Paw post, when the accident occurred on I-94 east of Mattawan.

The cruiser smashed into the rear end of the semi-truck when the truck pulled towards the shoulder after losing a 12-inch strip of tread from its right front tire.

Hagg has also taken early retirement from the state police. He, too, was hospitalized for injuries suffered in the accident.

NO 'OUTLAW' FAN: Veteran singer Don Gibson says he doesn't believe the "outlaw" cult in country music reflects favorably on the industry. Nevertheless, he regards current country music as better-produced and better-sounding than 20 years ago. (AP Wirephoto)

Cash 'Recycling' Probe Requested

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Two state senators say they want an investigation into charges some county mental health boards have converted state grants into "local" money they later recycle to obtain more state funds.

Democratic Sens. Earl Nelson of Lansing and Joseph Snyder of St. Clair Shores, both Appropriations Committee members say they will seek the investigation.

Auditor General Albert Lee's office has already documented one variation of the recycling scheme in the Genesee County Mental Health Board, and is probing similar schemes in other counties.

The probe currently is centered on the Alpena-based Northeast Michigan Mental Health Board, which allegedly is renting a building for $5 per square foot a year and then accepting large cash donations from the building's owner.

That system, in effect, allows the board to use state funds to pay its rent, then receive portions of those funds back from the landlord and use the money as "local matching funds" when applying for more state money.

"There are a lot of variations on this," said Dick Krieger, the state accountant supervising the audits. "It's going on all over."

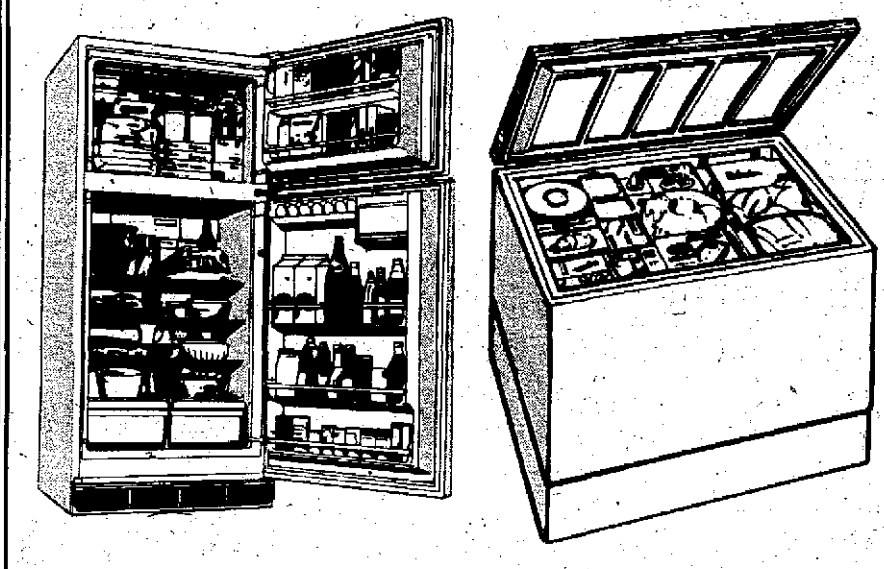

In the Genesee County case, the auditor's office found the county mental health board was "in effect leasing property from itself," by creating the Greater Flint Medical Health Facilities, Inc. to act as its own landlord.

Laugh-In Announcer Hooked On Hollywood Scene

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York TV types speak of Hollywood as a bronzed bin of sunaddled actors, flim-flam artists, truss adjusters and no claim to sanity. But I grew up here and it never seemed crazy.

But just in case, when I hit town I called Gary Owens, the hand-on-the-ear announcer of the old "Laugh-In" show, to ask if Hollywood is the same stable community I knew as a tyke. "Yes, indeed," he said. "It's still the same swell town. It's still true that underneath all this phony tinsel there's real tinsel."

Owens, a native of Mitchell, S.D., is what you'd call a veteran Hollywood observer. He came here 15 years ago, breaking in as a writer and voice on Jay Ward's "Bullwinkle" cartoon show. A top personality at radio station KMPC here for nearly 14 years, he currently is hosting the nighttime version of a syndicated effort called "The Gong Show," scheduled to start on the tube in September.

In the show, a celebrity panel passes judgment on fresh new talent, some of which may strike viewers as unusual, Owens says. "Our first show, for example, has a man dressed in a tire," he noted. "He pours chocolate syrup under his arms, puts spaghetti on his shoulders and stands before a magnifying glass and talks." Nothing unusual there.

Veteran Hollywood observer Owens said other forms of activity here haven't changed much from the old days. TV and movie stars still meet at places like the Brown Derby and Polo Lounge to fib and seek work.

And the kids and geriatrics still are out on Sunset Boulevard, hawking maps to the homes of the stars.

"The kid on my block sells maps to the homes of movie extras," said Owens, marvelling at the lad's ingenuity. "For a slight additional fee, he shows where the extras milled about in an elevator scene." He said although the stars don't appear in public as much as in past years, they do turn out by the droves to watch and appear in celebrity baseball games hosted by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

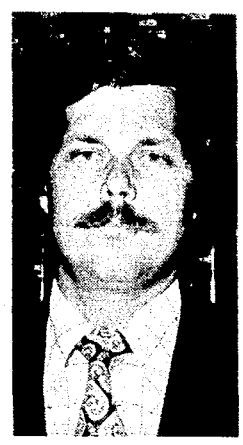

"I usually announce those things and they let me play the last inning," he added. Without insurance? "No problem," the announcer intoned. "My voice is insured by Lloyd's of Tijuana."

Some sartorial changes have occurred in Hollywood, he said. The men here have taken to wearing hats, which in sunny Southern California used to be as common as a door buzzer on a tomb. And because of shows like "Kojak," in which Telly Savalas wears a vest, vests are very big here now, Owens continued. "I've always worn a vest, so I feel the world is catching up with me now," he said. "Of course, I don't wear anything else ..."

The veteran Hollywood observer mused for a minute when asked if he had any advice for the newcomer to the community. "Well," he finally said, "don't ever sit and have breakfast with the Six Million Dollar Man. When he gets hiccups, garage doors open and close all over town."

Staff Changing In Van Buren

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A pair of staff changes in the Van Buren county prosecuting attorney's office have been announced.

Prosecutor Ward (Steve) Hamlin Jr. said he has hired Joseph Milauckas Jr. of Saugutuck as an assistant prosecutor. George S. Dunn, currently chief assistant prosecuting attorney, also announced he would be resigning from the office effective July 31 to go into private practice in South Haven.

Milauckas, 27, completed his undergraduate work at Michigan State university and graduated from the Wayne State university law school in 1975. He and his wife, Nancy, reside at 3550 64th street, Saugutuck.

Milauckas, who will be paid $13,732 annually, began work Monday.

Dunn, who is running against Hamlin and James W. Narregan of Decatur in the Aug. 3 primary for the Republican nomination for prosecutor, said he plans to open an office at 511½ Phoenix, South Haven.

He joined the prosecutor's staff in June, 1974, and was named chief assistant in December, 1974. He and his wife, Mary, have one daughter and reside in Lawton.

The remaining member of the prosecutor's staff is Keith Robinson, 25, Kalamazoo, who joined the office in May as a law clerk. He is scheduled to become a full assistant prosecutor following successful completion of his bar examination, which is slated for the end of this month.

School Board Chief Quits

PARCHMENT, Mich. (AP) — The president of Parchment's school board has quit, blaming other board members for "turning the district over to the superintendent." John M. McCarty announced his resignation in a letter to the board Monday night. McCarty and the suburban Kalamazoo district's superintendent have disagreed on several issues recently.

Sidewalk Bill Is Disputed

GALIEN — A Galien couple Monday night told the Galien, village council that they do not owe the $206 bill the village says is due for tearing out sidewalks at their property six years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wolkins, 309 West First street, said they never received — as did other residents — the notice giving them the chance to tear out their own sidewalks.

The notice went instead to their son, the Wolkins claim. As a result, they told councilmen, village workmen tore out the sidewalk and the village has been trying to collect a $206 bill for the work.

The matter has become more serious now, said Wolkins who is retired, because the village has put the bill on the tax bill and they cannot pay their real estate taxes unless they also pay the bill for the sidewalk work.

The notices sent out to various residents were part of a sidewalk restoration project undertaken by the village.

Wolkins said he had planned to tear out his own sidewalks.

Councilmen said they will try and determine if the village was indeed at fault.

In another area, councilmen said six Bicentennial flags that had lined village streets have been stolen.

Student Breakfast Plan Wins Nod In Bloom'dale

BLOOMINGDALE — On a 5 to 2 vote, the Bloomingdale school board Monday night approved adding a breakfast program for students in the district who need it.

The breakfast program is estimated to cost the district $1,600 for the first year, the board said. The food is to be prepared in the system's main kitchen and then taken to buildings where needed.

Supt. Donald Dragoo said the program was recommended by James Scholley, elementary school principal.

Dragoo said the district's food service equipment would have to be improved in order to provide the breakfast program and funds needed to pay for the improvements would come from federal funds.

Voting to approve were board members Mrs. Kay Johnson, Gerald Doolittle, Fred Rawson, Roger Templer and Ronald Botke. Voting against were Ray Melvin and James Muenzer.

In other areas, the board approved payment of $300 to board member Rawson and $150 to William Pollard, middle school principal, for their participation as members of the board's contract negotiating team. Rawson will negotiate contracts with both teachers and non-certified personnel and Pollard will negotiate teachers' contracts only.

A one-day in-service training program for board members, to cost no more than $300, was approved. Muenzer voted against the proposal, while the other six trustees approved the measure.

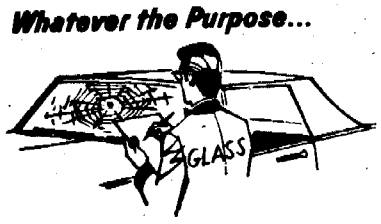

Muenzer told the board he felt its top priority should be the return of full-day schedules at the middle and high schools. Both schools are presently on half-day shifts.

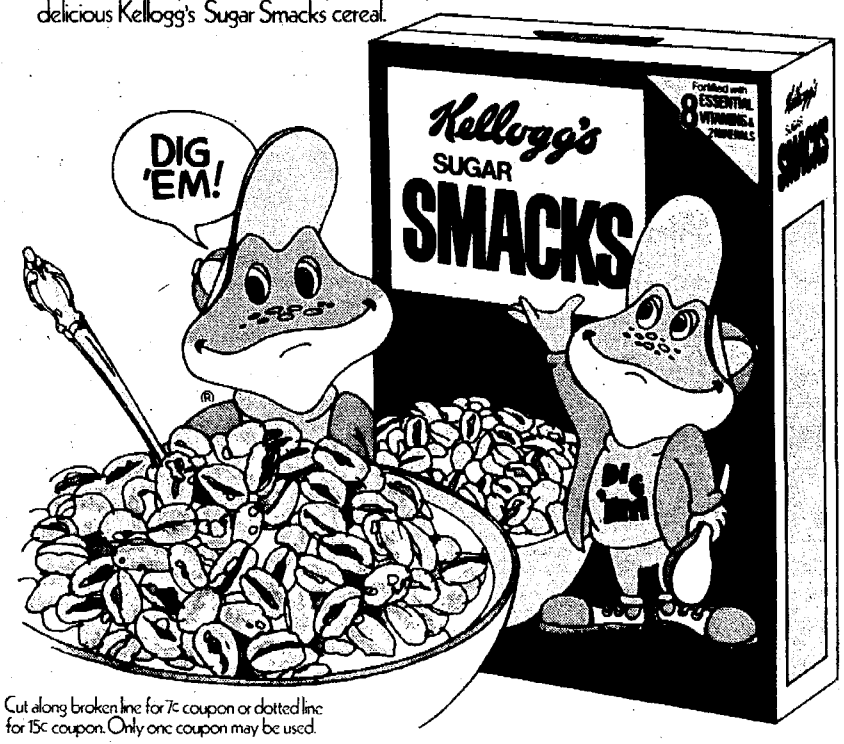

Asking what would be needed to return to the full schedules, Muenzer pledged to work to find the answers. The board took no action on Muenzer's comments, but Dragoo said he would be willing to work with the trustee on his proposal.

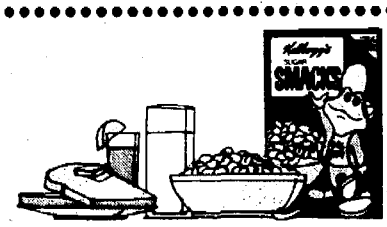

In a reorganizational session, Mrs. Johnson was re-elected president of the board. Other officers elected or re-elected were Doolittle, secretary; Melvin, treasurer, and Rawson, legislative representative.

The board approved a resolution honoring former trustee Nathan Baylor, who did not seek re-election in June, for his service to the board.

Laugh-In Announcer Hooked On Hollywood Scene

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York TV types speak of Hollywood as a bronzed bin of sunaddled actors, flim-flam artists, truss adjusters and no claim to sanity. But I grew up here and it never seemed crazy.

But just in case, when I hit town I called Gary Owens, the hand-on-the-ear announcer of the old "Laugh-In" show, to ask if Hollywood is the same stable community I knew as a tyke. "Yes, indeed," he said. "It's still the same swell town. It's still true that underneath all this phony tinsel there's real tinsel."

Owens, a native of Mitchell, S.D., is what you'd call a veteran Hollywood observer. He came here 15 years ago, breaking in as a writer and voice on Jay Ward's "Bullwinkle" cartoon show.

A top personality at radio station KMPC here for nearly 14 years, he currently is hosting the nighttime version of a syndicated effort called "The Gong Show," scheduled to start on the tube in September.

Fennville Adds Girls Cage Team

FENNVILLE — The Fennville school board Monday night voted to create an eighth grade girls basketball team and eliminate the seventh grade boys basketball team in a trade off aimed at satisfying federal guidelines against sex discrimination.

Supt. James Tackmann said the trade off will result in the same basketball program being available to both boys and girls in seventh and eighth grade.

Seventh grade boys will now have only an intramural basketball program, the same as the girls. Eighth grade boys and girls will have a chance to play on an interscholastic team, he said.

In other areas at Monday's annual reorganization meeting, the board elected Margaret Sessions as treasurer for the 1976-77 year. She replaces Barbara Comeau who did not seek re-election to the board in June. Willis Mullen was re-elected as president for another year, Clifford Paine Jr. as vice president again, and Ernest Curtis as secretary again.

They're Proud Of New State Museum

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — West Virginians were nearly as tidy as they were curious when the $14 million state Science and Culture Center opened this week.

"More than 30,000 people went through the museum Sunday and when the cleaning-up started only one cigarette butt was found," said Norman Fagan, the center director. "This is even more impressive because there aren't any 'No Smoking' signs. We didn't even find a fingerprint on the glass-enclosed exhibits."

Fagan said he's convinced the people were looking on the new building as their own and "are treating it that way."

Druggist Removes Temptation

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Pharmacist Jim Young has mounted an unusual advertising campaign to inform would-be bandits about what drugs he doesn't keep in stock.

Young put up two large signs in his store window recently and said he is going to erect a third one over his store with the same message.

He said it was the only remedy he could think of after being held up twice in 10 days by armed robbers seeking drugs.

"Unless you want to try and fast draw on one of them, there is absolutely nothing you can do, short of suicide, but cooperate," said Young, 37.

Young said he regretted that his decision not to carry narcotics or amphetamines might hurt his business and inconvenience the public.

Ask Your Dentist

By ALFRED E. SEYLER, D.D.S

Q. My husband is being transferred to a fairly large city where we have no relatives or friends. How do I go about finding a good family dentist in our new location? My family dentist here retired recently and I can't ask him for advice.

A. I think your best bet is to contact the dental society in your new city for the names of dentists near to where you live. Neighbors, co-workers, fellow church members or the dental school — if there is one in the area — all are sources of references.

Better that you choose a dentist before you really need him in an emergency. You can waste time and dollars by waiting until the emergency arises. After you have made your appointment for the first visit — keep it — and be early or at least, on time. Look around his reception room — at the receptionist — and perhaps even at the patients who may be waiting!

Once you get in for the initial visit — whether it is with a hygienist or the dentist himself, you'll probably be able to make up your mind whether he's the dentist you want for you and your family.

My experience with the patient relations committee of the Detroit Dental Society tells me that you should always discuss fees and payment plans before you agree to any extensive dental care. I even do that myself when I go to my own dentist!

The American Dental Association has recently compiled a booklet entitled "How to Become A Wise Dental Consumer." I think it's a great little booklet on dental consumerism and I recommend it to you and all of my readers. It is available for 15 cents, which just about covers postage and handling. Write to the American Dental Association, Department K, Attention Peter Goulding, 211 East Chicago avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Q: Read your informative article "All Can Learn to Control Dentures" in the paper recently. In the case of a poor ridge, are there certain exercises one can do to control the tongue and muscles of the cheeks and lips? I would appreciate any information you can give me.

A. Often times a patient who has worn dentures for many years gradually begins to have trouble with speech or mastication because the bone under the denture has "worn away."

Your own dentist or a specialist in dentures could evaluate and determine the real cause of the problem. He may simply advise you to have your dentures relined or he might suggest you have completely new dentures made.

Personally, I haven't been very successful in teaching tongue, cheek or lip muscle control to patients. However, I have found that when a denture is properly fitted to the ridges and is balanced to the movements of mastication, the patient and the muscles of the mouth seem to adapt quite quickly.

Q. What is the status of vitreous carbon tooth implants?

A. Recent investigations of first molar vitreous carbon implants indicate the bone around an implant repaired itself quickly after insertion of the implant.

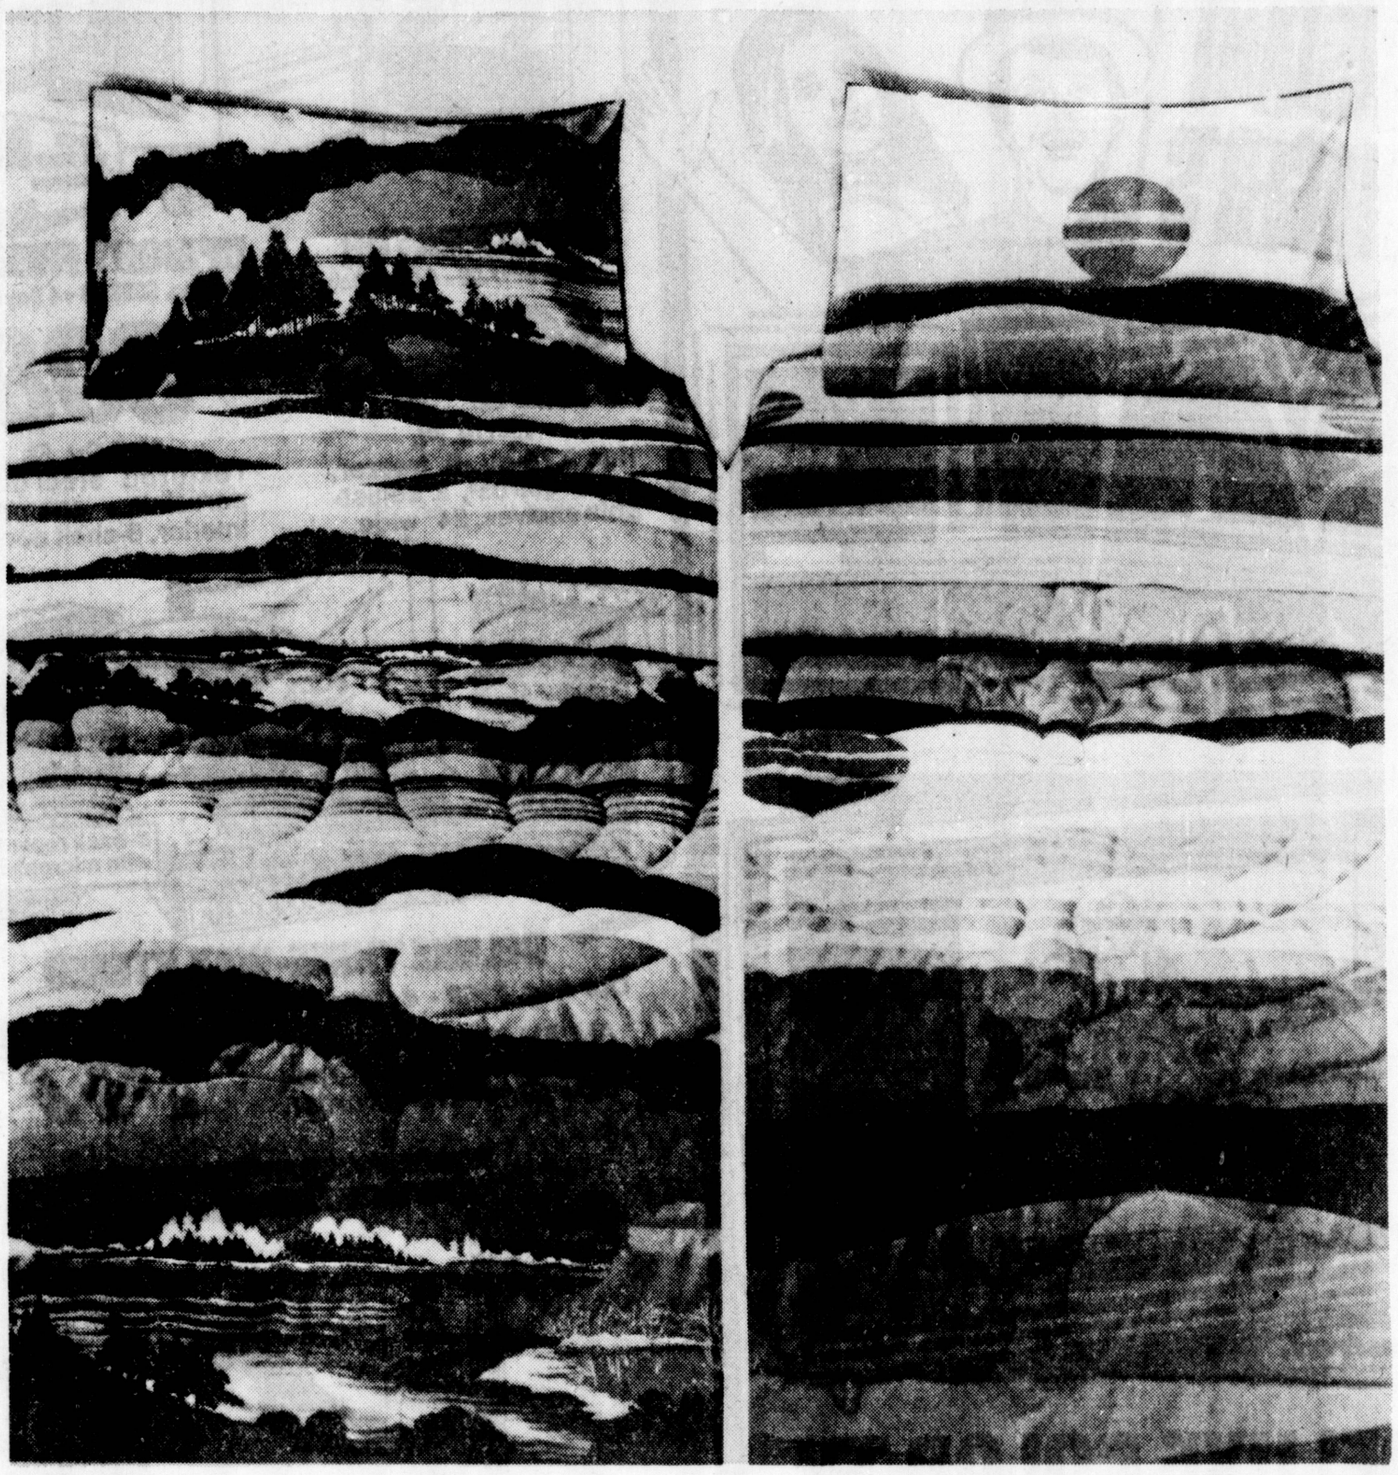

The research work was supported by the National Institute of Dental Health, which recommends no implant materials and considers all implants to be experimental at this point.

That's One Big Turtle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's largest turtle, whose fossils were discovered in Venezuela in 1972, had shells of over seven feet when they roamed the earth — about 5 or 6 million years ago.

Paleontologist Roger C. Wood named his discovery Stupendmys geographicus and said they may have measured 11 feet from nose to tail and weighed three tons.

Is Duchess Of Windsor Honestly 80 Years Old?

THE DUCHESS: Just a little bit older.

ALTMAN: Refused to cut 'Buffalo Bill.'

Q: It's hard to believe that the Duchess of Windsor is only 80. It seems so long ago that she married the Duke. — Y.W., Portland, Ore.

A: The former Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson was reported to be frail but well-preserved on her birthday in her Paris home. But her exact age has often been questioned. It is known that she was born in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., sometime in the 1890's but we understand that no records exist as to the exact date. Some say that when she married the Duke of Windsor in 1937 her age was given as 41 so as to make her a suitable two years younger than the Duke.

Q: Why would a film producer like Dino De Laurentis, known as something of a fast buck operator, buck arty director Robert Altman in the just released "Buffalo Bill and the Indians?" — A.Q., Norfolk, Va.

A: All exploit-type producers dream of one day hitting box-office gold with a "class" production, but they usually get cold feet at the last moment. When Altman refused to make the cuts De Laurentis wanted to tighten up "Buffalo Bill" and give it more box office punch, the expatriate Italian producer retaliated by announcing that Altman would not be directing the film of the best-selling novel "Ragtime," as previously reported. The De Laurentis-Altman combination was obviously doomed from the start.

Q: I was shocked by the recent Diana - Ross divorce announcement. There's got to be more than meets the eye. The lady's my favorite and I'd like to know. — V.K., Detroit, Mich.

A: In proclaiming the end to her five-year marriage (three daughters) to Robert Silverstein, Diana said simply, "I just don't want to be married to him any more." She insists that no racial problems were involved and it just might be that Diana felt the need for a drastic change in her life patterns.

Q: I think Roger Moore is a bit out of his depth in trying to replace Sean Connery as James Bond. Why doesn't Moore go back to playing Simon Templar in "The Saint?" That was a TV series I enjoyed — K.E., Abeline, Tex.

A: You may get brief glimpses of Roger as Simon Templar again because the TV series is going to be revived, but this time around as "The Son of the Saint" starring equally handsome Ian Ogilvy. Moore may show up occasionally to help out his son on the tougher cases but the story line has him in well-deserved retirement.

Q: How come that English jury was so quick to give Telly Savalas $50,000 in that libel suit? — T.J., New Orleans, La.

A: Some members of Parliament are asking the same question and suggesting that Savalas got a lot more in publicity than he suffered in damages from a mild put-down in a British paper. But the libel laws are tough in England even though gossip columns flourish there. Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood picked up something under $10,000 right after Savalas' case because some reporter wrote they might get divorced. And Princess Elizabeth of Toro, once foreign secretary to Uganda's quixotic President Idi Amin, won a settlement in her case against another paper that reported she had sexual relations with a man in an airport restroom. You remember that story, don't you?

Q: Is Frank Sinatra planning another retirement soon? — L.J., St. Louis, Mo.

A: Not according to a fascinating rumor we've heard. The story is that Jim ("By the Time I Get to Phoenix") Webb has just completed the score of a pop music opera. It was commissioned by Frank Sinatra, who will sing the title role in a recording session in a few weeks.

Q: When these top models sign with a big cosmetic outfit, do they have to use only that company's products? — T.P., Wheeling, West Va.

A: It's considered good form, and one top model was threatened with contract cancellation when she was seen buying a competitor's makeup. But then what will a cosmetic firm do with Deborah Raffin, who has never worn anything but a touch of mascara?

DIANA ROSS: A need for drastic change.

Centennial Farm Taxes

GARDEN CITY, Mich. (AP) — A 74-year-old woman who has lived on a state-designated "centennial farm" all her life says she is moving out because taxes are too high. The woman, Elsie Schultz, is pleased that the state is giving special recognition to her 105-year-old, five-acre farm. The plot, now surrounded by service stations and new suburban houses on the western outskirts of Detroit, was purchased by Miss Schultz's grandfather and passed on to her father. It will be formally designated by the state this month as one of 3,500 farms which has been owned and worked by a single family for at least 100 years. But the state's award will not help pay Miss Schultz's taxes, which she said are "just too high, and I just can't afford to pay them." Her grandfather paid $800 for the farm in 1871. Now the farm is one-fifth of its original size but, she said, her taxes last year came to $1,285.

Grandmother Proves Best In Rocking Chair Contest

HAMPSHIRE, Ill. (AP) — Eighty-six hours after she sat down in her favorite rocking chair and started rocking, Bertha Struck won the $200 first prize for persistence.

The 53-year-old grandmother outlasted Art Veera, 25, a machinist from Elgin, who nodded off when he reached over in his rocking chair to change a song on the record player designed to keep him awake.

Cheers and applause rang out from about 75 friends and spectators on hand as Mrs. Struck was declared winner at 3 a.m. Monday in this small community west of Chicago.

The rockout, prelude to this town's Bicentennial celebration, began at noon Thursday with 17 contestants rocking on the blocked-off main street.

"The hardest thing was having only seven minutes to take care of your needs, get into clean clothes and splash some water on your face," said Mrs. Struck. "Aside from that, I found the whole thing rather pleasant."

NL All-Stars Bag Fifth Straight Victory

Tiger Rookie Fidrych Shelled In 7-1 AL Setback; Reds' George Foster Wins MVP Award

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ho Hum, the National League beat the American League again in the All-Star Game.

So what's new? For the Detroit Tigers who played, there was some consolation.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych gave up two runs and was the losing the pitcher. But the Bird met President Ford and got an invitation to the White House.

Ron LeFlore had a game-opening single while Rusty Staub had two line singles to right. Staub also fell down while he was playing the outfield, turning a long single into a triple.

The 21-year-old Fidrych, a free spirit who says what's on his mind, took the loss in stride. The rookie, 9-2 in the first half of the American League season, gave up four hits and two runs in two innings.

"No one should smile after a loss," said the curly-haired Tigers' pitcher. "But this is a different game. I can go home proud because I was on an All-Star team. You can't forget anything like this. There's this ball with everyone's name on it, a trophy and the ring ... I never even had a high school ring."

Just for the record, the score in the National's fifth straight triumph and 13th in the last 14 years was 7-1. San Diego's Randy Jones, the starting pitcher, threw three scoreless innings and was the winning pitcher.

And George Foster, the Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who leads the majors with 72 RBI, drove in three runs, two with a third-inning homer and was selected the game's Most Valuable Player.

The National League now leads the All-Star series 28-18-1. And no relief is in sight for the beleaguered American Leaguers.

Perhaps, John Montefusco, the outspoken San Francisco Giants' pitcher, put the dull game in its proper perspective.

"I didn't have my good fastball, but I didn't need it against the American League."

It would seem that all the National League needs in this annual American League summer nightmare is gloves, bats and balls.

"It's a little bit ambarrassing," said Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, whose fourth-inning home run accounted for the loser's only run against five National League pitchers.

Lynn said the big difference was the National League bats. "They hit," he said. "And they hit the long ball, too. They have a bit more power than we do."

Lynn's boss, manager Darrell Johnson, who directed the American League, had a different view.

"It was National League pitching," said Johnson. "Their pitchers did a damn good job."

There you have it, good hitting, good pitching, and throw in those three snappy double plays the National League turned and you have another American League defeat.

"I think it (the latest loss) means we have to break a cycle," said Johnson. "The National League has won twelve of thirteen. Before that the American League won most of them."

The 27-year-old Foster outwardly took his MVP accolade almost with a yawn.

"I was quite honored to be selected," he said, his face and voice devoid of emotion. "But I didn't come out here to play to win any honors. I just wanted to play the best I could to help us win. Whatever came my way in honors, fine."

Jack Armstrong, the All-American boy couldn't have said it better. But Foster wasn't acting. He plays and acts the same way every game of the season. He's a non-smoking, non-drinking, Bible-reading son of God.

"I say a silent prayer before every game," Foster confided to a swarm of reporters.

"Some guys express their emotions silently," he said. "Others do it openly. I've learned to control my emotions. You don't have to be jubilant to be happy. You don't have to drink it up. That's not me."

Foster said he would return to Cincinnati and reflect on his All-Star performance. "I'll get a good feeling about it. Then I'll keep trying to do better."

Foster said he wasn't sure the ball he hit for a home run was going out. "I thought maybe that cross wind out there might be holding up the ball. The main thing is I was trying to be aggressive at the plate."

The Cincinnati Reds produced seven of the National League's 10 hits. That didn't surprise Pete Rose, the wise cracking Reds' third baseman.

"We got more bats than anybody, so we're supposed to get more hits," said Rose, who singled, tripled and scored a run. "Foster did what he's been doing all year. The only difference is that he got only one hit. He usually gets two or three."

The Nationals built a 4-0 lead with their two in the first and Foster's home run after a one-out single in the third. Lynn's homer made it 4-1. The NL put it away in the eighth on an RBI single by Ken Griffey, and Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer, all off California's Frank Tanana.

Ford Invites Bird To White House

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford dropped in on Detroit Tiger pitcher Mark Fidrych Tuesday night before the All-Star game and the Bird walked away with an invitation to the White House.

Ford's son, Jack, also promised to try to arrange a date for Fidrych with tennis star Chris Evert, who young Ford has dated.

The President and the Bird chatted for several minutes in the American League locker room after Ford walked up to the rookie pitching star and said, "The Bird. How are you?"

Fidrych looked up at the President and said, "Did you send me a thing in Texas?"

Tiger outfielder Ron LeFlore, who also started in the All-Star game, leaned over and reminded Fidrych the telegram with Ford's name on it was sent to the pitcher in Baltimore and that it actually was a gag, courtesy of his teammates.

Nonetheless, Ford told Fidrych, "I tried to call you."

The Bird responded, "Yeah, yeah. Where's your son. I'd like to talk to him."

"He's around," said Ford. "Now don't talk to those fellows, talk to the old man."

The Bird looked surprised and said, "Oh, okay. I was just wondering how he was doing with those dates."

"You come to Washington, he'll fix you up," laughed the President.

"I may do that," said Fidrych. The President turned and went over to Tiger Rusty Staub's locker.

Fidrych spotted Jack Ford across the dressing room, the two spoke briefly and Jack Ford nodded.

The Bird grinned, leaped away, smacked a fist in his pitcher's glove, and shouted, "I've been invited to the White House."

The president's son told reporters he agreed to try to arrange a date for Fidrych with Miss Evert. "You might say it's for the Bird," said the President's son.

Taiwanese Reiterate Decision To Withdraw

TAIPEI (AP) — The Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee reiterated today its decision to withdraw from the Montreal Olympic Games "because of Canada's discrimination."

The pullout decision was reached in a closed door meeting here by the Republic of China Olympic Committee and ranking sports officials. It came after reports indicated that the full session of the International Olympic Committee Tuesday night approved its executive board's proposal.

The IOC executive board suggested the Taiwanese athletes march behind the IOC emblem and insignia without using the name Republic of China at the opening of the Montreal Games. Nationalist China rejected the idea Saturday.

The Canadian government had said it would not permit athletes from Taiwan to enter that country if they used the name Republic of China. Canada recognizes mainland China.

NL 'Fires Up' For Big Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National League players bring more than just the thrill of being named to the All-Star team with them when they take the field in this mid-summer festival. They come with fire in their eyes and base hits in their bats.

"Everytime they get in the clubhouse," said Manager Sparky Anderson, "it's more than just being honored. They say, 'Hey, let's go.'

"Maybe that sounds like high school or college," the white-haired Cincinnati manager said. "But to me, that's what it's all about."

The Nationals, powered by a pair of two-run homers by Cincinnati's George Foster and Houston's Cesar Cedeno, put together a 10-hit attack that produced a 7-1 victory over the AL. The Nationals have won 13 of the last 14 games, including the last five.

"I think it goes back to Warren Giles (former National League president)," Anderson said in trying to explain the streak. "He wanted the National League to start winning.

Soft-throwing Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, who worked three scoreless innings and got the victory, agreed with Anderson that the NL stars bubble at the thought of winning the game.

The 26-year-old left-hander, baseball's winningest pitcher with a 16-3 mark, said he noticed the gut feeling last year when he earned a save.

"When I came to the park, I was nervous about the game," said Jones. "But I could see the excitement they had. This calmed me down. I wanted to win just like the rest of the guys."

Foster, the game's Most Valuable Player with his homer and three RBI over-all, agreed. "You try to get up a little more because you know you're not going to be in there the whole game. You want to show what you can do," added the Reds' slugger. "There's a whole lot of pride involved."

Foster and Anderson both pointed to the fact that seven of the 10 NL hits were struck by Cincinnati players. Seven Reds played in the game.

Foster went further by evaluating the talent in the two leagues.

"I think there are better caliber ballplayers in the National League than in the American League," the game's top runproducer said. "But the American League is progressing. They're getting better all the time."

Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who piloted the AL squad, was at a loss to explain the NL's streak.

"They've had great success in the last couple of years, but it's the reverse of the 13 years before that when the American League dominated the game," the stone-faced Johnson said.

"I can't tell you the answer," he added. "I don't know what it is."

Johnson also pointed out the American League had only five hits, with Lynn's blast into the right field seats the only extra base blow.

"If you want to talk about the game today, I think it was the National League pitchers," said Johnson.

The loss spoiled the ballyhooed debut of Detroit rookie sensation Mark Fidrych, who worked the first two innings and took the loss. The hard-throwing right-hander, nicknamed "The Bird," gave up two runs in the first and four hits over-all.

"I don't know what happened," the moppy-haired 21-year-old said. "I was up for the game. Maybe I tried to overthrow."

But the loss failed to bridle his boyish enthusiasm.

"See this ring?" he said, showing off his All-Star prize. "I never even had a high school ring."

Black Pullout Possible

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Black American Olympics entrants are to be asked today to follow various black African countries in withdrawing from the games, says The Sacramento Bee.

The Bee quoted an anonymous source Tuesday as saying black Africans would approach the American blacks "individually in an attempt to promote the pullout."

"A traumatic political experience" could result, the source said.

The Bee said the requests, in Montreal, would come from representatives of about 30 countries in the "Supreme Council For Sports."

The request would be "to follow Tanzania's lead and follow the black African countries in pulling out."

The reference to Tanzania meant that country's protest against the New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa just after 170 Africans were killed in Soweto race riots.

The Bee said the countries protesting against segregation are "such places as Algeria, Cameroon, Chad, Andorra, People's Republic of Congo, Antigua, Ethiopia and the Ivory Coast."

Tiger Rookie Fidrych Shelled In 7-1 AL Setback; Reds' George Foster Wins MVP Award

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ho Hum, the National League beat the American League again in the All-Star Game.

So what's new? For the Detroit Tigers who played, there was some consolation.

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych gave up two runs and was the losing the pitcher. But the Bird met President Ford and got an invitation to the White House.

Ron LeFlore had a game-opening single while Rusty Staub had two line singles to right. Staub also fell down while he was playing the outfield, turning a long single into a triple.

The 21-year-old Fidrych, a free spirit who says what's on his mind, took the loss in stride. The rookie, 9-2 in the first half of the American League season, gave up four hits and two runs in two innings.

"No one should smile after a loss," said the curly-haired Tigers' pitcher. "But this is a different game. I can go home proud because I was on an All-Star team. You can't forget anything like this. There's this ball with everyone's name on it, a trophy and the ring ... I never even had a high school ring."

Just for the record, the score in the National's fifth straight triumph and 13th in the last 14 years was 7-1. San Diego's Randy Jones, the starting pitcher, threw three scoreless innings and was the winning pitcher.

And George Foster, the Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who leads the majors with 72 RBI, drove in three runs, two with a third-inning homer and was selected the game's Most Valuable Player.

The National League now leads the All-Star series 28-18-1. And no relief is in sight for the beleaguered American Leaguers.

Perhaps, John Montefusco, the outspoken San Francisco Giants' pitcher, put the dull game in its proper perspective.

"I didn't have my good fastball, but I didn't need it against the American League."

It would seem that all the National League needs in this annual American League summer nightmare is gloves, bats and balls.

"It's a little bit ambarrassing," said Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, whose fourth-inning home run accounted for the loser's only run against five National League pitchers.

Lynn said the big difference was the National League bats. "They hit," he said. "And they hit the long ball, too. They have a bit more power than we do."

Lynn's boss, manager Darrell Johnson, who directed the American League, had a different view.

"It was National League pitching," said Johnson. "Their pitchers did a damn good job."

There you have it, good hitting, good pitching, and throw in those three snappy double plays the National League turned and you have another American League defeat.

"I think it (the latest loss) means we have to break a cycle," said Johnson. "The National League has won twelve of thirteen. Before that the American League won most of them."

The 27-year-old Foster outwardly took his MVP accolade almost with a yawn.

"I was quite honored to be selected," he said, his face and voice devoid of emotion. "But I didn't come out here to play to win any honors. I just wanted to play the best I could to help us win. Whatever came my way in honors, fine."

Jack Armstrong, the All-American boy couldn't have said it better. But Foster wasn't acting. He plays and acts the same way every game of the season. He's a non-smoking, non-drinking, Bible-reading son of God.

"I say a silent prayer before every game," Foster confided to a swarm of reporters.

"Some guys express their emotions silently," he said. "Others do it openly. I've learned to control my emotions. You don't have to be jubilant to be happy. You don't have to drink it up. That's not me."

Foster said he would return to Cincinnati and reflect on his All-Star performance. "I'll get a good feeling about it. Then I'll keep trying to do better."

Foster said he wasn't sure the ball he hit for a home run was going out. "I thought maybe that cross wind out there might be holding up the ball. The main thing is I was trying to be aggressive at the plate."

The Cincinnati Reds produced seven of the National League's 10 hits. That didn't surprise Pete Rose, the wise cracking Reds' third baseman.

"We got more bats than anybody, so we're supposed to get more hits," said Rose, who singled, tripled and scored a run. "Foster did what he's been doing all year. The only difference is that he got only one hit. He usually gets two or three."

The Nationals built a 4-0 lead with their two in the first and Foster's home run after a one-out single in the third. Lynn's homer made it 4-1. The NL put it away in the eighth on an RBI single by Ken Griffey, and Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer, all off California's Frank Tanana.

Ford Invites Bird To White House

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford dropped in on Detroit Tiger pitcher Mark Fidrych Tuesday night before the All-Star game and the Bird walked away with an invitation to the White House.

Ford's son, Jack, also promised to try to arrange a date for Fidrych with tennis star Chris Evert, who young Ford has dated.

The President and the Bird chatted for several minutes in the American League locker room after Ford walked up to the rookie pitching star and said, "The Bird. How are you?"

Fidrych looked up at the President and said, "Did you send me a thing in Texas?"

Tiger outfielder Ron LeFlore, who also started in the All-Star game, leaned over and reminded Fidrych the telegram with Ford's name on it was sent to the pitcher in Baltimore and that it actually was a gag, courtesty of his teammates.

Nonetheless, Ford told Fidrych, "I tried to call you."

The Bird responded, "Yeah, yeah. Where's your son. I'd like to talk to him."

"He's around," said Ford. "Now don't talk to those fellows, talk to the old man."

The Bird looked surprised and said, "Oh, okay. I was just wondering how he was doing with those dates."

"You come to Washington, he'll fix you up," laughed the President.

"I may do that," said Fidrych. The President turned and went over to Tiger Rusty Staub's locker.

Fidrych spotted Jack Ford across the dressing room, the two spoke briefly and Jack Ford nodded.

The Bird grinned, leaped away, smacked a fist in his pitcher's glove, and shouted, "I've been invited to the White House."

The president's son told reporters he agreed to try to arrange a date for Fidrych with Miss Evert. "You might say it's for the Bird," said the President's son.

Taiwanese Reiterate Decision To Withdraw

TAIPEI (AP) — The Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee reiterated today its decision to withdraw from the Montreal Olympic Games "because of Canada's discrimination."

The pullout decision was reached in a closed door meeting here by the Republic of China Olympic Committee and ranking sports officials. It came after reports indicated that the full session of the International Olympic Committee Tuesday night approved its executive board's proposal.

The IOC executive board suggested the Taiwanese athletes march behind the IOC emblem and insignia without using the name Republic of China at the opening of the Montreal Games. Nationalist China rejected the idea Saturday.

The Canadian government had said it would not permit athletes from Taiwan to enter that country if they used the name Republic of China. Canada recognizes mainland China.

Rick Plangger Softball Standout

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

Rick Plangger has some pretty big shoes to fill...but at age 23 he's already taken some giant steps forward.

Rick, son of veteran local sponsor and top hurler Rich Plangger, is fast developing into one of the premier fast-pitch softball pitchers in the state.

The elder Plangger calls the 1976 edition of the Plangger's Furniture team "the best team I've ever sponsored" and the windmilling of his protege son has played a vital role in Plangger's outstanding team record of 51-23.

Rick, an imposing figure on the mound with 215 pounds packed on a 6-3 frame, has built some equally impressive statistics this summer as the workhorse of the Plangger's pitching staff. He has whizzed the softball past opponents for a 33-15 record and glittering 1.30 ERA.

The right-hander has fanned an average of a batter an inning and has allowed only 76 walks in 323 frames. Rick has 15 shutouts, two no-hitters, one one-hitter while opposing batters are only averaging .184 against his slants.

Rick, the most valuable pitcher in the Scottville tourney in May, was named the most valuable player in the Kalamazoo invitational over the weekend as Plangger's captured the team title. Last Sunday Rick hurled 35 innings and allowed only four runs while tossing shutout ball in the final two games at Kalamazoo.

And all of Rick's success has come against what Rich calls the toughest schedule the team has ever played against.

A softball pitcher usually improves with age and reaches his peak from 30 to 40 years old. But Rick is jumping the gun.

"He's really improved tremendously the last year or so," voices Rich, who also manages the team. "The main reason is his control. He's only averaging one or two walks a game...that's really made him more effective. And of course he's gained a lot of experience because of that tough competition we play. He's a good learner. We're pretty proud of him."

But then Rick has had some top-notch tutoring over the years from his dad, who now at 53 only pitches occasionally.

Rick caught the softball "bug" as a youngster, starting out as a bat boy for the team and then becoming scorekeeper. At 18 he became a part-time performer for the club and he has played full time the last three years.

"I use to play catch with my dad all the time when I was younger," relates Rick, "But my dad never told me I had to be a softball player. He wanted me to do whatever I wanted to do. But I know he would of been disappointed if I didn't play."

The two still play catch together behind their furniture store at 1034 Territorial in Benton Harbor during the summer months. On occasions the throwing moves inside the store and lamps and furniture have to be moved aside. "Sometimes I get a little wild and don't hit what I'm aiming for," laughs Rick.

Rick played football, basketball and baseball at Lakeshore high school and was named to the all-Blossomland football team in 1970. He and Chris Knapp, now a pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, were close friends at Lakeshore and both superb athletes.

Rick attended Michigan State after graduation from high school. As a freshman he had a tryout for the Spartan football team during spring practice but later quit the team, a decision he later regretted.

The younger Plangger, who graduated from MSU last December and now helps his dad run the store, says he won't mind playing softball the year around.

"I like all sports...but softball the best. If I could play the whole year I would. I love softball because you're so much more involved in the game than baseball. And baseball is so much slower."

Rick, a bachelor, says he has never come up with a sore arm despite all the mound activity.

"My arm rarely gets tired. Actually the more I pitch the better my arm feels. Throwing underhand is a lot easier on the arm than throwing overhand. When I'm pitching good I feel I can go on forever."

Rick, who also spends about two hours a day grooming the field his dad owns at Benton township park, says he's pleased with his pitching progress so far.

"I think teams now have a lot of respect for me. They figure I have the tools and figure me a promising pitcher. Most pitchers aren't a success until about 30. But I've had good coaching and I've really worked hard at it too."

Rick, who plays the outfield when not pitching, also credits the hustle of his young teammates and improved defense for Plangger's resurgence this summer after two mediocre years.

Rick already has somebody following in his shoes. His little brother Scott, who plays in the St. Joseph Elk Cubs softball league, already throws a mean pitch and according to Rick "may be the best pitcher of any one of us."

Young Appointed New Buck Coach

BUCHANAN — Mike Young, head coach at Colon for the past four years, is Buchanan's new football coach.

Young, 31, takes over a program which has not had a winning season since 1971. But he is not looking to rebuild.

"We want to have a winning record right away," Young said. "There's no doubt about that. I have a tremendous amount of confidence that we'll get a lot of kids out. This community is noted for its football tradition and there's no reason that this can't be rekindled."

Young replaces Dave Shoemake, who resigned after posting a 7-20 record over the past three years. Buchanan finished 1-8 last year, its worst season in school history.

Young posted a 16-17-1 record at Colon, but wound up with a 6-3 mark last season.

"Young has developed a winning record in football," Dr. Walt Vanderbush, Buchanan Principal, said. "He came very highly recommended not only from his own administration, but also from schools he competed against.

"He impressed us as being a very intelligent and dedicated kind of teacher and coach."

Young worked as an assistant coach at St. Johns for four years before going to Colon. He comes from an excellent coaching family. His father-in-law is Jack Streidl, well-known Plainwell football coach.

"We just have got to get the kids out here," Young said. "That's what we had to do at Colon and that's what is needed at Buchanan. I just feel very strongly that we have to go out and beat the bushes and get more kids back into this program.

"I just feel a tremendous challenge. I have been looking for a community and school system that is 100 per cent committed to athletics and I think Buchanan is."

Young plans to center his offense around the Wing-T and Power-I offense.

"As far as passing is concerned, we'll have to wait and see what we have at those skilled positions," Young adds.

Berrien Hills Tourney Has Familiar Title Look

There will be a familiar look to the championship flight of this year's Berrien Hills Invitational golf tournament which begins Friday, July 16.

Five of the 10 teams entered in the top flight of the 10th annual best-ball event competed in last season's flight and Jim Erickson, half of last year's winning team, also returns.

Erickson teamed with Bridgman's Bob Ackerman, Jr. to take top honors last year with an outstanding seven-under par 135, 11 shots better than Bob Knight and Gene Fetters, who are teamed again.

This year, Erickson is playing with Ralph Mack from the Point O'Woods Country Club. Mack teamed with Knight to win the tourney in 1970, 1972 and 1973.

Knight has has taken top honors in the championship flight a total of five times in the past nine years.

Others returning to the flight are last year's third-place finishers Ed and John Sieber, Lou Schultz and John Steimle, Tom Tessman and Bill Cooney and the team of Chuck Siczek and Pat Kozlowski.

The four new teams are Jim Petrie and Adolph Loikits, Nick Zitta and Ed Barlow, Jr., Dick and Bob Riel and Sandy Alexander and Tom Wilder.

There are 84 teams entered in eight flights this year. The flights are seeded according to a handicap system.

There will be three rounds in the tournament beginning on Friday with one round each on Saturday and Sunday. Last season's tournament was cut to two rounds because of rain.

Boyce New Laker Coach

Gary Boyce has been appointed the new head baseball coach at Lake Michigan Catholic.

Boyce had a sterling career at Michigan State University in both baseball and football. On the diamond, Boyce hit .375 in the 1970 campaign, second highest on the team, and .356 in 1971.

He holds the MSU career record for most hits (142) and most runs scored (100). Boyce is third on the all-time list for hits in one season (57 in 1971) and holds the record for runs scored in one season (49 in 1971).

On the gridiron, Boyce was the Spartans' third leading scorer in 1968. As a placekicker, he converted 21 of 22 extra points and three of eight field goals for 30 points. In 1969, head coach Duffy Daugherty called him "the greatest onside kicker I've ever seen."

Boyce signed with the Texas Rangers in 1971 and was in that organization until July of 1974.

He has been with Lake Michigan Catholic for the past two years as the junior varsity baseball coach. Boyce takes over for Al Nixon, who resigned at the end of this season.

Boyce has a wife, Pamela, and one son, 19-month old Andrew.

Following In Father's Footsteps

Rick Plangger Softball Standout

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

Rick Plangger has some pretty big shoes to fill...but at age 23 he's already taken some giant steps forward.

Rick, son of veteran local sponsor and top hurler Rich, Plangger, is fast developing into one of the premier fast-pitch softball pitchers in the state.

The elder Plangger calls the 1976 edition of the Plangger's Furniture team "the best team I've ever sponsored" and the windmilling of his protege son has played a vital role in Plangger's outstanding team record of 51-23.

Rick, an imposing figure on the mound with 215 pounds packed on a 6-3 frame, has built some equally impressive statistics this summer as the workhorse of the Plangger's pitching staff. He has whizzed the softball past opponents for a 33-15 record and glittering 1.30 ERA.

The right-hander has fanned an average of a batter an inning and has allowed only 76 walks in 323 frames. Rick has 15 shutouts, two no-hitters, one one-hitter while opposing batters are only averaging .184 against his slants.

Rick, the most valuable pitcher in the Scottville tourney in May, was named the most valuable player in the Kalamazoo Invitational over the weekend as Plangger's captured the team title. Last Sunday Rick hurled 35 innings and allowed only four runs while tossing shutout ball in the final two games at Kalamazoo.

And all of Rick's success has come against what Rich calls the toughest schedule the team has ever played against.

A softball pitcher usually improves with age and reaches his peak from 30 to 40 years old. But Rick is jumping the gun.

"He's really improved tremendously the last year or so," voices Rich, who also manages the team. "The main reason is his control. He's only averaging one or two walks a game...that's really made him more effective. And of course he's gained a lot of experience because of that tough competition we play. He's a good learner. We're pretty proud of him."

But then Rick has had some top-notch tutoring over the years from his dad, who now at 53 only pitches occasionally.

Rick caught the softball "bug" as a youngster, starting out as a bat boy for the team and then becoming scorekeeper. At 18 he became a part-time performer for the club and he has played full time the last three years.

"I use to play catch with my dad all the time when I was younger," relates Rick. "But my dad never told me I had to be a softball player. He wanted me to do whatever I wanted to do. But I know he would of been disappointed if I didn't play."

The two still play catch together behind their furniture store at 1034 Territorial in Benton Harbor during the summer months. On occasions the throwing moves inside the store and lamps and furniture have to be moved aside. "Sometimes I get a little wild and don't hit what I'm aiming for," laughs Rick.

Rick played football, basketball and baseball at Lakeshore high school and was named to the all-Blossomland football team in 1970. He and Chris Knapp, now a pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, were close friends at Lakeshore and both superb athletes.

Rick attended Michigan State after graduation from high school. As a freshman he had a tryout for the Spartan football team during spring practice but later quit the team, a decision he later regretted.

The younger Plangger, who graduated from MSU last December and now helps his dad run the store, says he won't mind playing softball the year around.

"I like all sports...but softball the best. If I could play the whole year I would. I love softball because you're so much more involved in the game than baseball. And baseball is so much slower."

Rick, a bachelor, says he has never come up with a sore arm despite all the mound activity.

"My arm rarely gets tired. Actually the more I pitch the better my arm feels. Throwing underhand is a lot easier on the arm than throwing overhand. When I'm pitching good I feel I can go on forever."

Rick, who also spends about two hours a day grooming the field his dad owns at Benton township park, says he's pleased with his pitching progress so far.

"I think teams now have a lot of respect for me. They figure I have the tools and figure me a promising pitcher. Most pitchers aren't a success until about 30. But I've had good coaching and I've really worked hard at it too."

Rick, who plays the outfield when not pitching, also credits the hustle of his young teammates and improved defense for Plangger's resurgence this summer after two mediocre years.

Rick already has somebody following in his shoes. His little brother Scott, who plays in the St. Joseph Elk Cubs softball league, already throws a mean pitch and according to Rick "may be the best pitcher of any one of us."

Plangger's Gets Split

Plangger's split a pair of Michiana Fastpitch softball league games Tuesday night with Vandenberg's of Kalamazoo at Plangger's Park.

Losing hurler Rick Plangger smacked a two-run homer but it wasn't enough as the locals lost the first game 6-3. Rich Plangger hurled a two-hit shutout to key a 5-0 win in the second game.

Plangger's scored two runs in the first inning when Shushman rapped a RBI single and later scored on an error in the outfield.

They added one in the third and ended the scoring in the sixth when Fred Chabot smacked a two-run double.

Plangger's is now 10-4 in the league and 51-23 overall.

Young Appointed New Buck Coach

BUCHANAN — Mike Young, head coach at Colon for the past four years, is Buchanan's new football coach.

Young, 31, takes over a program which has not had a winning season since 1971. But he is not looking to rebuild.

"We want to have a winning record right away," Young said. "There's no doubt about that. I have a tremendous amount of confidence that we'll get a lot of kids out. This community is noted for its football tradition and there's no reason that this can't be rekindled."

Young replaces Dave Shoemake, who resigned after posting a 7-20 record over the past three years. Buchanan finished 1-8 last year, its worst season in school history.

Young posted a 16-17-1 record at Colon, but wound up with a 6-3 mark last season.

"Young has developed a winning record in football," Dr. Walt Vanderbush, Buchanan Principal, said. "He came very highly recommended not only from his own administration, but also from schools he competed against.

"He impressed us as being a very intelligent and dedicated kind of teacher and coach."

Young worked as an assistant coach at St. Johns for four years before going to Colon. He comes from an excellent coaching family. His father-in-law is Jack Streidl, well-known Plainwell football coach.

"We just have got to get the kids out here," Young said. "That's what we had to do at Colon and that's what is needed at Buchanan. I just feel very strongly that we have to go out and beat the bushes and get more kids back into this program.

"I just feel a tremendous challenge. I have been looking for a community and school system that is 100 per cent committed to athletics and I think Buchanan is."

Young plans to center his offense around the Wing-T and Power-I offense.

"As far as passing is concerned, we'll have to wait and see what we have at those skilled positions," Young adds.

Berrien Hills Tourney Has Familiar Title Look

There will be a familiar look to the championship flight of this year's Berrien Hills Invitational golf tournament which begins Friday, July 16.

Five of the 10 teams entered in the top flight of the 10th annual best-ball event competed in last season's flight and Jim Erickson, half of last year's winning team, also returns.

Erickson teamed with Bridgman's Bob Ackerman, Jr. to take top honors last year with an outstanding seven-under par 135, 11 shots better than Bob Knight and Gene Fetters, who are teamed again.

This year, Erickson is playing with Ralph Mack from the Point O'Woods Country Club. Mack teamed with Knight to win the tourney in 1970, 1972 and 1973.

Knight has has taken top honors in the championship flight a total of five times in the past nine years.

Others returning to the flight are last year's third-place finishers Ed and John Sieber, Lou Schultz and John Steimle, Tom Tessman and Bill Cooney and the team of Chuck Siczek and Pat Kozlowski.

The four new teams are Jim Petrie and Adolph Loikits, Nick Zitta and Ed Barlow, Jr., Dick and Bob Riel and Sandy Allexander and Tom Wilder.

There are 84 teams entered in eight flights this year. The flights are seeded according to a handicap system.

There will be three rounds in the tournament beginning on Friday with one round each on Saturday and Sunday. Last season's tournament was cut to two rounds because of rain.

Boyce New Laker Coach

Gary Boyce has been appointed the new head baseball coach at Lake Michigan Catholic.

Boyce had a sterling career at Michigan State University in both baseball and football. On the diamond, Boyce hit .375 in the 1970 campaign, second highest on the team, and .356 in 1971.

He holds the MSU career record for most hits (142) and most runs scored (100). Boyce is third on the all-time list for hits in one season (57 in 1971) and holds the record for runs scored in one season (49 in 1971).

On the gridiron, Boyce was the Spartans' third leading scorer in 1968. As a placekicker, he converted 21 of 22 extra points and three of eight field goals for 30 points. In 1969, head coach Duffy Daugherty called him "the greatest onside kicker I've ever seen."

Boyce signed with the Texas Rangers in 1971 and was in that organization until July of 1974.

He has been with Lake Michigan Catholic for the past two years as the junior varsity baseball coach. Boyce takes over for Al Nixon, who resigned at the end of this season.

Boyce has a wife, Pamela, and one son, 19-month old Andrew.

Most Favor Admitting Taiwan

Canadian Citizens Criticize Government's Action

MONTREAL (AP) — If Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau had put the issue to a vote of his people, Taiwan would be marching behind its colors in next Saturday's opening parade and Canada would keep its political nose out of the Olympic Games.

A broad-based sampling of opinion along Rue St. Catherine and in teeming Phillips Square Tuesday showed people predominantly in favor of letting the Republic of China compete in the two-week international festival.

By a margin of 10-1, persons interviewed by The Associated Press said the government had no right to deprive the little island of 16 million a chance to take part, as it has for years, in the Olympics and sharply criticized political interference in sports.

Among the comments:

"Stupid mistake."

"As bad as Adolf Hitler."

"Canada is influenced by the People's Republic of China (mainland China, with 800 million people) because of its wheat deals for 1980."

Jack de Niverville, a candy company representative, said the Canadian government was playing footsie with Communist China because of wheat deals and termed it "a stupid mistake."

"China needs our wheat more than we need their friendship," he said. "We should not compromise our principles of fair play."

Dave Carriere, 21, a sales clerk, said the government should have washed its hands of the problem.

"It is obvious Red China put pressure on us with those wheat deals," he said. "It's almost as bad as Hitler injecting Germany's aryan supremacy policies into the 1936 Games in Berlin."

Andre Tanguay, 45, a tire company executive, shrugged his shoulders and said, "I don't care what they do as long as it doesn't hurt Montreal." Ralph Hartenberg, 24, a coffee delivery man, defended Canada's action, saying, "The two Chinas are fighting their political battles on Canada's back." Joyce Stevens, 19, said, "It's all a political game — it's nonsense."

In a last-minute action that rocked the Olympic hierarchy, the Canadian government decided that Taiwan, a member of the IOC for years, could not compete in the Games unless it discarded its designation as "Republic of China," its national colors and anthem.

Taiwan refused.

The IOC, sharply critical of Canada's stance, capitulated to the host country and announced there would be no boycott of the Games.

Kent Osecwski, 16, and his brother, Craig, 15, relaxing on the grass of Christ Church Cathedral, agreed Taiwan should be allowed to take part but said the People's Republic of China also should be admitted.

"The names they use should make no difference," Kent said. "Everybody should be in the Olympics."

Kaite Whitehead, 17, another student, took the same line. "The least we could do is be courteous of our guests," she said. "Taiwan should be in; so should the whole world."

Joseph Parris, 44, a handyman waiting with his young daughter at a bus stop, commented: "The government shouldn't be too harsh with Taiwan. I can't get tickets for the opening ceremony, but I think there is no room for politics in sports."

An assistant manager of a mid-town bank, Yves Gagner, 27, argued that Canada wasn't minding its own business but criticized the IOC for procrastination. "They knew this was coming a year ago," he said.

Swapan Chaudhuri, an Indian college student majoring in psychology, argued for an "open door" policy in the Olympics and warned, "If Canada is allowed to interfere it sets a precedent for the Soviet Union to follow on a bigger scale in 1980."

Edward Heymans, a 70-year-old unemployed security guard, said, "Taiwan should be in. They are poor people. Who is that big shot, Lord Killanin (IOC president), anyhow? Let all of God's children in."

Anthony Zahor suggested Taiwan is being barred to discourage terrorists — "Look at the police, they're everywhere." Le Dinh Isao, a boutique manager from South Viet Nam, said, "It's the same situation with my country. When there is a split both should compete."

But one of the most lucid analyses came from a holiday-ing visitor, Fran Clark, 28, of Rock Island, Ill.

"It's a shame that people look into the athletes' heads instead of recognizing their excellent athletic skills and training," she said. "Politics should be left to the legislative halls."

MONTREAL (AP) — Lord Killanin is a puckish Irish nobleman who constantly puffs on a curve-stemmed pipe, delights in making jokes and sends his jowls into a dance when he laughs — which is often.

He is a sharp contrast to the stern, prudish and dictatorial Avery Brundage, the man he succeeded as president of the International Olympic Committee. Brundage died a little over a year ago.

Killanin heads one of the most exclusive, most powerful and — perhaps next to the United Nations — one of the most indecisive deliberative bodies in the universe.

These are the men currently wrestling with the problems that destroyed the original Olympic Games in Greece centuries ago — politics, commercialism, national aggrandizement and inflexible pride.

They are magnificent in the art of condemnation, as in the official chastisement of Canada in its refusal to let Taiwan compete under its official name and colors. They cringe at strong, firm action. They have been letting member nations get away with abuses for years.

One has to look over the makeup of the club to understand these contradictions.

The IOC is a collection of more than 70 lords, princes, barons, maharajahs and industrial tycoons with a Midas touch.

They all are well healed, as if wealth were a prerequisite for membership. You don't find any plumbers, bricklayers or truck drivers sitting in the August councils. There are no women, and the few blacks are from the African nations.

"We are beholden to no government and no earthly power," Brundage used to say. If you listened to Brundage, you would know IOC members are neither elected nor chosen. They are ordained.

"We are more like a board of trustees," says Killanin. The pleasant Irishman has brought a touch of humanity to the order, if no more clout. Whereas Brundage was a dictator, held in awe and fear by fellow IOC members, Killanin is a diplomat. He even accepts expenses, which Brundage shunned.

"The IOC presidency should never give the impression that it can be bought," he said.

If it could be bought, many in its ranks could write the check.

Franklin Working At Quarterback

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Former University of Michigan quarterback Dennis Franklin got another workout as a Detroit Lions passer Tuesday as the National Football League club's training camp prepared for an influx of veteran players.

Franklin, a receiver last year until he was sidelined by an injury in October, is among a half-dozen possible quarterbacks on the roster.

Coach Rick Forzano reported four young Lions suffered relatively minor injuries Tuesday.

First-round draft pick Lawrence Gaines, a running back from Wyoming, sprained his ankle and was expected to miss at least a day of practice.

Second-year running back Leonard Thompson strained a knee, and team officials said he, too, would be out Wednesday, when all veterans are due at practice camp for the first time.

Rookie defensive end Keith Rivera of Brigham Young broke his hand Tuesday, and James Wilson, rookie free agent guard from Clark, also suffered what might be a broken hand, a team spokesman said.

The Lions also reported the signing of fifth-round draft choice Steadman Scavella, a linebacker from Miami of Florida. He reported to camp Monday night and worked out with the team Tuesday.

On Tuesday, Aug. 3rd, the seventh, eighth and ninth grade boys can report and Thursday, Aug. 5, the seventh, eighth and ninth grade girls are scheduled to report.

The physicals will be given from 6-9 p.m. on all four days with all athletes reporting to the gym area. There will be a $5 fee for the physical.

Clinics Set For Olympians

Track and field and gymnastic clinics will be held today and Thursday in conjunction with the Olympian Games. The track and field clinics will be held both days at 10 a.m. at Lakeshore high school. The gymnastics clinics will be at Brown school from 3:15 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Practice for Friday's Blue-Gold basketball game will be at 7:30 p.m. tonight and Thursday at Lake Michigan College.

St. Joseph Legion Takes Twin Bill

St. Joseph Legion continues to roll along in Blue-Gray League play.

St. Joe ran its league record to 10-1 Tuesday by blasting Bridgman in a doubleheader. St. Joseph took the opener 8-1 and then won the nightcap 7-4.

Three Oaks blanked Benton Harbor 10-0 in another Blue-Gray contest Tuesday.

Cory Benford pitched a three-hitter in St. Joe's opening victory. Benford fanned four and did not walk a batter. John Jones took the loss.

St. Joe gave Benford all the runs he needed in the first inning when Gary Meek tripled with the bases loaded. Rick Dyer added a pair of doubles and two runs batted in.

Roger Schwoebel hurled a five-hitter for the second-game win. Dan Kamradt took the loss.

Meek slammed a triple and a double and drove in two runs for St. Joe. Tom Barinka had two hits for the losers.

Jeff Lenard pitched a one-hitter as Three Oaks kept its Gray Division hopes alive. Lenard fanned eight and did not walk a batter as Three Oaks upped its league record to 8-4.

Lenard retired the first 13 batters before Jerry McClinton singled with one out in the fifth. Lenard also was tough at the plate with two singles and three runs batted in.

Mike Koziel added a three-run double and Jeff Jackson had a two-run single.

IOC To Start Drug Checking

MONTREAL (AP) — A sophisticated drug checking program to discourage Olympic athletes from using outlawed stimulants and to catch those who break the rules will be put into effect later this week.

About 2,300 urine samples taken from participants will be analyzed for drugs during the Games, according to Dr. Robert Dugal, head of the doping control program. All medal winners, fourth-place finishers in most events and others selected at random will be tested.

Drug use has been a problem at recent Olympics and other world sports events. Two medal winners from the 1976 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and seven from the 1972 Games at Munich were disqualified and stripped of their medals for using drugs banned by the International Olympic Committee.

Dugal said some of the random sampling would be aimed at determining whether athletes were using anabolic steroids, added to the list of forbidden drugs this year. Some athletes take the steroids to give them greater strength. An official said a survey made in Sweden two years ago showed that 75 per cent of athletes checked were using anabolic steroids.

The results of most of the tests will be known within eight to 10 hours. However, tests to determine the use of steriods requires four days.

Most Favor Admitting Taiwan

Canadian Citizens Criticize Government's Action

MONTREAL (AP) — If Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau had put the issue to a vote of his people, Taiwan would be marching behind its colors in next Saturday's opening parade and Canada would keep its political nose out of the Olympic Games.

A broad-based sampling of opinion along Rue St. Catherine and in teeming Phillips Square Tuesday showed people predominantly in favor of letting the Republic of China compete in the two-week international festival.

By a margin of 10-1, persons interviewed by The Associated Press said the government had no right to deprive the little island of 16 million a chance to take part, as it has for years, in the Olympics and sharply criticized political interference in sports.

Among the comments:

"Stupid mistake."

"As bad as Adolf Hitler."

"Canada is influenced by the People's Republic of China (mainland China, with 800 million people) because of its wheat deals for 1980."

Kuhn Remains Optimistic Despite Woes Of Baseball

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is being sued for $10 million, he has a horse collar of labor problems around his neck and his critics fire at will. But Kuhn displays gritty confidence that he is running the game right and that it is prospering as never before.

As the major leagues pause this week for the All-Star break, Kuhn reflects on the free agent problem, the contract hassle with the players' union and his big decision to kill Charlie Finley's meat sale.

Kuhn describes his job this way:

"Sometimes it's like standing next to a tornado."

A lawyer himself, Kuhn heeds the advice of his counsel and won't comment on the Finley deal, in which the Oakland A's owner is suing him for striking down the proposed sale of three Oakland stars to the Yankees and Red Sox for $3.5 million.

But in a mood of reflection, he talked about the future of the game, the unique powers of his office and the big question of why baseball is so like other businesses — and yet so different.

With several Louisville Slugger bats lined up behind his desk in a Rockefeller Center skyscraper, Kuhn rolled up his sleeves and offered some ideas:

— There will be need for greater use of power by the commissioner to keep the game balanced and solvent.

— Despite its problems, baseball can adjust to new laws, player power the eccentricities of individuals in the game so that the national pastime will not be wrecked or even damaged to any extent.

To back up his point, Kuhn points to the obvious fact that the game has gained its greatest popularity. Attendance is up about 1.4 million over the same time last season and seems certain to set a season record — going beyond the 30-million ticket mark it has hit the past three years.

Off-the-field problems and wrangling obviously have not affected the desire of the fan to pay money to watch the game, which prompts Kuhn to say, "Maybe the fans are shrewder than some of the commentators.

"I think the fans understand that baseball can not be immune from problems that beset other businesses and that, whatever its problems, maybe baseball is still the best buy in entertainment," he said.

"Problems between people within the baseball and the commissioner? What's new?" he asked. "Baseball has been that way for 100 years. All commissioners have had strong critics. The leagues have fought as long as I can remember.

"All that is a perfectly healthy manifestation in our business. Ball clubs trying to win sometimes feel the commissioner is trying to interfere and you hear screams. That's perfectly healthy. It would be odd and antiseptic if we didn't have it."

Critics have assailed Kuhn for killing Finley's deal because, they say, any businessman should be able to sell his property. Without addressing that directly because the issue now is in court, Kuhn explained why he thinks baseball is different from other businesses.

"You have two major leagues and 20 minors. In order to succeed, competition must be regulated. You can't let the stronger teams put the weaker teams out of business.

"If the No. 1 steel company puts the No. 5 steel company out of business, that's okay. That's competition. But in baseball, if you destroy one of your partners, you ruin the league. You have to have organized rules, a commissioner and league presidents."

Kuhn sometimes has refrained from wielding his tremendous power because he believes that some problems are best solved by a policy of benign neglect. On the other hand, some of the decisions he has made are consistent with the move to stop Finly's sale.

Items:

— In 1969, Montreal tried to trade Donn Clendenon to Houston for Rusty Staub. Clendenon did not want to report to Houston, whose owner, Roy Hofheinz, then wanted the deal nullified. Hofheinz threatened legal action but the commissioner not only worked out a new trade agreement between the teams but ordered the Houston owner to apologize for intemperate statements or be faced with a severe fine. Hofheinz apologized and Kuhn talked Clendenon out of retiring.

— When the 1974 season opened, Hank Aaron had 713 home runs and the Atlanta Braves indicated they would not play him until the team got home. That would hype attendance. Kuhn ordered the Braves to play Aaron as they normally would. Aaron hit the record-tying 714th homer in Cincinnati. Then he got the record-breaker in Atlanta.

— In the off-season of 1974-75, Kuhn suspended a rule which liberalized the drafting of college players after the clubs had approved it. He felt the issue had not been given sufficient study and he directed baseball to work with the colleges to seek a solution. That was done.

— Kuhn overrode the continuing objection of a number of owners last spring when he directed that spring training camps be opened even though an agreement had not been reached in contract talks between the owners and players.

All these things are done under the umbrella authority Kuhn posseses to act "in the best interest of baseball." He sees this as the negative part of his authority, the "power of restraint." He also has a positive power — the ability to legislate improvements or promote strides forward. For instance, he cast the tie-breaking vote that made the designated hitter possible.

He lobbied openly for the first black major league manager and, it was reported, considered not continuing over the long term if this could not be accomplished. The Cleveland ownership made the decision, but many baseball people felt Kuhn's influence had a bearing on Frank Robinson's appointment to direct the Indians.

Kuhn also brought about the adoption of night World Series games despite strong opposition. He still demands expansion to Washington after the battle last spring, and insiders are betting he will get his way.

Television revenues, so important to any sport, are up 30 per cent since ABC and NBC are both televising games for the first time in years. And Kuhn has set up an anti-drug program in baseball that leaves this sport cleaner than some others.

One of the issues he has not forced is inter-league play. "There are some intense animosities on that subject and they are best left to drift," Kuhn said. "I have favored inter-league play but the best way to get it is to let it sit on the back-burner. You could impose inter-league play but if you did, it wouldn't work." That's what he means by benign neglect.

But, Kuhn says, "The time is coming that will require the commissioner to use his powers more decisively and the game will be best served by that.

"Why? The game is growing. We'll have 26 clubs next year. In time, we'll have more clubs. I see more international involvement. Japanese baseball is growing." (Kuhn said in 1973 that competition involving the Japanese is in the future.)

"As the game becomes larger and more complex, you've got to have more power exercised at the apex in order to preserve the order of the game," Kuhn said. "Times are changing. Attitudes toward gambling unfortunately are changing, and that points to greater use of power at the commissioners's level."

STADIUM IN RUINS: Destroyed left field seats and weed covered playing field were all that remained a short time ago before the wrecker's ball came in to level the once proud Connie Mack Stadium in Philadelphia. PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — A heavy chest cold forced Scott May, All-American from Indiana, to miss the final exhibition game of the U.S. Olympic basketball team Tuesday night, but it did not prevent him from being named to the starting team that will face Italy on Sunday afternoon in Montreal.

Joining May up front is 6-foot-5 Adrian Dantley, Notre Dame All-American who scored 25 points Tuesday night, 14 in the first half.

Mitch Kupchak, 6-10 and from North Carolina, will be the starting center and another Tarheel, Phil Ford, will be one of the guards.

Quinn Buckner, 6-3 and May's teammate at Indiana, is the other guard.

Kuhn Remains Optimistic Despite Woes Of Baseball

By WICK TEMPLE
AP Sports Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is being sued for $10 million, he has a horse collar of labor problems around his neck and his critics fire at will. But Kuhn displays gritty confidence that he is running the game right and that it is prospering as never before.

As the major leagues pause this week for the All-Star break, Kuhn reflects on the free agent problem, the contract hassle with the players' union and his big decision to kill Charlie Finley's meat sale.

Kuhn describes his job this way:

"Sometimes it's like standing next to a tornado."

A lawyer himself, Kuhn heeds the advice of his counsel and won't comment on the Finley deal, in which the Oakland A's owner is suing him for striking down the proposed sale of three Oakland stars to the Yankees and Red Sox for $3.5 million.

But in a mood of reflection, he talked about the future of the game, the unique powers of his office and the big question of why baseball is so like other businesses — and yet so different.

With several Louisville Slugger bats lined up behind his desk in a Rockefeller Center skyscraper, Kuhn rolled up his sleeves and offered some ideas:

— There will be need for greater use of power by the commissioner to keep the game balanced and solvent.

— Despite its problems, baseball can adjust to new laws, player power the eccentricities of individuals in the game so that the national pastime will not be wrecked or even damaged to any extent.

To back up his point, Kuhn points to the obvious fact that the game has gained its greatest popularity. Attendance is up about 1.4 million over the same time last season and seems certain to set a season record — going beyond the 30-million ticket mark it has hit the past three years.

Off-the-field problems and wrangling obviously have not affected the desire of the fan to pay money to watch the game, which prompts Kuhn to say, "Maybe the fans are shrewder then some of the commentators.

"I think the fans understand that baseball can not be immune from problems that beset other businesses and that, whatever its problems, maybe baseball is still the best buy in entertainment," he said.

"Problems between people within the baseball and the commissioner? What's new?" he asked. "Baseball has been that way for 100 years. All commissioners have had strong critics. The leagues have fought as long as I can remember.

"All that is a perfectly healthy manifestation in our business. Ball clubs trying to win sometimes feel the commissioner is tryng to interfere and you hear screams. That's perfectly healthy. It would be odd and antiseptic if we didn't have it."

Critics have assailed Kuhn for killing Finley's deal because, they say, any businessman should be able to sell his property. Without addressing that directly because the issue now is in court, Kuhn explained why he thinks baseball is different from other businesses.

"You have two major leagues and 20 minors. In order to succeed, competition must be regulated. You can't let the stronger teams put the weaker teams out of business.

"If the No. 1 steel company puts the No. 5 steel company out of business, that's okay. That's competition. But in baseball, if you destroy one of your partners, you ruin the league. You have to have organized rules, a commissioner and league presidents."

Kuhn sometimes has refrained from wielding his tremendous power because he believes that some problems are best solved by a policy of benign neglect. On the other hand, some of the decisions he has made are consistent with the move to stop Finly's sale.

Items:

— In 1969, Montreal tried to trade Donn Clendenon to Houston for Rusty Staub. Clendenon did not want to report to Houston, whose owner, Roy Hofheinz, then wanted the deal nullified. Hofheinz threatened legal action but the commissioner not only worked out a new trade agreement between the teams but ordered the Houston owner to apologize for intemperate statements or be faced with a severe fine. Hofheinz apologized and Kuhn talked Clendenon out of retiring.

— When the 1974 season opened, Hank Aaron had 713 home runs and the Atlanta Braves indicated they would not play him until the team got home. That would hype attendance. Kuhn ordered the Braves to play Aaron as they normally would. Aaron hit the record-tying 714th homer in Cincinnati. Then he got the record-breaker in Atlanta.

— In the off-season of 1974-75, Kuhn suspended a rule which liberalized the drafting of college players after the clubs had approved it. He felt the issue had not been given sufficient study and he directed baseball to work with the colleges to seek a solution. That was done.

— Kuhn overrode the continuing objection of a number of owners last spring when he directed that spring training camps be opened even though an agreement had not been reached in contract talks between the owners and players.

All these things are done under the umbrella authority Kuhn posseses to act "in the best interest of baseball." He sees this as the negative part of his authority, the "power of restraint." He also has a positive power — the ability to legislate improvements or promote strides forward. For instance, he cast the tie-breaking vote that made the designated hitter possible.

Seeking Bargaining Rights

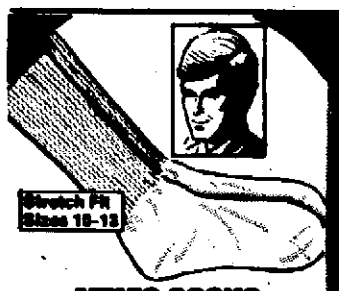

State Police Plan Ahead

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment allowing State Police to bargain collectively won't be on this year's ballot but State Police are setting their sights on 1978.

Trooper Jerry Zielinski, president of the 1,350-member Michigan State Police Troopers Association, announced that the group will launch a petition drive this fall to place the issue on the November 1978 ballot. About 300,000 valid signatures are needed. Proposed constitutional amendments introduced in the legislature require two-thirds legislative approval plus voter approval.

The State Police measure, introduced in the House earlier this year, was defeated twice. Although it is eligible for one more try before officially dying, the time limit for getting it on this November's ballot is past because the legislature has recessed until Sept. 13.

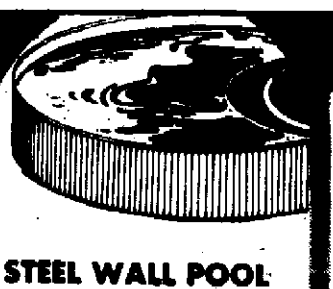

Zielinski noted that if lawmakers do give the proposal the required two-thirds legislative approval when they return from summer vacation, it could go on the November 1978 ballot and eliminate the need for a petition drive. Barring this, Zielinksi said, the troopers' association will try to get the proposed constitutional amendment on the November 1978 ballot by another route — the petition drive. He said they will also continue their lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids seeking collective bargaining rights.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Drift Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices drifted lower in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off nearly a point after opening trades, and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange held a small lead on those advancing.

The NYSE tape was three minutes late in recording trades at one point.

The market appeared to be influenced again by the mood of uncertainty and profit-taking that set in Tuesday to erode a swift two-day advance.

There was one report that some analysts were having second thoughts about the moderate rise in wholesale prices last month. That showing had been credited with helping the market's rise Friday and Monday.

Opening prices today included ARA Services, up ⅝ at 56½; Witco Chemical down ⅜ to 29¼; and McLouth Steel, off ½ at 22¾.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.15 to 1,006.06. NYSE issues rising in price held a slim lead on those declining, however.

Volume on the Big Board rose to 27.55 million shares from the 21.75 million traded the day before.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .11 to 56.43.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .11 to 106.94.

Township Approves Road Work

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven township board during a special meeting last night authorized the Van Buren county road commission to resurface 72nd street between CR-388 and 16th avenue at a cost of $26,837.

In other action, the board formally approved its fiscal year 1976-77 budget of $249,641. The budget was reviewed at a public hearing last week, but the board neglected to take formal action to adopt it.

The board also designated its federal revenue sharing appropriation of $7,520 for road improvements and its ambulance service. The board transferred $6,000 from its revolving improvement fund to the general fund.

Sodus OKs $5,000 Payment

SODUS — The Sodus township board last night approved paying the Berrien county road commission $5,000 toward costs of road repair work in the township.

The township's share will come from federal revenue sharing funds, the board said. The amount will be matched by the county.

In other areas, the board approved a resolution commending the Sodus Bicentennial committee for what the board termed a successful Bicentennial celebration, staged July 2 and 3.

Radio Reported Stolen From Police Car

SOUTH HAVEN—A two-way radio was reported stolen from a Bangor police car parked at a South Haven auto dealership some time Monday night. South Haven police said the car was awaiting repairs at the Don Woodhams Ford agency, 1111 LaGrange street. The radio was valued at $700.

Detroiter Elected

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — The Colorado & Wyoming Railway Co. board has elected Frank H. Jones president of the CF&I Steel Corp. subsidiary, Colorado & Wyoming announced on Tuesday. The railroad has divisions in Pueblo and Weston, Colo., and Sunrise, Wyo. Jones, a native of Detroit, will be stationed in Pueblo.

A FAMILY FRIGHTENED ABOUT INFLATION

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter, what would it mean to you, a family frightened almost above all else, of a resurgence of inflation?

A. A greater risk of a renewed price spiral than would be willingly assumed by a more rightist conservative than Carter, for the Georgian considers jobs, not inflation, the No. 1 priority of the U.S. now. And he openly has said: "I would put my emphasis on employment and take my chances on inflation."

But the first key point is that Carter believes the fundamental solution to curbing inflation is a balanced budget via the creation of more jobs that would generate enough taxes to bring the federal budget finally into balance — and so, Carter is convinced he is not taking those "chances on inflation" at all.

His approach to inflation is precisely the opposite to the approach of the Nixon-Ford administrations. This is a crucial distinction between the economic stands of the Democratic nominee and whomever will head the Republican ticket.

A second key point is that Carter insists that the forces which set off the galloping price spiral of 1973-75 and the nightmare of an economic slump side by side with runaway inflation will not soon reappear. As one-time adverse factors not to be feared in the foreseeable future, he lists: the quadrupling of oil prices in one year; global droughts; huge sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union; simultaneous booms throughout the world which led to excessive demands for U.S. foodstuffs particularly; the devaluation of the dollar to the most underpriced money in the world, etc.

Says Carter: "Most of my advisers believe that we could reach a low unemployment level with a stable inflation rate of say, 3 per cent or less."

In addition to these basic policy attitudes, the Democratic nominee would:

— Ask for stand-by price and wage controls. Although he says he does not see the need for standby controls now and although he guesses "I would never use them," he also says, "I would use them as a lever. I wouldn't hesitate to use them if I had to."

— Urge new agricultural policies aimed at increasing the supply of foods to the consumer at prices we can afford and avoiding shortages that drive prices higher. "We would strive for a predictable, reasonably small and stable reserve of agricultural products" and also "strive to give farmers incentives to produce abundantly." He condemns GOP Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz "whose orientation is toward grain speculators and food processors."

— Make a serious attempt to work out with the Federal Reserve System monetary policies that would place less reliance on tight money to control inflation. He has a most skeptical attitude toward restrictive monetary policies, thinks that, in recent years, tight money has put "unnecessary pressure on the housing market," has scared the U.S. consumer and dried up formation of capital.

— Completely overhaul our federal bureaucracy and budgeting systems. Repeated over and over has been his pledge to slash the present 1,900 federal departments to no more than 200 "with a great savings in tax money and a streamlining of services."

— Zero in on the problem of increasing productivity so that, as workers produce more per workhour, they will provide corporations with the profits to permit regular pay hikes without undue raising of prices.

There is no disputing that an increase in productivity (efficiency of workers) is a prime key to control of inflation. Carter has not yet come through with details on how he would achieve this most desirable goal, but at least he understands how significant a weapon it could be against renewed inflation.

This is merely a sampling of his ideas — which also range from much stricter anti-trust enforcement to across-the-board restructuring of regulatory agencies to reduce price pressures. But in this column are sufficient details to indicate that, as President, Carter would mix some very old, conservative ideas (balancing the budget) with new drastic changes in Federal Reserve-White House relationships to control inflation. He would monitor results as he went and use wage-price controls as standby weapons — in case.

And if the approach didn't work? Then Carter wouldn't hesitate to fight — and switch.

Stevensville Company Drops Charges Against Five Pickets

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Officials of the Pemco Die Casting corporation's Stevensville plant yesterday agreed to drop trespassing charges against five women union members arrested in connection with picketing at the plant on May 25.

Asst. Prosecutor Patrick Murphy said the decision to dismiss the charges was made during a 45-minute pre-trial hearing yesterday in Berrien District court.

Roger Robinson, production control manager of the Stevensville and Bridgman Pemco plants and complainant in the cases, decided to drop the charges, said Murphy.

Atty. Leonard J. Smit, also present, added that the five people are now back at work at the plant. He said that a strike which brought out about 100 pickets, leading to the arrests, has been settled. Smit represented the women yesterday.

Charges were dismissed against the following five women, all of whom, according to Smit, are members of Allied Industrial Workers, Local 547, UAW-CIO:

Donna Shepherd, 41, 8773 Ruggles road, and Betty Jean Dobbs, 34, 902-A Miller road, both of Baroda; Alice M. Curtis, 39, Grove avenue, Benton township; Inez Granke, 39, 134 Maple, Sawyer; and Marline J. Riggins, 43, 194 California road, Bridgman.

Since their arraignments in May and early June, the five women have been free on $500 personal recognizance bonds.

Bangorites Head For Trial Court

SOUTH HAVEN — Two young Bangor men were bound over to Van Buren circuit court yesterday on charges of breaking and entering following a preliminary examination in Seventh district court here.

Steve Swanner and Donald Farley, both 18 and from route 2, Bangor, were arrested by state police troopers from South Haven in connection with the June 14 entry of a shed in Bangor township and subsequent theft of a motorcycle.

In another case, a May, 1975 charge of carrying a concealed weapon against Noelia Garza, 23, of Decatur was dismissed, but a contempt of court sentence for her failure to appear a year ago on the charge was continued. Miss Garza was sentenced to 60 days in the Van Buren county jail after she failed to appear for a preliminary examination.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Stocks Drift Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices drifted lower in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off nearly a point after opening trades, and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange held a small lead on those advancing.

The NYSE tape was three minutes late in recording trades at one point.

The market appeared to be influenced again by the mood of uncertainty and profit-taking that set in Tuesday to erode a swift two-day advance.

There was one report that some analysts were having second thoughts about the moderate rise in wholesale prices last month. That showing had been credited with helping the market's rise Friday and Monday.

Opening prices today included ARA Services, up 3/8 at 56 1/8; Witco Chemical down 3/8 to 27 1/4; and McLouth Steel, off 1/4 at 22 3/4.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.15 to 1,006.06. NYSE issues rising in price held a slim lead on those declining, however.

Volume on the Big Board rose to 27.55 million shares from the 23.75 million traded the day before.

The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .11 to 56.43.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped .11 to 106.94.

A FAMILY FRIGHTENED ABOUT INFLATION

If Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter were to become U.S. President Carter, what would it mean to you, a family frightened almost above all else, of a resurgence of inflation?

A. A greater risk of a renewed price spiral than would be willingly assumed by a more rightist conservative than Carter, for the Georgian considers jobs, not inflation, the No. 1 priority of the U.S. now. And he openly has said: "I would put my emphasis on employment and take my chances on inflation."

But the first key point is that Carter believes the fundamental solution to curbing inflation is a balanced budget via the creation of more jobs that would generate enough taxes to bring the federal budget finally into balance — and so, Carter is convinced he is not taking those "chances on inflation" at all.

His approach to inflation is precisely the opposite to the approach of the Nixon-Ford administrations. This is a crucial distinction between the economic stands of the Democratic nominee and whomever will head the Republican ticket.

A second key point is that Carter insists that the forces which set off the galloping price spiral of 1973-75 and the nightmare of an economic slump side by side with runaway inflation will not soon reappear. As one-time adverse factors not to be feared in the foreseeable future, he lists: the quadrupling of oil prices in one year; global droughts; huge sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union; simultaneous booms throughout the world which led to excessive demands for U.S. foodstuffs particularly; the devaluation of the dollar to the most underpriced money in the world, etc.

Says Carter: "Most of my advisers believe that we could reach a low unemployment level with a stable inflation rate of say, 3 per cent or less."

In addition to these basic policy attitudes, the Democratic nominee would:

— Ask for stand-by price and wage controls. Although he says he does not see the need for standby controls now and although he guesses "I would never use them," he also says, "I would use them as a lever. I wouldn't hesitate to use them if I had to."

— Urge new agricultural policies aimed at increasing the supply of foods to the consumer at prices we can afford and avoiding shortages that drive prices higher. "We would strive for a predictable, reasonably small and stable reserve of agricultural products" and also "strive to give farmers incentives to produce abundantly." He condemns GOP Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz "whose orientation is toward grain speculators and food processors."

— Make a serious attempt to work out with the Federal Reserve System monetary policies that would place less reliance on tight money to control inflation. He has a most skeptical attitude toward restrictive monetary policies, thinks that, in recent years, tight money has put "unnecessary pressure on the housing market," has scared the U.S. consumer and dried up formation of capital.

— Completely overhaul our federal bureaucracy and budgeting systems. Repeated over and over has been his pledge to slash the present 1,900 federal departments to no more than 200 "with a great savings in tax money and a streamlining of services."

— Zero in on the problem of increasing productivity so that, as workers produce more per workhour, they will provide corporations with the profits to permit regular pay hikes without undue raising of prices.

There is no disputing that an increase in productivity (efficiency of workers) is a prime key to control of inflation. Carter has not yet come through with details on how he would achieve this most desirable goal, but at least he understands how significant a weapon it could be against renewed inflation.

This is merely a sampling of his ideas — which also range from much stricter anti-trust enforcement to across-the-board restructuring of regulatory agencies to reduce price pressures. But in this column are sufficient details to indicate that, as President, Carter would mix some very old, conservative ideas (balancing the budget) with new drastic changes in Federal Reserve-White House relationships to control inflation. He would monitor results as he went and use wage-price controls as standby weapons — in case.

And if the approach didn't work? Then Carter wouldn't hesitate to fight — and switch.

Stevensville Company Drops Charges Against Five Pickets

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Officials of the Pemco Die Casting corporation's Stevensville plant yesterday agreed to drop trespassing charges against five women union members arrested in connection with picketing at the plant on May 25.

Asst. Prosecutor Patrick Murphy said the decision to dismiss the charges was made during a 45-minute pre-trial hearing yesterday in Berrien District court.

Roger Robinson, production control manager of the Stevensville and Bridgman Pemco plants and complainant in the cases, decided to drop the charges, said Murphy.

Atty. Leonard J. Smit, also present, added that the five people are now back at work at the plant. He said that a strike which brought out about 100 pickets, leading to the arrests, has been settled. Smit represented the women yesterday.

Charges were dismissed against the following five women, all of whom, according to Smit, are members of Allied Industrial Workers, Local 547, UAW-CIO:

Donna Shepherd, 41, 8773 Ruggles road, and Betty Jean Dobbs, 34, 802-A Miller road, both of Baroda; Alice M. Curtis, 39, Grove avenue, Benton township; Inez Granke, 39, 134 Maple, Sawyer; and Marline J. Riggins, 43, 194 California road, Bridgman.

Since their arraignments in May and early June, the five women have been free on $500 personal recognizance bonds.

Bangorites Head For Trial Court

SOUTH HAVEN — Two young Bangor men were bound over to Van Buren circuit court yesterday on charges of breaking and entering following a preliminary examination in Seventh district court here.

Steve Swanner and Donald Farley, both 18 and from route 2, Bangor, were arrested by state police troopers from South Haven in connection with the June 14 entry of a shed in Bangor township and subsequent theft of a motorcycle.

In another case, a May, 1975 charge of carrying a concealed weapon against Noelia Garza, 23, of Decatur was dismissed, but a contempt of court sentence for her failure to appear a year ago on the charge was continued. Miss Garza was sentenced to 60 days in the Van Buren county jail after she failed to appear for a preliminary examination.

Television Power Called 'Myth'

By MIKE HENDRICKS
Associated Press Writer

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Two Syracuse University political scientists have a message for Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and President Ford.

Television is not the power it is commonly thought to be in presidential elections, they say.

That was the major finding of Thomas E. Patterson and Robert D. McClure in a three-year study of the influence of television on voters in the 1972 presidential election.

Political commercials provide voters with more useful information concerning a candidate's character and his stand on issues than is available in network newscasts, the two political scientists wrote in their new book, "The Unseeing Eye: The Myth of Television Power in National Elections."

"Television has much less influence than people think. People still respond to candidates in pretty much traditional terms. Much of the image making goes for naught," Patterson said in a recent interview.

"Watching the evening network news leads to a rather trivial perspective of what elections are all about," McClure said. "It trivializes politics, turns it into a game. People who rely on television news tend to view politics much more cheaply."

Patterson and McClure say they studied every newscast and commentary broadcast by the three major networks during the 1972 presidential campaign, and interviewed 2,000 viewers.

"It is a myth that watching television requires no effort. In talking with viewers, we found it requires more effort," McClure said. Their study found that viewers often do something else while they watch television news with the result that newscasts "run together in their minds," McClure said.

Newspaper readers are more issue-oriented than television viewers, the two political scientists said. Patterson has received a $400,000 grant to expand the study to the impact of newspapers and newsmagazines in the upcoming election.

Patterson and McClure also dispute the conventional belief that political advertising is devoid of factual information and aimed at molding the candidate's image.

"What the voters are reacting to is substance. The most effective campaign ad is based on substance, not flimsy image appeal" Patterson said.

Campaign commercials help voters form their opinion of a candidate but lack the power to manipulate voter opinion, they said, adding that commercials tend to reinforce already formed beliefs in a voter.

"Their (viewers') recall of commercials was extraordinary compared to their hazy recall of television news. They got the message," McClure said.

"But advertising is almost as likely to benefit one's opponent as to benefit the one who is paying for it," Patterson said.
